What is red? For students and staff at Port Huron High School, it is more than a color. Red is the pride of Port Huron. Red is the spirit of the mighty Big Reds. Red is academic excellence. Red is sportsmanship. Red is a tradition like no other, dating back to 1864. Red symbolizes who we are and what we do.

In September, students entered the halls, some eager to start the school year, and some not so much. Major curriculum changes inspired discussions to help students become more focused on their education. For example, the Century 21 grant allowed for a new after school program that included special field trips.

This past year, it seemed as if PHHS was reinventing itself. Freshmen needed more credits than sophomores, who needed more credits than juniors, who needed more credits than seniors. The staff then had to face the challenge of redefining what it meant to be mentors in Big Red Country.

Innovative street signs, such as Be Ready Blvd., steered students toward the pathway to success. The new Positive Behavior System was engineered to recognize students for doing the right thing. With an altered approach, the school added a Behavior Education Program so that freshmen had extra encouragement to turn in assignments and follow school rules.

Older programs that fared well in the past, such as the Big Red Wave, continued to bring together numerous students. Though it was redesigned this past year to include freshmen registration, Big Red Wave still taught the incoming freshmen credible lessons.

Red is a distinct shade in a world of many hues, but what it represents at PHHS is more than just a simple color. Although redefined year after year, it holds over a century worth of "Pride, Tradition & Excellence." It's why we say, "Once a Big Red, always a Big Red."

Showing spirit and Big Red Pride, Ashley Gracey '10, Kelsay Payton '11, Jazmine Brown '12, Caleesha Nutt '10, Alexis Klebba '10, Hillary Oppertsthauser '10, and Adriana Jordan '12 lead The Tribe at the Port Huron vs. Port Huron Northern football game. Various cheers and chants were shouted to pep up the football team and fans.

Leaving her mark, senior Jacy Bailey places her hand print in the 100 hallway. All seniors went during their POD classes to place their hand print on the wall in either red, green, blue, or purple. Part of the Positive Behavior System, having a hand print on the wall symbolized the commitment to work hard until graduation.

B.I.G. R.E.D.S. The code to live by. Be Ready, Initiate, Give Back, Respect, Excel, Do What's Right, and Succeed. Seniors Ryan Ostrander, Dale Frasier, Michael Bouldrey, Gary Loxton, and Matthew Gleason all know how to follow the code. The Big Red Code could be seen everywhere, such as on the Big Red Wave shirts and the streets signs.

Showing how low she can go, Jenette Vasser '10 makes her way under the limbo stick held by referees Mr. Alex Arcieri and Mr. Jeremy Rosenau during the Homecoming Games Assembly.

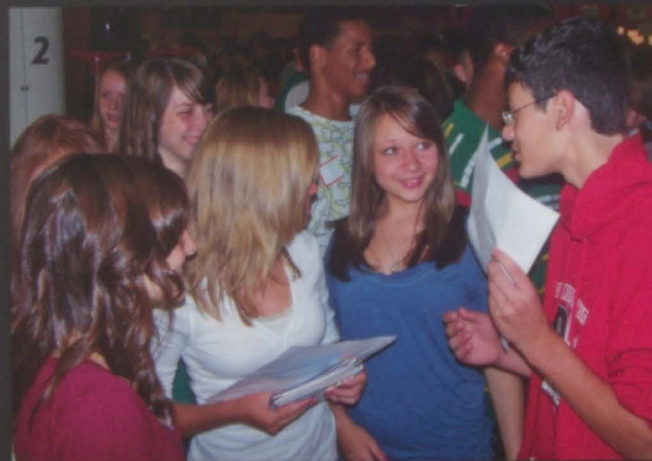

Standing tall and proud, Ryan Urban '11, Amber LaVere '10, Jennifer Noble '11, and Courtney Toton '11 sing the National Anthem with other choir members at the Honors Assembly.

Getting ready for showtime, senior Emily Osburn helps junior Lina Lu apply green make-up for her portrayal of the Sea Monster during the After-School Drama Club's A Night Of One Acts.

During Big Red Wave, freshmen students gather in a group to discuss their different schedules. This year, Big Red Wave and freshmen registration were combined.

Hoping to make the best float, Ariana Strieter '11 and Bridget Lines '11 work together on the storybook placed on the Junior's Homecoming float. They tied with the Seniors for first place.

Throughout the year, calendars were peppered with ingredients of fun; with a pinch of pride and a dash of determination, students entered PHHS and began the school year.

Big Red pride showed during Big Red Wave, when mentors centered on helping the incoming freshmen. Big Red spirit flared at the pep assembly and football game against Port Huron Northern. At sport events, The Tribe cheered PH to victory.

The start of Homecoming festivities caused hundreds of students to show their red and white honor. Student Council stirred things up with the decision that the floats would be made out of non-perishable foods. Students labored over floats designed out of soup cans and bags of chips. At the Homecoming Dance, dresses shimmered and tuxedos shined as students boogied the night away.

Students were credited with receiving GPAs of 3.5 or higher at the Honors Assembly. For November, Thanksgiving Break was a relief from homework. Once winter maneuvered in, many enjoyed the Winter Assembly and got ready for the holidays. Then, students prepared themselves for the semester exams.

On Valentine's Day, teens puckered up and sent flowers sold by Student Council. A lot of students adventured out of city or state borders for Spring Break. For most, May was sprinkled with events. Both the Junior and Senior Prom took place, and also the musical production of West Side Story. As their final act, seniors gathered their diplomas and yearbooks as they said goodbye to their high school career.

Honk! and Hold Your Head Up High

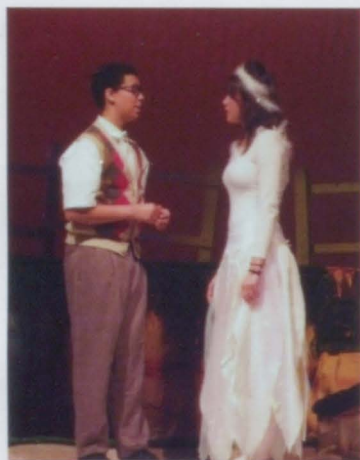

Story By: SHELBY GONZALES

With a marvelous set and outstanding dance numbers, the After-School Drama Club's spring musical production of Honk! was a success. As explained by the opening song A Poultry Tale, the musical took place on a farm that included ducks, chickens, turkey, fish, and the lone cat; and is based off of the the story The Ugly Duckling by Hans Christian Andersen. Director Ms. Melanie Bolt said, "I think all aspects are equally important when making a musical. However, I thought the sets were amazing."

The main character of the story was Ugly, played by Jordan Moncrief '10, who eventually turned into a swan. The female lead role of Honk!, Ugly's mother Ida, was played by Cheyenne Bolt '10, who filled in for Jessica Barno '10 after she was unable to perform.

Even though all of the cast were playing animals, they still dressed as regular humans, with their outfits incorporating animal characteristics. Each scene involved unique costumes and dances. "The Froggy Dance scene was my favorite because it took so long to get it perfect, and we did. It was a great accomplishment," stated Nicole Corbin '11.

After two months of rehearsals, the cast and crew were finally able to perform to audiences with six different show times. Philip Vasquez '10 said, "The most exciting part about Honk! practices was taking naps on the big, comfy couch." Once the last Sunday matinee show finished, everyone that worked on the production was invited to the Huron Physical Arts Center in Downtown Port Huron, to enjoy the foam pit and eat pizza and chips.

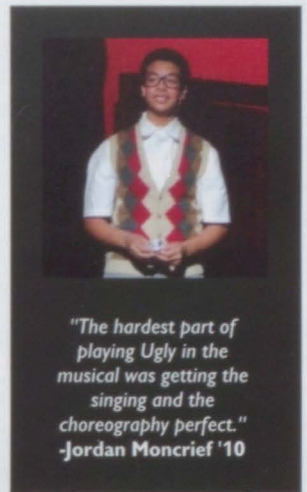

Ugly, played by Jordan Moncrief '10, talks about his journey home with the swan Penny performed by Emily Shinavier '09.

Leaning the class, Kayla Flanagan '11 clucks to the Ducklings as Cheyenne Bolt '10, Ryan Urban '11, and Kyle Dobbs '09 look on.

For the Grand Finale, the entire cast gathers on the stage of the PHHS Performing Arts Center to sing Look at Him.

"The hardest part of playing Ugly in the musical was getting the singing and the choreography perfect."
-Jordan Moncrief '10

Greytag, brought to life by John Kriewall '10, and Dot, by Emily Osburn '10, interrogate the cat, Nathaniel Jackson '10.

Seated in the orchestra pit, band students and Mr. Dan Griffith look over the music for the play. Many hours of practice led up to the event.

Assisting with make-up backstage, Breana Valdez '09 applies blush to Scott Lusk '11 as Christopher Tallmadge '10 watches.

The Froglets sing and dance to the song Warts and All to cheer up the depressed "Ugly" by telling him that he's fine the way he is.

Class Done At Last!

By: CLARENCE THOMPSON & JAZMYN THOMAS

Coming in as shy and worried freshmen, the Class of 2010 made their mark on the halls of Port Huron High. The class had many accomplishments over the four years including, defeating rival school Port Huron Northern three years in a row, earning the Brick Fowler Trophy, and the Big Red Marching Machine receiving a Division 1 rating at the MSBOA for three of the four years. The Varsity Volleyball team also were the MAC Blue Champs.

The Class of 2010 had an impact on the school in other ways. They were part of a new Port Huron School tradition, "I love having our hand prints on the wall. We will always be the first class to have our hand prints on the wall," said Krystal Swift.

The class crowned Shelby Baker and Tyler Jackson as Homecoming queen and king. Representing the theme of "Once Upon a Time," with Cinderella's carriage, seniors tied with the juniors for first place on floats. Seniors also earned first place at the fall Games Assembly winning the Pep Jug.

"We're the party that never ends, we're the class of 2010!" was the chant the class cheered at pep and game assemblies.

The class was not complete without officers and a class adviser. Natalie Sullivan was class president as she had been the previous three years. Colby Alexis took on the responsibility of vice president while Shelby Chisholm was class secretary. Handling the duties of historian was Madelyn Harris, while Jason Hoogerhyde was treasurer. "Being a class officer for four years has been fun but stressful at times, too. I got the opportunity to meet a lot of my classmates and be involved with a lot of the decision making. It has been of fun," said Madelyn Harris. Ms. Betty Myers was class adviser for all four years.

The Class of 2010 not only had firsts, but also some lasts. They were the last class to have to take government as a required class in order to graduate, and the last to have the old graduation requirements.

The Senior Class gathered in Pine Grove Park, on November 1, 2009 for the annual photo. Various locations were voted on, Seniors chose the Blue Water Bridges. The Class of 1989 also held their Senior Picture in the same location, only then there was only one span of the bridge while today there are two. The second was added in the 1996-1997 school year.

Enjoying the warm weather of Orlando, Florida, Jessica Klaas '10, Mickey Genaw '13, and Nicole Genaw '10 visited Wet 'n' Wild water park.

While visiting St. Ignace, Michigan, Taylor Bruhns '10 and her brother, along with Brandon Reynolds visit Castle Rock.

Spending their Spring Break in Florida, Emily Mainguy '11, Isabella John '09, and Natalie Mainguy '13 enjoy the warm breezes.

From The Books

Story By: JUSTINE GOSTINGER

Great weather and no alarm, things can't get much better than that! While some students stayed home and relaxed, others traveled to a variety of places, from just a few miles out of town visiting family to distant areas like Mexico to enjoy the warm weather.

The first break that most people looked forward to was Thanksgiving, a time usually spent with family. Autumn McCallum '10 stated, "I went to Tennessee to see old family members that I haven't been able to see in a while. It was a long 10 hour car ride, but it was definitely worth it in the end. I was able to experience new things and go places I'd never been before."

Christmas Break being two weeks long was the ideal time to travel, "I climbed to the top of Ricon De La Veja, a volcano in Costa Rica. I went surfing in Tamarindo, snorkeling in Playa Delcoca and zip lined 40 feet across the jungle. I saw animals I never knew existed, and met the nicest people ever," exclaimed Jesse Peart '11.

Mid-Winter Break, a long weekend, was usually a time spent at home. With the extended time away from school, students were able to hangout with their friends and get things done. While others, like Janelle Mitchell '10, were able to escape the cold Michigan weather by traveling to Florida, enjoying things like "going to the beach, Sea World, Disney World, and Busch Gardens."

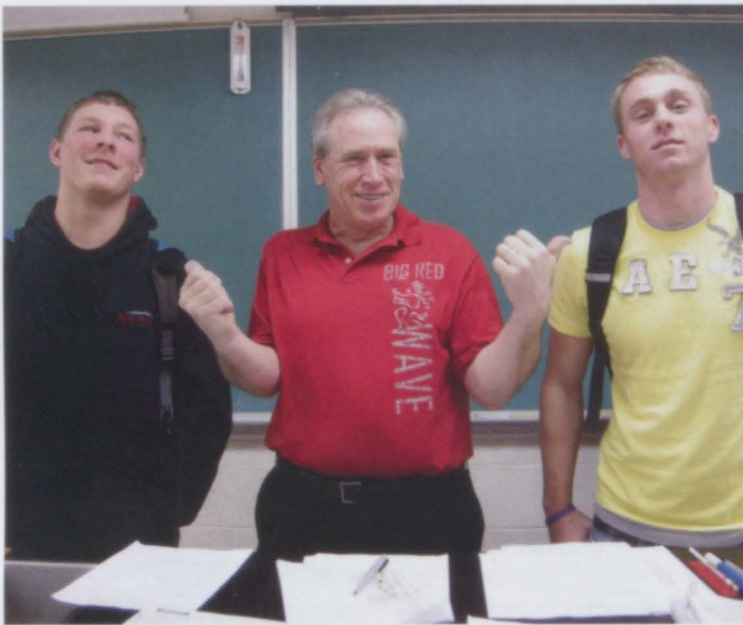

Spring Break, at the end of March and the beginning of April, was one of the favorite breaks among students: whether spent in town with friends or out of town in warmer weather. Spring Break led to thoughts of the Big One-Summer.

Traveling "abroad," Travis McBride '10 visited Norway in Walt Disney's EPCOT in Orlando, Florida with his cousins over Spring Break.

Adding their own twist to fashion, students wore the latest attire but also sported the stylish Tribe shirts and other PHHS gear. "I tend to follow the trends to stay cool," said senior Ronald Monzo.

Other students had different perspectives and made fashions their own. "I don't really follow trends," said Lewis Jackovich '10, "I'll just wear what is interesting, not what others find interesting."

Most students said that the number one fashion of the year was anything zebra print, coming close behind was Hollister design shirts, skinny jeans and big, studded sunglasses.

Many female students were seen wearing: jean skirts, leggings, sweaters, skinny jeans, graffiti jackets, ripped jeans and heels. Male students sported fashion trends like plaid shorts, zip-up hoodies, Converse shoes, polo shirts, faded jeans, and DC flipflops. Both genders found comfort in popular North Face fleeces.

Another popular sight to see in the halls included Twilight shirts and bags, along with Jonas Brothers, High School Musical and Harry Potter merchandise.

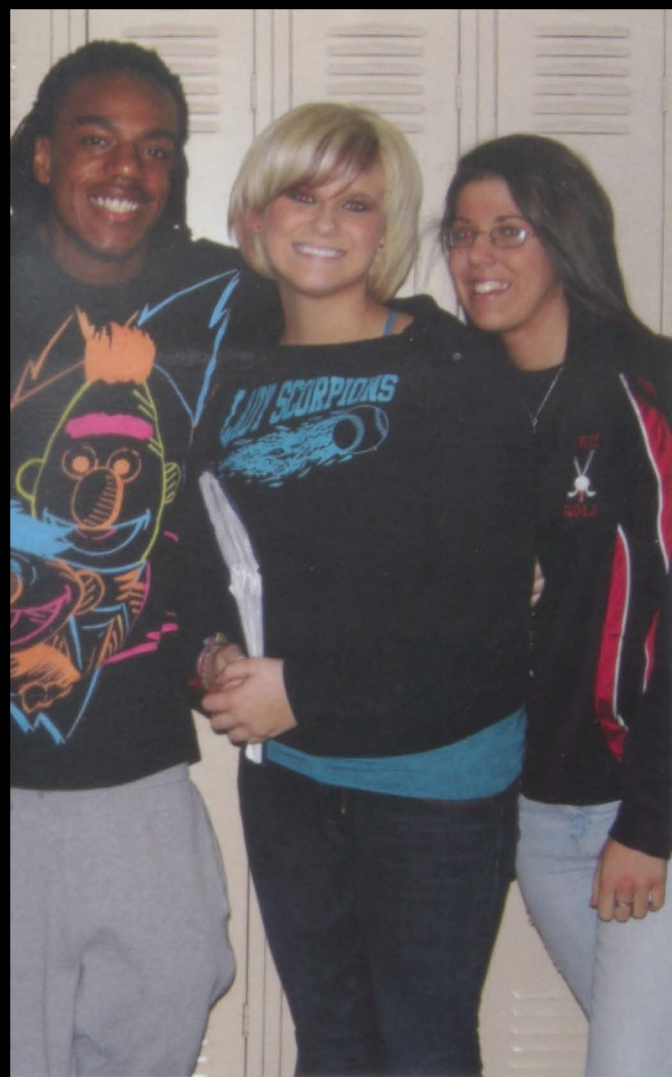

Having their style just right, the students ventured out to exhibit their choices. "I like looking cute when I go to Lakeside Mall or the Raven," said Elizabeth Erickson '10.

Fashionable places to frequent included: Skateport, Lakeside Beach, Cedar Point, The Raven, or a friend's house to hang out. "I love hanging out anywhere as long as I'm with my best friends," said Haley Burtch '10. For refreshments popular beverages included Monster, Redbull, Vitamin Water and SoBe Life Water.

Sporting three different trends, Devin Smith '10 wears ripped jeans, Rachel Cope '12 dons leggings, and Aje'e Lee '12 models skinny jeans.

A Hurley striped v-neck sweater and dark washed faded jeans, with a High Sierra backpack are the chosen fashion for senior Mark Rini.

Seniors Jenette Vasser, Marissa Eagle, Marcus Bankston, RyAnn Sexton, and Megan Torello display their styles of attire.

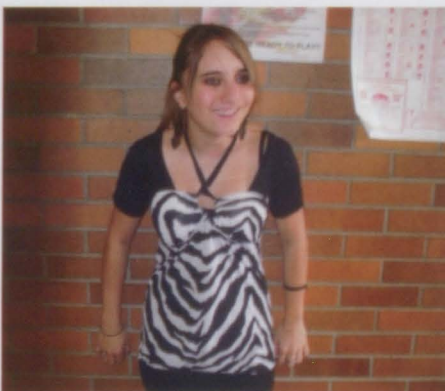

Band bags and apparel were a trendy fad. Krista Visga '12 shows off her Jonas Brothers bag and striped button down sweater.

On a weekend road trip Leah Fryer '12 and Kylie Dove '12 sip Monster energy drinks to help them stay awake on their return drive.

Ms. Betty Myers, Mrs. Deb Werth, Mrs. Laurel Groner, Mrs. Becky Gilbert, Mrs. Jody Catalanotte and Mrs. Chris Richmond don sweaters.

Putting her unique fashion sense on display, Autumn Navarre '12 wears a zebra print halter top. Prints were a popular style choice.

Senior David Foster '10 leaps high for the catch to prevent the enemy from getting the ball. He rushed 88 yards for a touchdown.

Proud and mighty, The Tribe shouted chants such as, "We want the Brick", or "Just like last year!" and, "The Pack is wack!"

After defeating cross-town rival PH Northern 49 to 28, Varsity players Ashawn Butler '10 and Calvin Chapman '10 celebrate the win with teammates.

All About Perspective...

MR. FOOTBALL...

"My favorite part would definitely be winning; I mean it's the Superbowl of Port Huron. What really makes the game special is the passion the game is played with on each side of the ball."

-Justin Black '12

TROMBONE MAN...

"The bands at both schools were in a frenzy to out-play, out-sound, and out-fun the other school. The energy was exhilarating. Everyone is so amped, that eventually everyone is tired by the end of the game. Everyone has a great time cheering for our team and playing loud and fun. That's what Marching Band is about-fun."

-Henry Chen '10

TOTAL SUPER-FAN...

"Well in my opinion, what makes the game special is that we are school rivals with them; it's high energy, and everyone is pumped to cheer on their team. It's kind of nice to brag a little after the game to my Northern friends."

-Tyler Duncan '10

Pumped with pride, Varsity Cheerleaders liven up the crowd with dance and cheer moves choreographed to popular songs.

Pepped up for the game, seniors Kayla Edwards, Krystal Swift, Brooke Haggerty, LaShawnte Munn, Mya Griffin, and Tiana Nelson show spirit.

Loud & Proud, We Got "The Brick"

Story and Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE

From the traditional red and white tee to car window and hair paint, students and teachers alike showed their Big Red pride for the annual city showdown.

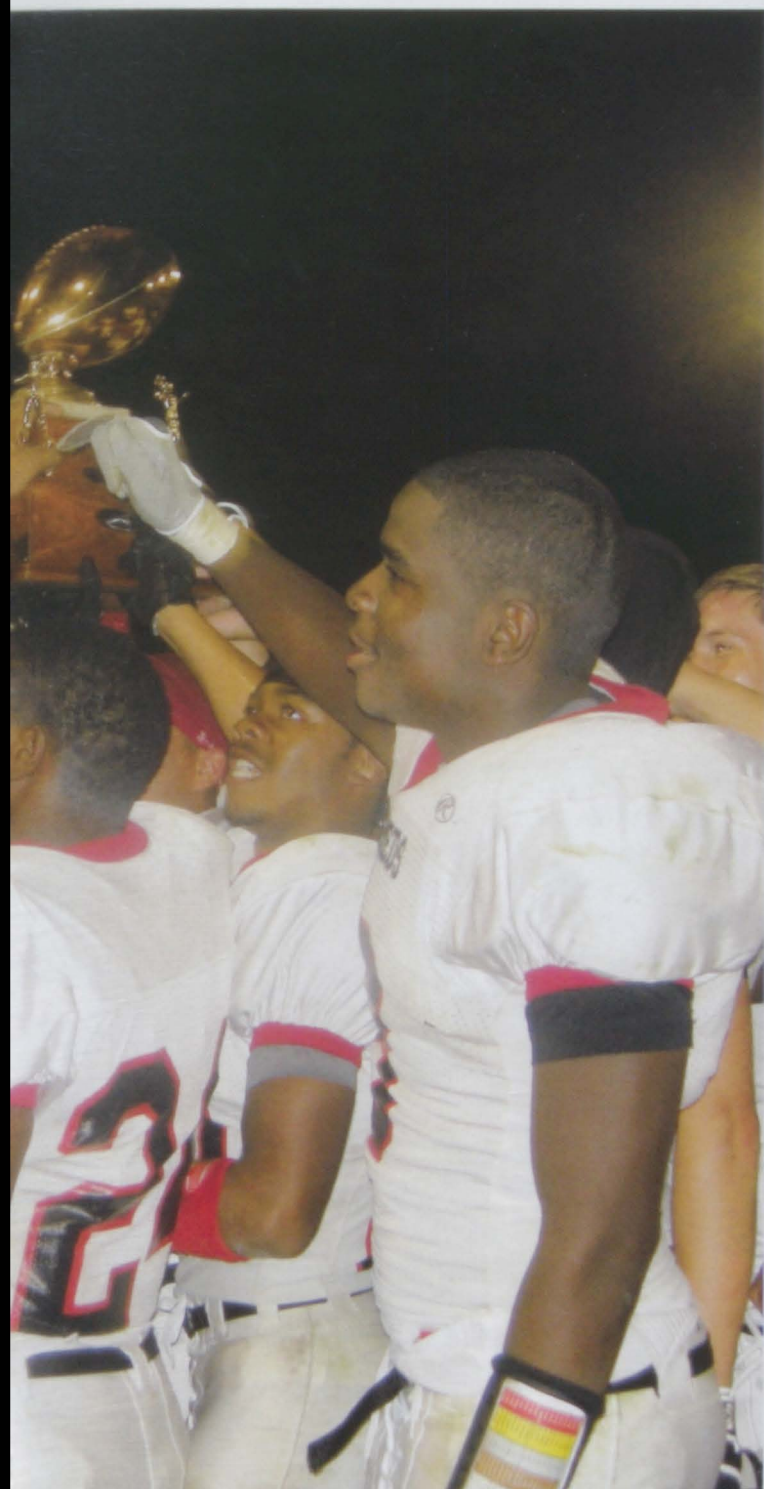

Step by step, the Marching Machine shook the halls, while blasting the Red & White Fight Song before the pep assembly. Loud and proud, 1,700 students, a sea of red and white, flooded the gym.

The Varsity Cheerleaders pepped up the crowd with a routine including songs: Down by Jay Sean, Don't Trust Me by 3OH!3 and I Gotta Feeling by the Black Eyed Peas. While well prepared from weeks of practice, they had to change their routine the day before due to a team member's wrist injury. "Having to change more than half our routine didn't stop us from looking and doing our best when it came down to our final performance," said Nicole Genaw '10.

Students then left for home later returning to Memorial Stadium to witness the great match up—PH vs PHN. More than an estimated 6,000 spectators packed the stands to support their home teams.

Livening up the crowd before the game, the BRMM debuted their half-time show featuring music of The Who. Kirsten Rhody '13 said, "I was really nervous because there was so many people around and I've never been in a crowd like that. All the section and rank leaders helped me to deal with it and told me not to be nervous, which honestly just made me more nervous."

Chants and cheers were shouted back and forth between schools. In the end the Varsity Big Reds devoured the Huskies 49 to 28, claiming city-wide bragging rights for the third straight year.

Once Upon A Time in Big Red Country

Story By: SHELBY GONZALES Photos By: SHELBY GONZALES, TRAVIS McBRIDE, & KAYLA BROCKITT

With a flick of a fairy godmother's wand, the Homecoming festivities began by voting for the Homecoming Court. Though over fifty students were nominated, only a select few had the honor of being chosen. But before the Court members were announced, students began to work on their class floats.

On the first of October, the four separate classes started to put their plans in motion. With a theme of "Once Upon A Time", the floats depicted scenes featuring popular storybook characters. Students had to work together to build a fantasy float constructed out of soup cans, noodle packages, and potato chip bags. All of the food items were later donated to local food banks and soup kitchens. Each class labored over their creations in the hopes of winning first place. "The seniors' float was very good and definitely competition. I like how the chariot bounced when the trailer moved. The sophomores' was also cleverly constructed," said Betsy Vollmar '11.

Finally, at the beginning of Spirit Week, the court members were announced. Junior Molly Ford said, "I was really surprised that I had been chosen. I almost passed out when they told me!"

Spirit Week was also the inspiration for some interesting costumes. All based on the Homecoming theme, each different day...

TUESDAY For Jester Day, this group, which includes Mr. Carl Mueller in his electric blue suit, dressed in neon colors.

WEDNESDAY Amber Dunlop '10, Zachary Shoen '13, and Lindsay Miller '11 show their royal best for Prince and Princess Day.

THURSDAY Students show their love for Disney Day by wearing Mickey Mouse ears and other Disney merchandise.

FRIDAY For the traditional Red and White Day, students wore Tribe shirts or the more customary red shirts.

The traditional Homecoming Games Assembly took place on the last day of Spirit Week. Filled with fun and enthusiasm, students were witnesses to the seniors' triumph over all of the rest. Starting with the Tug-of-War, the excitement continued throughout the assembly during the limbo competition, ballroom dance-off, and dress-up relay. The BRMM Drumline hyped up the crowd by having students pie their teachers. Mrs. Betty Myers, Mr. Daniel Griffith, Mrs. Darla Miller, Ms. Denise McCaffrey, and Mr. David Reno were the teachers who had the honor of getting a face full of whipped cream. As an added surprise, Assistant Principal and Athletic Director Mr. Gregg Wagner responded to the chants of "We want Wagner! We want Wagner!" and called for senior Richard Mierendorff to pie him in the face, much to the glee of the crowd.

As usual, the cheerleaders and Thunderbirds livened up the crowd by yelling out cheers and waving pom-poms. After the parade, the BRMM rode buses to Central Middle School and Chippewa Middle School so that the students there were able to feel the exhilaration of Homecoming.

At the football game, The Tribe arrived to help the crowd cheer the Big Reds on to victory against the Sterling Heights Stallions. The BRMM started off the night by playing of the National Anthem, and then the football team ran onto the field, pumped and ready to go.

During half-time, the entire Homecoming Court trekked through the mud and waited for the announcement of who would be the Homecoming King and Queen as the whole crowd watched from their seats in the stands. Everyone applauded when it was revealed that seniors Tyler Jackson and Shelby Baker were the King and Queen. Shelby said, "I was really excited when I won. The best part was when the whole marching band started chanting my name."

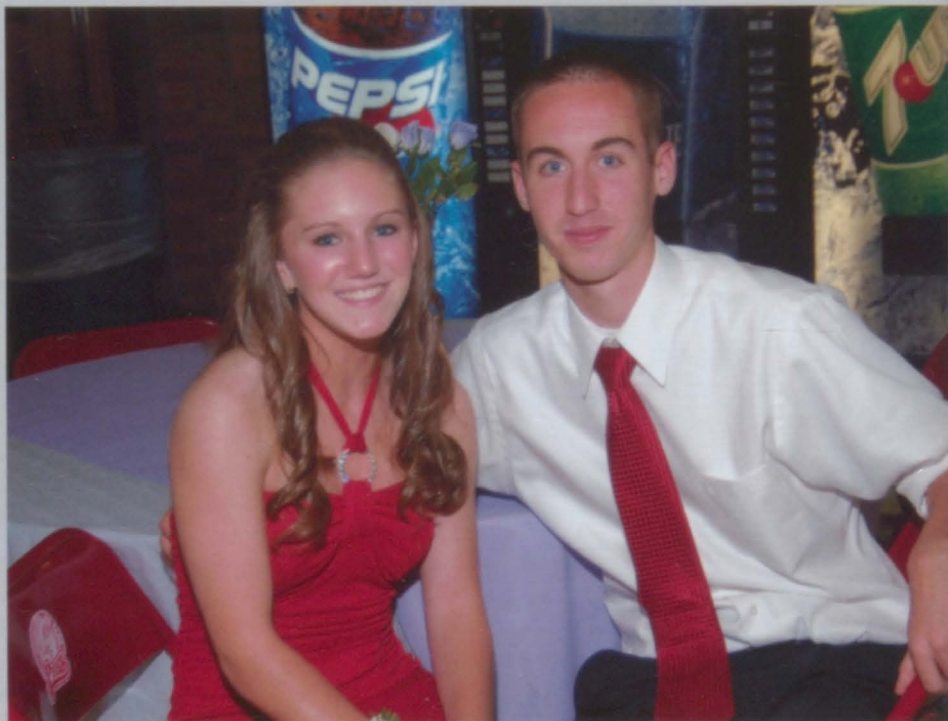

Students spent hours on their hair and outfits in preparation for the Homecoming dance—the grand finale to the Homecoming experience. Sophomore Adam Knisley said, "The best part of the dance was when I was dancing with all these girls." Ladies wore a variety of colored gowns, whereas gentlemen wore the more simplistic suit and tie.

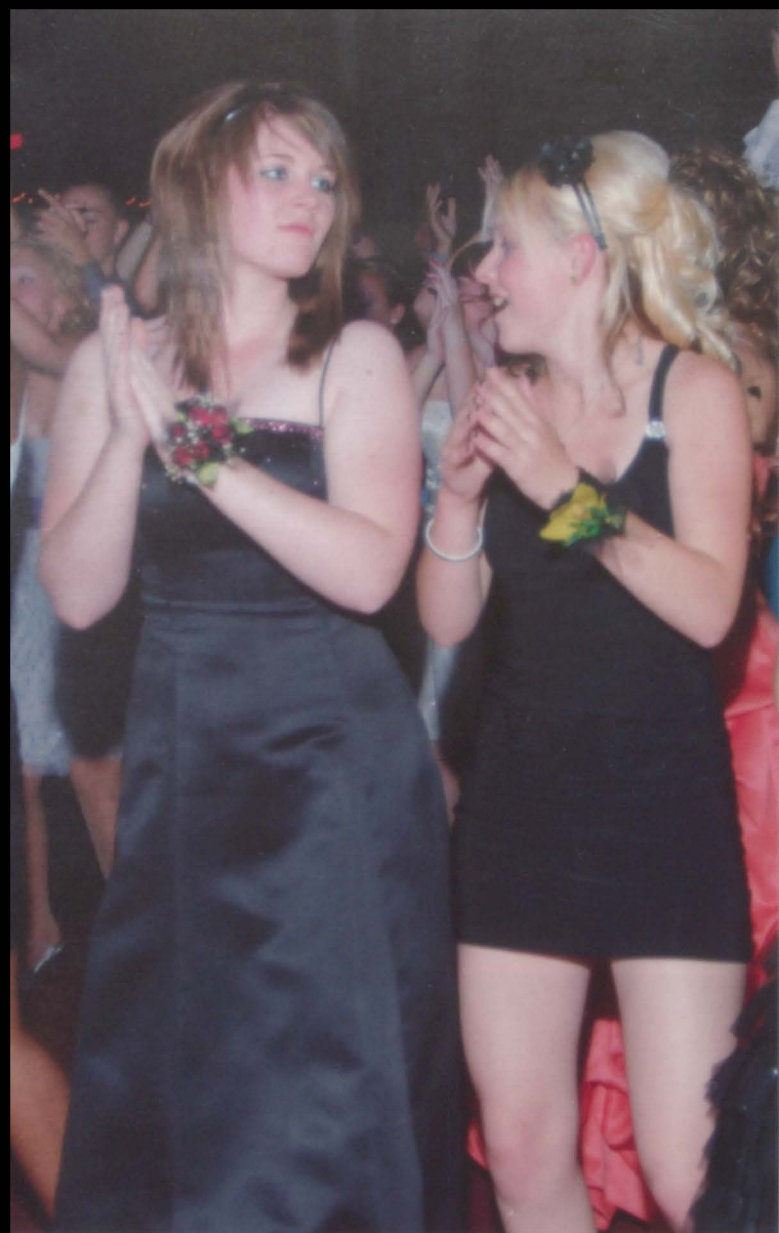

The conclusion of the dance and Homecoming festivities granted students the storybook ending of happily ever after.

Prepared to dance the night away, Matthew Gillett '13, Douglas Young '13, and their guest get together for a fun time.

Icing up the Winter Assembly with a dance competition, rock performances, and spirited singing, the '09 gathering was different from previous years.

Belting out Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas the choir and Betsy Vollmer '11 who had a solo, dazzled the audience. Snap dancing and jerking to various holiday songs, the Performing Arts classes held a dance competition between Santa, Joshua Feher '12, and the Grinch, Jacob Prout '10.

Representing the Guitar Class, Joseph James '10, Korey Bartos '10, and Dale Frasier '10 played "Carol of the Bells" while Jesse Peart '11 kept the beat with the drums. "It is always fun playing for your friends," said Jesse Peart '11. Dylan Langolf '10 and two former Big Reds showcased their talent with their band.

The Wind Ensemble crowded one side of the gymnasium and kept the audience entertained, playing "Sleigh Ride".

Drama Club wowed students by singing "Seasons of Love" from the musical Rent and received wild applause. "It was really fun, but I was a little nervous to sing in front of everyone, and the fact that I didn't learn the song until the day before didn't help, but it all worked out," said Ryon Burrell '12.

Ending the year's festivities, Santa Claus, Mr. Rock Stevens and Mrs. Claus, Mrs. Karla Beadon rode in on their sleigh, led by students playing reindeer and handed out gifts to various students such as Nicole Cahours '13 and Kerissa Donaldson '10, who sent their letters to the North Pole.

Getting served, Santa Claus, Joshua Feher '12, steps back and lets the Grinch, Jacob Prouts '10 dance during the competition.

Going over some papers, sophomores Mary Barnes, Emily Bitzinger, and Micaela McBride read questionnaires that students turned in during their Yearbook class.

Using the right tools, freshmen Natalie Mainguy and Tyler Debuf dissect a shark during their AP Biology class. A change, freshmen students were allowed to take AP Biology classes this year.

Acting like royalty, freshman Randy Trice strikes a pose after playing King Minos of Crete in a skit about Theseus during the mythology section in his ninth grade ELA class.

Academics continued to hold the foreground in having an accredited school. Students helped Port Huron High School meet local and state standards.

In the English department, students authored numerous papers, whether it was an essay on Romeo & Juliet or a Critical Analysis paper for College Writing and AP Literature. At the same time, students also read stories and novels that were checked with memorable characters.

With the E2020 program, in addition to regular math classes, students bettered their math scores. Both upperclassmen and underclassmen furthered their mathematical knowledge by completing their Geometry or AP Calculus work.

Redesigning their schedules, freshmen were allowed to select the AP Biology classes this past year. Others measured formulas for experiments they did in Chemistry or AP Chemistry. In Physics, students labored over complicated equations.

Students covered many topics in their history classes. US History & Geography and World History classes inspired students with tales of different places and people. The seniors explored the inner workings of the three branches in their Government classes.

In their classes, some scholars discovered more about politics and other important subjects. Students also redirected their ideas about themselves, by learning more in Physical Education and Health classes. Some were more concerned with the economy, and steered toward business oriented classes.

The elective classes were as popular as ever. Students found that they had a redeeming talent in playing an instrument or acting on stage. Others used their voices and soared to new heights in Choir, while some preferred to showcase themselves through visual art.

With so many different classes to pick from, students chose the ones that really mattered. From the core classes to electives, both staff and students alike had to adjust to new credit requirements and redesigned class lessons. Though academics may not be everyone's forte, their schedules allowed everyone to be good at something.

Caution: This is not a combination of sugar, spice, and everything nice. If handled without care, destruction may occur!

From mixing chemicals to dissecting pigs, cats, and frogs, many different things happened in the lab room. Kyle Falk '11 said "The best thing about experiments are the things that go BOOM!"

Most students found it easier to learn from hands on experiences. Kristopher Meadows '10 said, "I find it 110 percent easier to learn from experiments. I find that because I'm a hands on learner; experiments provide better examples and allow me to learn on my own."

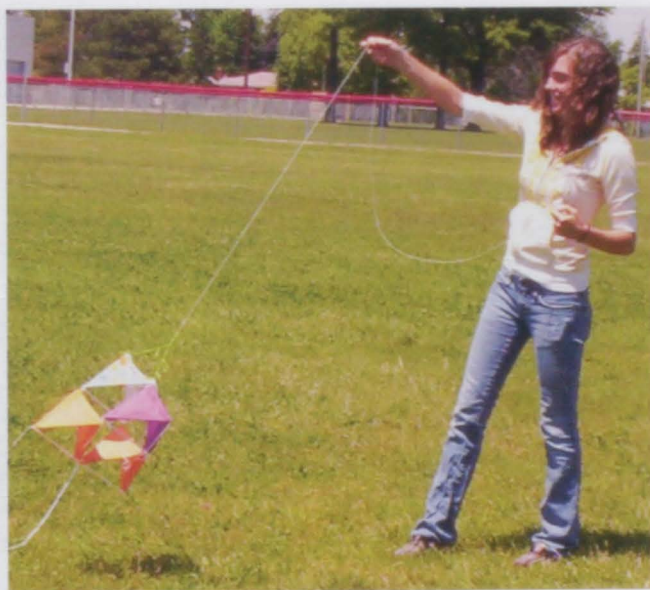

Along with science, math is an essential part of a student's academic life. With seven different classes to choose from, there was a math class to fit every student's needs. Choosing to take Geometry, Jade Rhone '12 said, "I do not study for tests because my teacher does such a good job of teaching it the first time."

Geometry classes celebrated Pie Day on March 14. "Pie Day gives the Math Department a chance to teach fundamental concepts and eat, too!" said teacher Ms. Kelly Blay, who started the tradition here in 2000.

BEGINNING THE DISSECTION, seniors Meghan Kinter and Jacob Prout pin down the flesh of the shark during Mrs. Rebecca Gilbert's first hour AP Biology class.

Many Uses, All In One Place

Books and Technology in One Location

Story By: KAYLA BROCKITT Photos By: KAYLA BROCKITT & TRAVIS MCBRIDE

In need of a good book? How about a place to research your history project? Maybe you just want to go somewhere and read during lunch. Then the Media Center is the place for you.

The Media Center held more than just books. It also was the place to be for after school tutoring, E2020, to use computers, and the Career Resource Center. The CRC helped students choose what college they wanted to attend by scheduling open houses for colleges to visit students or helped them search for career options. The Career Resource Center also gave students the resources to find scholarship opportunities.

Something new that was added this year was the College Access Center. Students could have used this resource to get help with college applications, financial aid, and other college information.

"Not only is it any easy 'A', but I just like to help everyone with finding books," commented senior Heather Vanvolkenburg who worked in the Media Center.

At the end of June, the Media Center workers took on the job of preparing for the next year's students by checking in all of the returned books.

GETTING THE JOB DONE, sixth hour Media Center aides senior Heather Vanvolkenburg and Savannah Hinojosa check a returned Heath textbook back into the system.

WITH A SMILE junior Rebecca Ellis along with sophomore Autumn Navarre work on a class assignment in the Media Center during sixth hour for Mr. Perkin's Health Class.

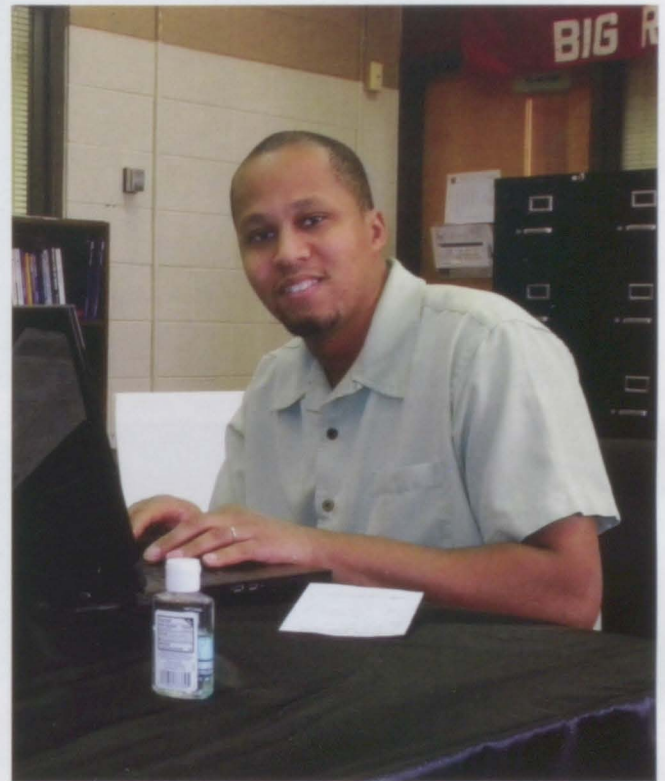

USING A NEW RESOURCE, freshmen Ian Heimbach and Dustin Cook take advantage of the computers in the Media Center during sixth hour to work on a class project.

SIXTH HOUR STUDENT AIDE Samantha Grinnell '11 does one of her many duties by looking up student information and fines for our Media Center Specialist Mr. Jeff McCabe.

CAREER RESOURCE CENTER advisor Mr. Murphy works on getting information on the TIPS program for seniors. This is Mr. Murphy's first year in this position.

GETTING THE PROJECT DONE, sophomores Ryan Barno, Tyler Vanbuskirk, along with juniors Michael Gossman II, and Carl Lemon work on their Health poster in the Media Center.

SEARCHING FOR OPPORTUNITIES, senior Jessica Klaas looks for scholarships in the Career Resource Center with the help of counselor Mrs. Janet Smith.

DISPLAYING THEIR CREATIVE SIDES, Lauren Huffsmith '12, Abigail Davis '12, and Chelsea Lovik '12 wear the masks they made for Mrs. Mary Jane Zauner's literature class.

MAKING HOLIDAY THEMED CARDS, Ashlynn Atkinson '13 and Ashli Allen-Ramos '13 draw designs and write each message in Spanish for Mrs. Renee Hinkley's sixth hour class.

MOLDING DOUGH TO MAKE pretzels, Janelle Mitchell '10 learns to make German cuisine for her class during a field trip to Frankenmuth, Michigan.

LENDING A HAND DURING Fiesta Day cleanup, Emily Ledbetter '11 sweeps the floor after she helped to clean off tables and reorganize the classroom.

SPENDING THE P-ELA MONEY they earned, Zachary Shoen '13 and Keyasha King '13 bid on items. Students received the money for being responsible and for academic achievement.

No Matter How You Say It

Pick Your Language!

Say what? What sounded like Greek to some was actually Spanish, French, German or sometimes Shakespearean English! Students not only took a language to fulfill the two year college standards for a foreign language and four years of English, but also to enjoy a global experience. "I decided to take Spanish because it was required for the college I wanted to attend," said Alexander Banker '10.

Spanish students not only learned grammar and language skills, but also tasted Spanish cuisine at Fiesta Day. Each student was required to make a dish. "Fiesta Day is an attempt to acquaint students with a variety of foods that are consumed in the Spanish speaking world," said Mr. Tim Owens.

German teacher Mrs. Deb Hesterberg believed that since we live in a global society, we should be connected in seconds with people around the world. French teacher Mr. Carl Mueller said, "I believe it helps students to understand English better, and teaches them many word roots."

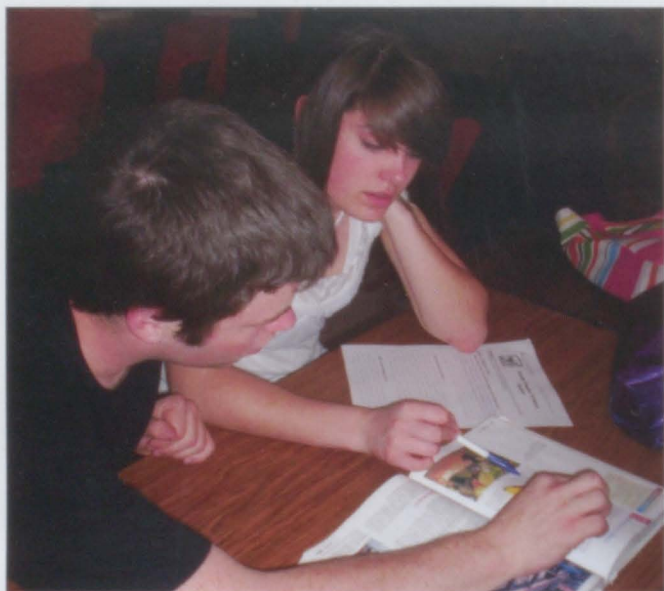

English language arts included many classes to cater to students' different interests and needs. ELA 9, 10, 11, 12, AP Language and Composition, AP Literature, and College Writing were all offered.

ON A TRIP TO Frankenmuth for German class juniors Jennifer Noble, Sieara Nies, Megan Herr stop in the basement of the Bavarian Inn. Students shopped, made pretzels and ate German food.

SETTING THE FOOD OUT, Colin Koester '11 and Olivia Burkhardt '11 prepare the dishes they brought for Fiesta Day in Mr. Tim Owens Spanish class.

STUDYING IN HEALTH CLASS, Carmen Pionk '11 points out the answer to Benjamin Currier '10 as they work together to complete their drug awareness packet, followed by a presentation.

Students Get Practical Advice

Physical Education and Health helped make sure kids knew how to be healthy and stay in shape. Physical Education was the one place where you could run, relieve stress, and get fit while still in school.

Blake Seely '10 said, "Honestly, I like that there's no book work and it's based on your own personal strength, endurance, stamina, etc. So if you fail the class, it's because you're not pushing yourself hard enough. The point of the class is to get stronger."

While there were fun and games involved with Physical Education, it also involved hard, strenuous work. Tyler Begley '13 believed that the state is right in making gym a requirement. "I think gym classes should be mandatory because it keeps you active and in shape, and if you have strong muscles and are in shape you will live a lot longer than you would if you weren't in shape, and it's also a break from classrooms," he stated.

Health is a required class for a reason. It helped teach the students about the body, how to be active, and the proper nutrition to stay healthy. These important elements gave knowledge that students will be able to carry with them for years to come.

GETTING BUFF, sophomore Alexander Zmolik deadlifts 135 pounds in the weight room. His goal is to lift 20 more pounds during his max deadlift exercise.

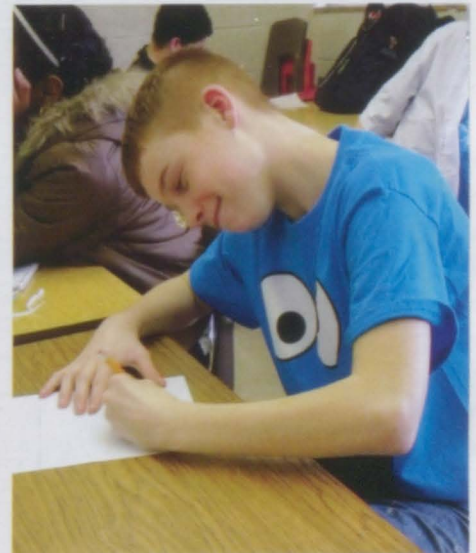

WEARING BEER GOGGLES, Freshmen Collin Smith and Jocelyn DuPuie are stumbling around the room experiencing what it's like to function while under the influence of alcohol.

IN REC SPORTS, Caitlin Clark '10 bumps the ball to the other side of the net to score a point for her team, while Amber Dunlop '10 and Zachary Crumb '10 stand ready.

WORKING OUT, Andrew Salazar '12 is hang snatching 95 pounds, while fellow classmate Zachary Pashenee '12 spots him in the Weights and Conditioning Class.

WORKING IN HEALTH CLASS, freshman Jonah Bell completes a worksheet that will teach him how to stay fit and be healthy for the rest of his life.

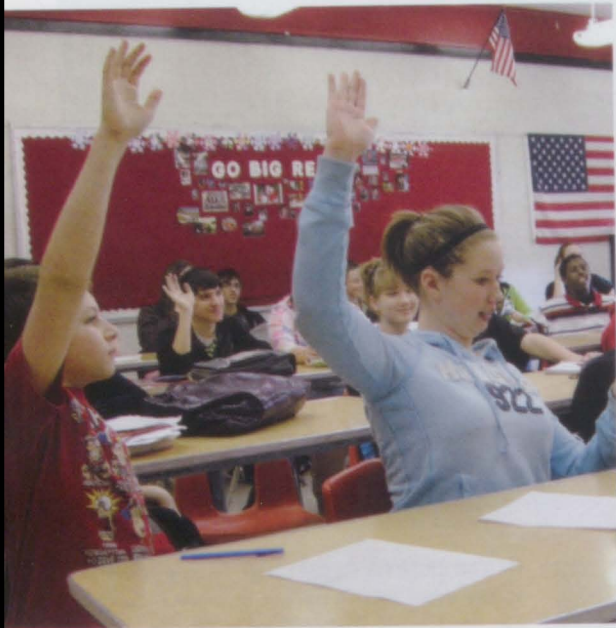

DURING BOYS GYM CLASS, freshmen Branden Houde and Michael Hilliker are serving up the ping pong ball while getting ready to rebound strong.

EAGER TO ANSWER a question in Mrs. Betty Myers sixth hour US History class, Russell Buffington '13 and Haley Werth '13 raise their hands.

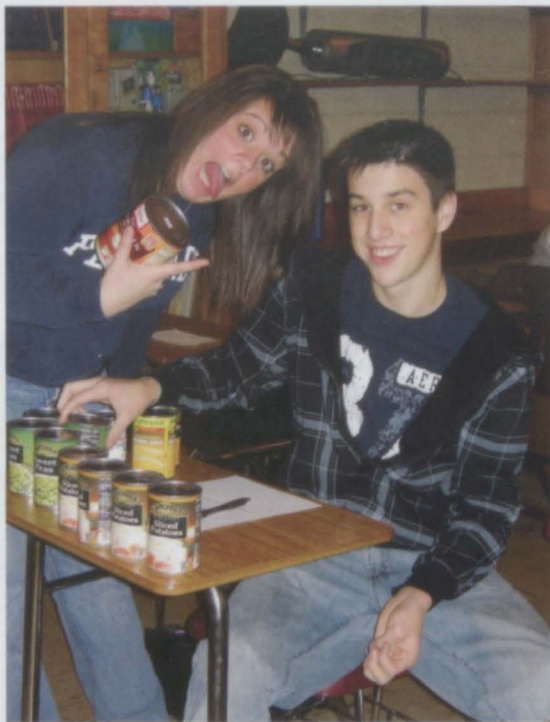

AFTER A CLASS DISCUSSION, Sandra Holloway '12 and Megan Remick '12 answer multiple choice questions on their worksheet in Mrs. Shelly Davis's class.

DEEP IN THOUGHT, sophomore Terez Watkins reads his United States History book to understand the material before he starts on his class work.

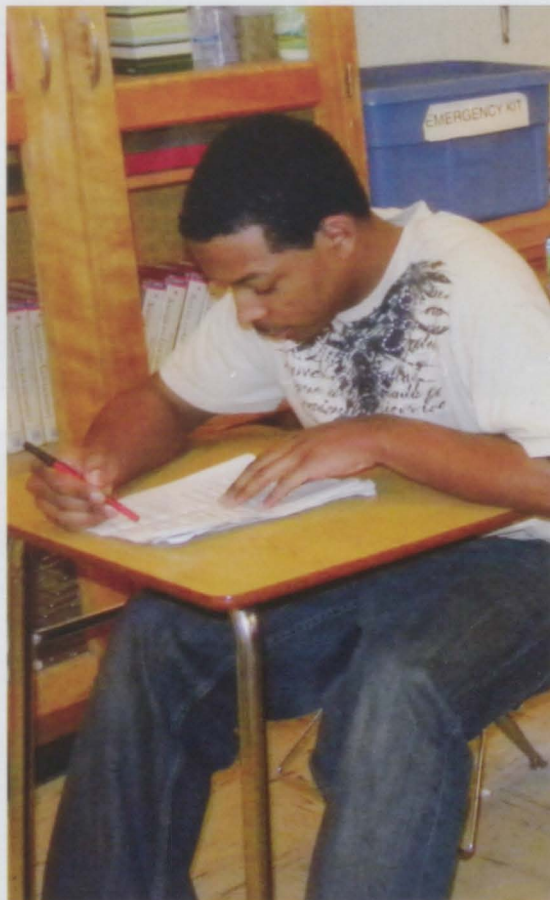

STUDENTS LEARN ABOUT GIVING back to the community as they count the total number of canned foods that were collected for the Student Council food challenge.

ORGANIZING FOOD that was brought in, seniors Sarah Schoettle and Michael Bouldrey, write down the totals. Their fourth hour class won the food drive.

JEDI COUNCIL MEMBER Henry Chen '10 tells the AP Government class why they should vote for Jonathan Cook '10 for the next president during their mock elections.

CONCENTRATING ON HIS ASSIGNMENT, senior Detrik Diggins learns how a bill is passed in Congress during Ms. Kris Pettengill's Government class.

Implementing hands on activities got students eager to step back into History or forward into Government or to learn about Economics.

Mrs. Trish Ford's AP Government class had the assignment of coming up with a mock political party and presidential candidate. The different groups ran against one another with the winner being voted on by fellow classmates. In Mr. Tim Schumaker's World History classes pupils learned about dynasties throughout the world by being assigned an era to research. Economics teacher Mrs. Michelle Davis kept class interesting with games of Jeopardy. "There were a lot of topics to touch on in one semester, but every time we started a new assignment or discussion, it was the best possible way I could have learned in a class. A variety of different homework assignments and games of Jeopardy made it a lot more fun to learn," said Elizabeth Turpin '12.

Underclassmen experienced greater variety in their choice of classes as they were allowed to take Government as an elective course. "I chose to take Government in order to understand the American concepts. I knew that despite me being an underclassman I could handle the pressure," said Mia Rodriguez '11.

PLANTING PIN WHEELS FOR Peace, Jonathan Cook '10, Megan Reina '10, and Madelyn Harris '10 represent the various art classes that took part in the activity.

ROLLING OUT HER CLAY, sophomore Kaitlyn Roller pays close attention to make sure her coils are the correct width in order to make her pot in Ceramics class.

From forming objects out of clay or drawing to constructing websites and blueprints of houses on the computer, the gift of creativity could be expressed in many ways.

"The main reason I like art is because [it is] something I can be proud of when I'm done with it," states Lee Jones '11.

In Mr. Scott Magnuson's art classes, they created projects such as glass mosaics and Chuck Close paintings. Some classmates enrolled in art for future college purposes. Art classes also taught pupils how to use shapes and to draw. "Before art class I could only draw stick figures, but now I can draw things and make them look more realistic," said Chelsea Minnie '10.

"I want to work on art pieces for senior portfolio for next year to hopefully create pieces for colleges next year," stated Ashley Fox '11.

Creativity was apparent in Mrs. Eugenia Fulton's Ceramics classes. Students had the opportunity to construct coil pots, face masks, and tiles, adding their own design to each creation.

Other art classes offered were Graphic Design and Drawing.

CUTTING HIS CLAY INTO a square, senior Brian Archibald makes his second tile, before he adds a design of his choice and they are fired for the first time.

POLISHING HER MOSAIC SCULPTURE, senior Marcella Bodeis adds the finishing touches on her master piece before it is put in the showcase for display.

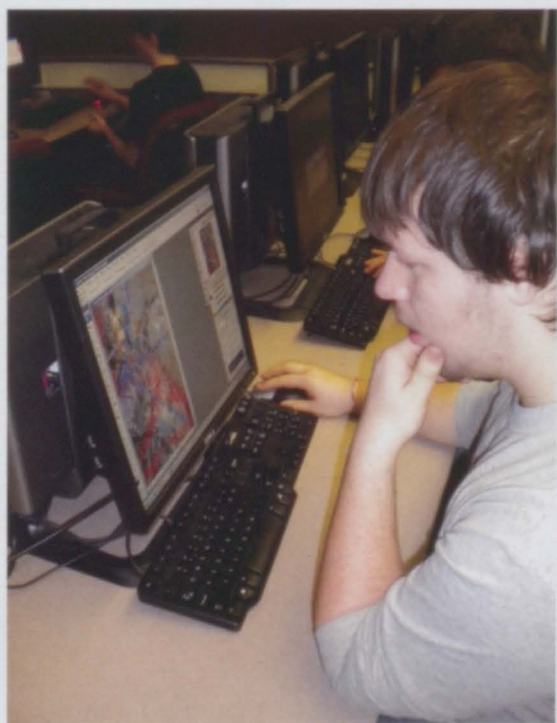

WORKING TOGETHER ON THEIR Ceramics project, seniors Taylor Hintz and Laura Fielitz put glazed tiles into place to complete the assignment.

GLAZING THE FRONT OF his mask, Willie Myers '11 completes the final preparation step before his project is fired in the kiln, for at least a 48 hour period.

WORKING HARD ON HIS photoshop assignment in Mr. Scott Magneson's Graphic Design Class, junior Tyler Waider concentrates on getting the details right.

WORKING IN HIS CLASS, George Still '11 enhances his skills as a business manager, in a special workbook that simulates managerial exercises at a landscaping business.

ANSWERING PHONE CALLS in the Main Office, Co-Op student Kerissa Donaldson '10 attends the switch board where she transfers calls to the proper places.

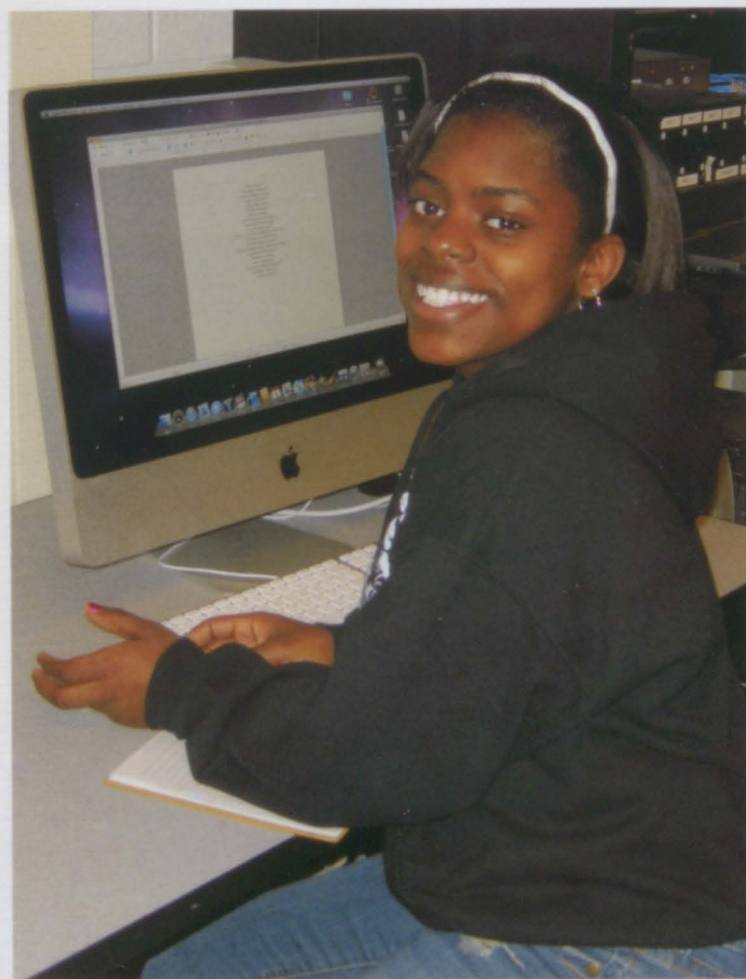

WHILE IN HER DRAFTING CLASS, senior Brittini Bartin concentrates on working on her Job Sheet, a list of exercises that help her to experience on-the-job-duties.

IN THEIR PUBLIC SAFETY class, juniors Kristoffer Jeavons, Aniela Kujda-Roche, and Christopher Curtis don their full firefighter gear as they hold tools used on the job for saving lives.

DURING THEIR BUSINESS CLASS, seniors Courtney King-Richey and Iesha Holt log into their computers to work on Paula's Plantscape, a six week project.

Students Learn to Be Leaders

Within the halls of Port Huron High School students got a taste of the business world through Marketing, Co-Op, and business classes. Students learned skills needed to become successful business leaders. Outside the walls of school, TEC students acquired the knowledge to perform in a business environment.

Co-Op students had their own specific duties. Kerissa Donaldson '10 said, "I answer phones, makes copies, and help with attendance letters in the Main Office." Some students worked for the school district while others worked for different companies.

Business Management classes gave students different career goals. "I would like to buy a cell phone company and run the business aspects," said Brian Archibald '10.

Marketing classes offered the opportunity to work in the school store during the first semester. "The school store is full of excitement every day. It's nice seeing your friends and talking to them..." said Jasmine Ross '10.

Students who attended TEC could take advantage of the 17 courses available like Business Management and Administration, Construction Trades, Public Safety, Digital Media Technology, Cosmetology, Robotics and Mechatronics.

LEARNING HOW TO MAKE beds in a hospital scene, Autumn McCallum '10, Elizabeth Erickson '10, and Lanitra Nickson '11 straighten out the covers on the beds at the TEC Center.

IN DIGITAL MEDIA CLASS, Brittney Turner '10 uses an editing software called Final Cut Pro to proofread a public service announcement, which gives her a feel for a career in digital media.

Tune your guitars and warm up those voices! Choir and Guitar classes gave students the chance to showcase their musical talents.

"Choir has changed the way I think about music. It is cool to be able to think about music in the way you do when you know how much work goes into it," commented senior Calvin Lowe.

The classes took part in four concerts throughout the school year. Sophomore Devan Martin said, "My favorite part of choir is the concerts, and the reason for that is because it helps me work on my stage fright and being able to show people something I enjoyed doing." Choir classes were not only a place to sing, but a place to learn about languages and different styles of music.

"I think I will play guitar for the rest of my life. I can't even go a week without playing my favorite songs," said Tiffany Weiss '10. Students had to own their own acoustic guitar in order to take the class. Musicians learned 15 to 20 new songs during first semester and took part in three concerts throughout the school year. "Guitar class is awesome because it teaches you what playing guitar is all about," said Brandyn Petty '12.

AT THE WINTER FESTIVAL, Dustin Swinson '11 and Katie Mertz '10 sing Baby It's Cold Outside. As the audience cheers them on, the dynamic duo put on a fantastic crowd pleasing show.

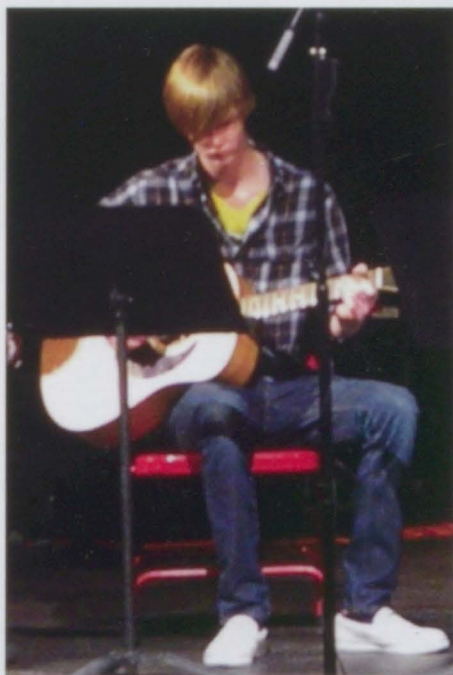

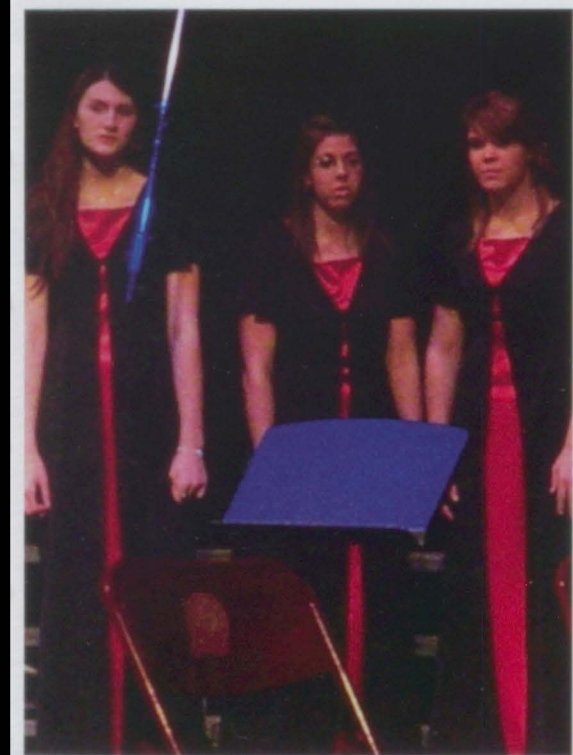

STRUMMING A CHORD, JUNIORS Aaron Trice and Justin Woolman play their guitars in Mr. Terry Beasley's sixth hour after completing a chords test.

ALONG WITH THE REST of the sixth hour class Timothy Dunlap '10 and Garrett Debell '12 get comfy in the hallway practicing and providing acoustics.

CONDUCTING FIFTH HOUR CHOIR, Mr. Terry Beasley helps students hit the notes. "Getting into the class always makes the class enjoyable for everyone," said Courtney Toton '11.

COMPLETING HIS SOLO IN the Performing Arts Center, Dale Frasier '10 plays in the Winter Guitar and Choir Festival. His performance earned loud applause.

BELTING OUT THE CHRISTMAS solo of Gesu Bambino, Jennifer Noble '11 dazzles the PAC crowd. Jennifer was a member of Concert Choir this year.

AT THE WINTER FESTIVAL Hali Mullinax '10 and Megan Torello '10, along with Catherand Thornsberry '11, sing Oh Holy Night to The holiday audience.

BOOING SANTA CLAUS DURING the rival dance competition, "Who" Brittney Turner '10 tries to get the audience to cheer for the Grinch to be declared the winner.

Two Hours to Murder

Performing Arts Liven the Stage

Story By: SAMANTHA INCH & JAZMYN THOMAS Photos By: MICAELA McBRIDE

The lights came up. There was no one on stage as scripted in Ax of Murder. Slowly the whole cast entered from both stage right and stage left. Who dunnit? The Performing Arts classes presented two comic mysteries this winter.

The first show was No Body to Murder performed by the second hour class. Second year students produced this play about a female police officer (Courtney Harris '12) who got murdered by Dr. McCandlish (Courtney Pesta '12). The surprise ending revealed that a bulletproof vest had stopped the damage. Calvin Lowe '10 said, "We would sit in a circle and say lines, and if anyone messed up we would start all over. This helped us memorize our lines." They perfected lines and mastered blocking, gestures and intonation.

Fourth hour used Ax of Murder, a tale of a haunted script with a play within a play. As the story began, the actors waited for the writer, then they reviewed the script; the shocked writer claimed that it was not the one he brought with him!

Stage manager Samantha Inch '11 said, "I was amazed at how well we pulled everything together and glad we ended up with a good turn out." Rookie sound technician Krystal Swift '10 said, "Helping people with the cues was fun." Both classes selected the humorous mysteries, so there were two hours to murder!

RUNNING LINES, junior Abbigale Smith and freshman Karly Schrader work through their skit in Ms. Denise McCaffrey's third hour Performing Arts Class.

ACTING AS "WHOS" FROM How the Grinch Stole Christmas, Mya Griffin '10, JaeAnna Dailey '12, and Erin Sterling '12 entertain the crowd as they dance at the Winter Assembly.

AFTER THE ACCOMPLISHMENT OF the play No Body To Murder, sophomore Jenal Ross, senior Kayla Edwards and sophomore Sarah Cuthbert gather together on stage for pictures.

CHRISTMAS TREE Katherine Webb '11 stops Santa Claus (Joshua Feher '12) so that the Grinch (Jacob Prout '10) can take his turn to dance.

FIRST YEAR PERFORMING ARTS members Mackenzie Cook '12, Sierra White '13, and Matthew Glover '12 rehearse a skit out of the book.

GOSSIPING ABOUT THE COUNTESS, (Sarah Cuthbert '12), Nina (Torrey McRobie '12) and Nancy (Marissa Eagle '10) take part in the play No Body To Murder.

FOURTH HOUR PERFORMING ARTS class concentrates on rehearsing their lines; senior Ashley Gracy and sophomore Joshua Feher prepare for their roles in Ax Of Murder.

Racket ready Ryan Rotondi '10, zones in on the ball as he prepares to clobber it back across the net to his Warren Mott opponent at a home game.

Pushing her adversary out of the way, Krystal Draveling '10, tries to gain control of the soccer ball against Lamphere at an away game. The ladies won the game 2-0.

Bending low, Kristin Dubay '11, digs the ball before it hits the floor to get it back across the net. In their second match-up against Marine City, the Lady Big Reds reclaimed a victory after the first loss.

Speeding down the field, Zachary Glenn '10 dribbles the ball toward the goal during the Port Huron Northern game. The team suffered a loss with a score of 0-4.

In perfect form, Alexis Howe '13 keeps her eye on the ball to complete a perfect swing toward left center field. Her teammates cheer her on with softball chants.

Armored with hours of tough practices, the athletes clobbered opponents while being cheered to victory. Everyone was all fired up! With three seasons of sporting fun, players geared up and over powered the opposition.

Predictably in the spring, players in track, softball, baseball, and girls tennis conquered the competition. Boys Track devoured powerhouses Dakota and Sterling Heights and improved their record from last season. The Freshman Softball Team had an perfect season, 15-0.

Following in the footsteps of predecessors, the football, golf, volleyball, soccer, cross country, and cheerleading teams powered past fall foes. The Varsity Football Team not only beat Northern for a third time, but made it to playoffs and claimed second in the MAC Blue Division. Boys Soccer commandeered a district spot against Northern losing the game 0-3 after a hard battle. Boys tennis had a strong season with some players standing out and setting records. Four year athletes Alexander Banker and John Kriewall were co-featured with the most wins for a doubles team, attaining 58 wins throughout their high school careers. Girls volleyball showed their skill and captured the MAC Gold Division title for the second consecutive year.

With predatory cunning, the winter athletes of hockey, basketball, wrestling, cheerleading, and bowling pressured the enemies to surrender. The Lady Icehawks delivered an outstanding season in its first year as an organized sport, combining hockey players from Port Huron Northern and Port Huron High. The ladies were the Division II champs. Ryan Barno '12 altered the cheerleading squad since he was the only boy on the team.

With clubs in hand and silence on the green, the Boys and Girls Golf Teams were off to the driving ranges. Even though they started off the season with some soggy courses, the teams never lost hope in the game.

They all had their favorite course for some reason or another, maybe it was because they had better luck there, or it was what they called their "home course." Nicholas Pitre '11, said "I believe that the best course I have played on is probably Red Hawk, because it was super nice." Shelby Baker's '10 favorite was, "Fore Lakes, our home course. Other teams can't wait to play Port Huron just to be able to play at the beautiful course, plus we get golf carts!"

The boys team ended their season with their Awards Banquet. Winning awards were Tyler Jackson '10: Big Red of the Year (Most Valuable), and Lowest Match Score of 41, Jordan Stockwell '10: Black River Award (Most Improved), and Garrick Hunger '11: Low Tourney Score of 84.

The ladies earned recognition of their own. Awards went to seniors Shelby Baker, Megan Torello, Tiffany Weiss, and sophomore Anna Burdick being named to MAC All Academic. Tiffany Weiss '10 was named Big Red of the Year. Megan Torello '10 and Tiffany Weiss tied for the most birdies in a season. Shelby Baker had the most pars in a season with 15, and Anna Burdick had the lowest total strokes in a season with 599. To finish off all of the excitement, they beat their record of seven wins, raising it to nine. For senior Megan Torello, the feeling of beating the record was, "a big surprise, I knew we were doing good, but I never thought it would be that great."

1 Chipping out of the rough, senior Tiffany Weiss aims to get back on track and finish the hole during practice.

2 Getting set up to putt, Megan Torello '10 lines up and calculates where to hit the ball, to sink the putt.

3 During practice, Mr. Juan Hernandez challenged the girls: whoever scored lower than he did, won dinner at McDonald's.

4 Chipping her way through the course, Megan Torello '10 tries to get par and help her team to victory.

5 Teeing-off, Anna Burdick '12 practices her long drive, to get ready for the game, so she can out drive all the others on hole 14.

6 Lining up on the tee, Shelby Baker '10 focuses to drive the ball onto the green and sink it under par.

Serving

Towards Victory

Story & Photos By: MICHAELA McBRIDE

"Hey, Hey, Hey let's go!" cheered the Junior Varsity Girls Team before they started a match. Coach Kathy Serazin led the JV team with the help of the captain Amanda Dubay '09 through all of their matches, while the Varsity Coaches Jeremy Rosenau and Lori Shymko gave Varsity players the confidence to win.

Self confidence brought an enthusiasm for competition. "Regina High School was our best match. They were good and they were very tough and brought the competition hard," said Caitlin Clark '10.

It all took effort; at practice the Varsity and Junior Varsity girls worked on drills to help with their foot work and enhance their agility. Running up and down the halls made their leg muscles and self-esteem stronger. Foot work on the courts took a lot of practice and time. In order to complete forehands and backhands the girls had to have sharp reflexes and had to keep their eyes on the ball, all the while moving their feet.

One method used to help the girls prepare was playing a game during practice. "Rock The Toboggan" is a fun game to play because it helps with your foot work and helps to control where you hit the ball; it's also fun because you get to mess around and actually have lots of fun at practice with your friends on the team too," said Brianna Boyce '12.

"Tennis can be a very intense sport, especially when you play a team at the same level as you. When you play on a doubles team, you and your partner have to work together, communicate, and most of all trust your partner," said Mackenzie Cook '12.

4 All of the JV girls sit in a pow wow in the hallway discussing the new techniques that they learned that day and getting to know each other a lot better.

5 Keeping her eye on the ball, Angel Doan '11 gets ready to smack it back over to her opponent.

6 "I am so nervous when I start a game because my serves are not all that great and some of the other schools are at a higher level than me," said Micaela McBride '12 as she starts the match.

Striding for Perfection

It was mid-January. A thin layer of snow and ice covered the track. End of the world, right? Wrong! It was time for pre-season conditioning. The boys met three times a week to get into shape by running the halls and doing plymetrics; warm-up stretches.

Spring Break was over, there was one day of practice until the first meet of the season. Then, the boys showed up Northern, leading the Big Reds to their first victory against the Huskies since 2003. "The win over Northern was long overdue. The difference this year in comparison to previous years was that we had consistent performances throughout the meet. No one event let us down; everyone did what they were capable of doing," said Coach Michael Pionk.

"My favorite meet was the Husky Relays because me, Alan Ellery, Theodore Kruse and Alexander Zmolik killed the 110's, and after the race we got a picture and one of the parents asked us what we were going to do next. We said 'We're going to Disney World!'" stated Ronald Monzo '10.

At the Lowell Spiess (PH) Relays, the Big Reds placed third.

While it maybe wasn't the highlight of the season with the intensity of the PH Northern game, the grand finale was the win against Dakota, always a strong competitor.

To better themselves, some athletes "came to the track and ran on Saturdays," said Tahj King '11.

"I was pleased with our season. We had a lot of positive growth from our younger runners as well as leadership from the upperclassmen," said Coach Bill Prout. "To finish 3-3 and beat teams like Dakota and Sterling Heights were huge confidence boosts for the program," said Coach Pionk.

1 Faster than the Dakota Cougars, Jonathan Zweng '09 passes the baton to anchor David Foster '10, during the 4x100 Relay. David was voted "Rookie of the Year."

2 "We beat the puppies!" bragged Justin Mitchell '12. At the PHN Husky Relays, Justin leaps high and far in the triple jump event. He received the honor of the Most Promising Freshman at the post season Awards Ceremony.

3 After taking the baton from Winslow Chapman '12, Marc Titus '10 sprints the Big Reds to the finish in the 4x100.

4 Taking the lead in the co-ed "PH Special" event at the Husky Relays, Ronald Monzo '10 hurdles to pass the baton off to the next runner.

5 At Dakota, the last meet of the season, Nathan Wilkinson '12 runs the 1600 meter. His best personal time was 5:30.

6 Set and ready, Daniel Boyd '12 tosses his second of five throws in the discus field event. His best throw of the season was 64' 11".

7 Keeping his eyes on the finish line, Anthony Aguinaga '12 races in the last lap of the 800 meter run.

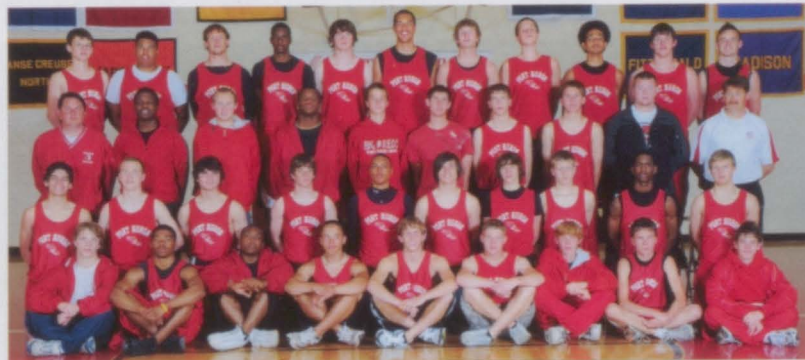

8 With two laps to go, Keith Sutton '11 steams around the curve of the second lap of the 1800 meter run against Dakota.

The starting blocks were set; the Lady Big Reds ran full force. With the first meet of the season away, weeks and weeks of practice led up to the cross-town championship meet.

The ladies left all they had on the track, losing to Port Huron Northern by a mere five points. This was the first loss to PHN since the spring of 1997.

The girls also participated in three invitationals, along with their normal meets. These invitationals gave them opportunities to compete with more than one team at a time. It also offered them a chance to win medals for their individual performances.

Role models played a major part in the girls' morale. They showed what extra effort can achieve. Adriana Jordan '12 said that Big Red Ciara Francisco '11 was her inspiration "because she's so, so, so, so pretty and so good at everything! And she just makes me try so hard! She's my role model." Some role models were professional athletes. "USAIN BOLT!!! Why... have you seen him run? He is crazy good," said Shelby Chisholm '10.

While the majority of running took place on the track, athletes found other ways to practice their skills. Chelsea Lovik '12 said, "I run when I'm late, or need to get somewhere fast. I feel if you need to run more, go for it, it'll help you in the long run."

"Overall, it was a tough season, but we saw lots of improvement from all the girls, and hope for the future," said Coach George Moger.

The ladies worked hard at their meets and practices, being opportunistic throughout the entire season, or as Coach Martin Prout would say, "Every way, every day, better."

1 At the Port Huron Northern Husky Relays, Hillary Oppertshauser '10 leaps in the triple-jump event. She was the only Lady Big Red to participate in the event.

2 Sprinting to the finish, Lyndzey Sanchez '10 leads off in the 4x200 meter relay at an away meet with Dakota.

3 Ready to receive the baton from Tyree Meadows '12, anchor Ashley Jones '11 runs through what was learned at practice.

4 In the air, Tarshawna Bell '12 leaps in the high jump event at an away dual meet against Dakota.

5 Practicing her aim, Jasmine Trice '10 runs through the steps for shot-put, before the Port Huron Northern Husky Relays.

6 Strong to the finish, Samantha Swarts '10 leads the Lady Big Reds in the 3200 meter run. Samantha also ran on the Cross Country Team.

7 Rookie Sabrina Behn '13 launches herself into the air during an away meet verses Dakota High School.

8 Opening her stride, Casey Bushy '10 speeds to finish up the last 200 meters of the 4x400 meter relay against the Cougars.

"Three strikes and you're out of the old ball game!" The highlight of the Varsity Baseball Team's season was defeating rival Port Huron Northern with a score of eight to seven, an improvement after last year's triple losses. At the MAC Blue Division, PH was ranked fourth, also an improvement. They increased the number of games won by practicing every week day. "Every day that we don't have a game we throw, hit, and do infield and outfield," stated Zachary Davis '12.

The Junior Varsity team also won eight out of eleven games played during the season. "I love the game of baseball and the history behind it. My motivation is my family because [in] my family, generations [have] played either baseball or softball, so my family can help me when I'm having trouble," stated Travis Hill '11. Like the Varsity team, they were proud of their victory over Northern. In fact, the JV repeated the win three times. The Junior Varsity Baseball Team also improved their skills by learning new plays, running, pitching, stretching, and throwing.

The Freshman Baseball Team had a record of seven out of fourteen games. The freshmen trounced the Huskies all three times they competed. The boys may have been new to the Big Reds baseball program, but many had been playing for a very long time. "I have been playing all my life. I love playing because when I am, I don't worry about anything. My dad also kept me going by being my coach for several years and teaching me the best he could," said Jeffery Macumber '11.

Coaches for all three levels made practice tough to get them competitive.

1 Strike 'em out! JV pitcher Mohammad Fayyad '10, practices with Tyler Rowbotham '12 before the L'Anse Creuse North game at Memorial Park.

2 At the away game at Morton Field, Catcher Tyler Rowbotham '12 bats for a homerun; he also plays infield.

3 Playing a game against Marysville, Dominic Schultz '11 and Zachary Hodgins '11, race to catch the pop-fly.

4 Get him out! Covering the base on the lead off, Colin Koester '11 prepares for the incoming throw.

5 Wind up! Throwing a fastball, Ashawn Butler '10 aims to strike the batter out. Ashawn also played varsity football.

6 Aiming at the catcher's glove, Pitcher Alex Carmichael '12 releases the ball for the strike. When not on the mound or batter's box, he works the outfield.

It was a great pitch for the batter, and then, all that was heard was the crack of the bat, and the player was off... With a racing heart, she made her way around each base of the dust-filled diamond; only 60 more feet to the comfort of home plate and the warm glow of victory.

"My Mom, Dad, two sisters and I would play every day for hours in the summer. They helped me to get better and better and to love the game," said Shelby Baker '10.

"My mom encouraged me to do softball; she coached Little League, and I was always with her during the summer," said Kimberly Miller '09.

Sue Falk coached the freshman team, along with Assistant Coach Trish Scheland. The coaches helped to bring the thirteen new players together to work as a team on a high school level. Captain Courtney Baker '12 helped lead her teammates to be the first freshman team to be undefeated with fifteen wins and one tie.

The Junior Varsity team was coached by Mr. Chris Kozlowski. The team had a mix of players: three freshman, six sophomores, and four juniors.

The Varsity team was led by Ms. Kris Pettengill, who has coached the varsity team for the past four consecutive years. The group has fourteen players split evenly with seven seniors and seven juniors. The Varsity team captains included seniors Hannah Jones, Melissa Delano and junior Kristen Morris.

Practices were almost an every day routine for the girls' softball teams, who worked all season long to improve their skills, consisting of base running, batting, and fielding.

1 Smacking the softball with all her force, Jenna Page '10 hits it toward third for a single and a run batted in.

2 Playing short stop, Jasmine Ross '10 scoops the softball up and fields it to get the easy out at first base.

3 Hustling at top speed, Amanda Lash '10 leaves second base in the dust to be called safe on the third base steal.

4 Ready in hitting position, Kristen Morris '10 gets her timing perfect before swinging at a thigh high pitch.

5 Keeping a steady eye on the pitch, Jade Rhone '12 makes contact for a single and advances the runner.

6 Making the play at second base, Danielle Herr '10 throws the ball, all the while keeping an eye on potential runs.

The sun beat down on the varsity soccer player as she kept the ball in front of her and headed to the goal. Right leg pumped and retracted, she released and catapulted the ball who a teammate to score the winning goal.

The season's biggest rivalry was without a doubt the Northern game. Sydney Jones '11 remarked, "The Northern game is huge because both teams want to win, and they both fight hard." The team triumphed against Northern. Kierstin Dewitt '09 scored a goal, and Kristen Warsinske '10 had an assist at the game. Shelby Conard '11 had her seventh shutout for the win. The team prepared for the game by reflecting on what skills they needed to work on from their previous game and perfecting them at practice.

The Big Reds had a victorious game against Lakeshore with a shutout win. Danielle McFadden '09 and Kierstin Dewitt '09 conquered by scoring one goal a piece. The Junior Varsity Team had a shutout victory against Port Huron Northern. It was a proud moment for goalie Shelby Conard '11 who said, "It was awesome! That was the first time in a very long time that had happened."

Many girls found the transition from league soccer to high school soccer easy. Caleesha Nutt '10 said, "In high school soccer everyone gets along better and plays better as a team." Another notable difference was some girls felt games in high school held a more important position than league games.

The Varsity team showed their appreciation for Iina Koskinen '09, a foreign exchange student, by having the Finnish word for football, "jalkapallo" printed on their t-shirts.

1 Concentrating on keeping the ball at a safe distance in front of her, Ashley Gracy '10 passes it to a teammate. "This season was amazing; we were the first girls soccer team to ever win a district game at Port Huron High."

2 Swinging her foot back to get the most momentum for a powerful kick, Joyelen Seppo '12 steadies her body before firing the ball away.

3 Fighting for dominance, Kristen Warsinske '10, and her opponent battle for control of the ball in a heated game against cross town rival Port Huron Northern.

4 Getting ready to shoot the ball past her competitor, Mackenzie Hagedon '11 glances at the ball one final time to get a position on it.

5 Running to get the ball before her opponent, Krystal Draveling '10 makes a sharp turn on the field to gain possession.

6 Preparing to catapult the soccer ball over her head for a throw in, Chandra Trice '10 looks for an open teammate.

7 Speeding aggressively past her opponent, Taylor Johnston '11 attacks the ball in a direct pass to teammate.

8 Keeping the ball away from her adversary, Sarena Ayotte '11 prepares to block the ball. The JV Lady Big Reds defeated PH Northern 5-2.

"I have been playing soccer ever since I was little, and I really hope it will take me somewhere. Soccer is not just running around for forty minutes trying to shoot a little ball into a big net. There is strategy behind it. You have to have a mind that can see plays unfolding in front of you and adapt to it. Nothing is planned and a lot of times a player has to play with what is given to them. Expect the unexpected."

WHACK! The sound of the ball hitting the racket was all that could be heard during the days when the Boys Tennis Teams were out on the courts. The teams daily practices and hard work paid off in the end, with both the Junior Varsity and the Varsity teams winning 18 out of 25 matches.

The Junior Varsity team's best game of the season was "against L'Anse Creuse, because the whole team went undefeated in that game," said Justin Woolman '11. The JV team defeated L'Anse Creuse twice during the season.

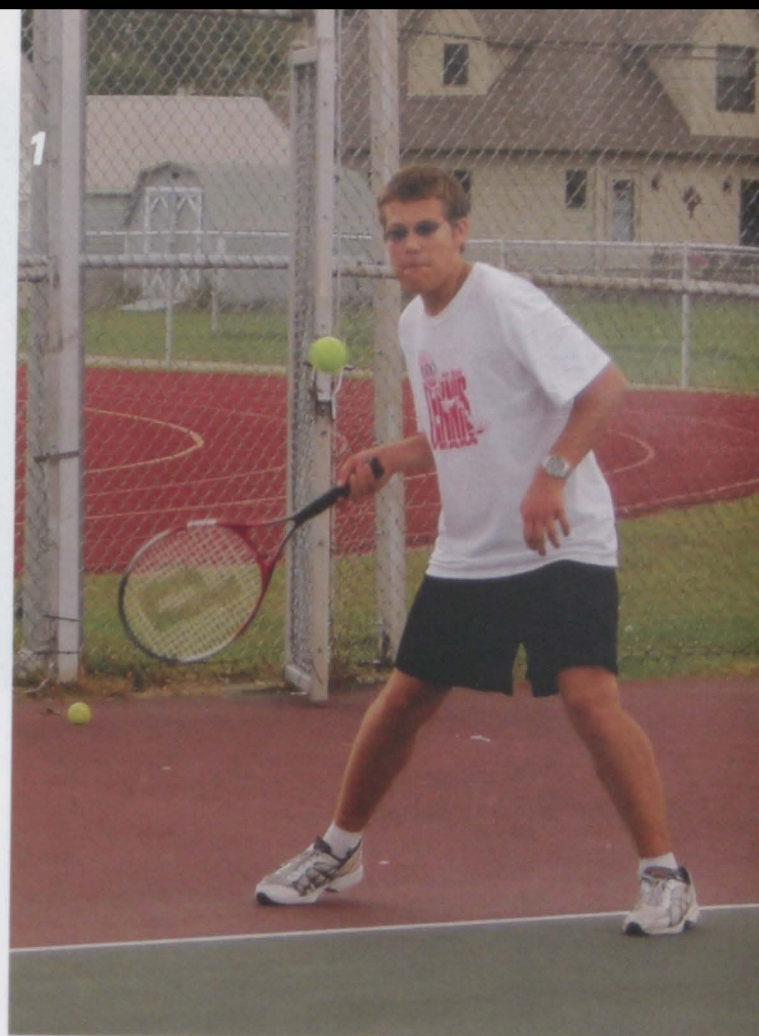

The Varsity Team came in fourth place in the MAC White Tournament with one win, one loss, and three ties. They came in second in the division tournament.

"Our Port Huron Invitational was our best [game] because we got first place," said Varsity player Henry Chen '10 who played doubles.

Players agreed that their JV team's best game was against the cross-town rival Huskies. "The game against Northern [was the best game] because it was a rivalry match an we won most of the matches," said Tyler Bieth '12.

Athletes on both the JV and Varsity levels earned awards. Each JV player received at least one JV or Varsity letter. "Getting recognition for being a good tennis player made me feel very proud and accomplished!" said Zebulon Hughes '10. Zebulon earned three JV letters and one Varsity over the last four years.

Four-year players John Kriewall '10 and Alexander Banker '10 set the all-time wins record for a doubles team with 58 wins. "My consistency and accurate serves [were my strengths]," John said.

1 Concentrating on connecting the ball to the racket, Junior Varsity player Edward Aurand '10 volleys at practice.

2 Swinging his racket, Varsity player junior Colin Koester attacks the ball during a match-up with the Marine City Mariners.

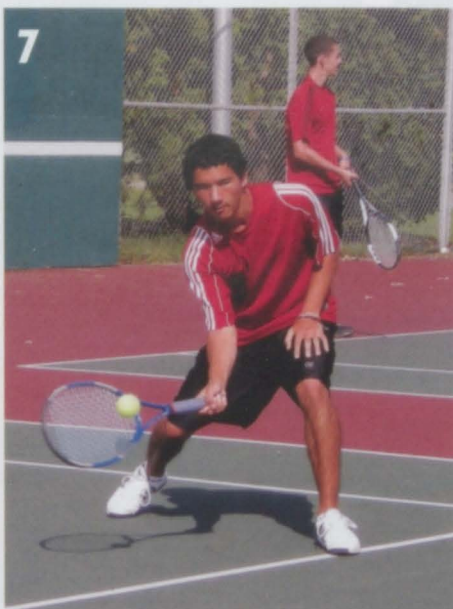

3 A look of determination covers Jordan Stockwell's '10 face as he smacks the tennis ball back across.

4 Hoping to win his match, Colton Currah '12 reaches out to hit the ball back to his Warren Cousino opponent.

5 "I play a lot of net, when my opponent lobs the ball, I smash it where he can't get to it," said Ryan Ostrander '10.

6 Using a forehand stroke, Junior Varsity athlete Zebulon Hughes '10 hits the tennis ball during an after school practice.

7 Going for the ball, Jonathan Cook '10 dips low to make contact before it hits the ground. The Big Reds tied Romeo 4-4.

8 Dominating the court, senior Joseph Bielecki serves the ball over the net during practice. Practices were held after school five days a week.

They were fast... ready for anyone who came down the field. They were the Boys Soccer Team.

Once summer break was over, conditioning and practice began. "Conditioning was hard but fun," said Matthew Ford '13, who played forward on the JV team. Going beyond the required practice, some athletes continued to train on weekends. The goal was to improve their dribbling and trapping skills.

In the down time runners reflected on their strengths to be sure to put their advantages into play at matches. "My best strength was running, because I'm fast," said JV player Dylan Anglebrandt '12.

With preparation from daily practices, by game time the guys on both teams were ready to compete. The Junior Varsity team had a victorious game against Port Huron Northern. "The Northern game was fun, because we beat them," said Justin Bonney '13. Although Varsity did not fair as well against the Huskies, goalie Miles Keller '10 had 16 saves in the game, and captain Zachary Glenn '10 said, "It was an intense [game]."

Varsity out kicked Marine City in a close 3-2 game at an early season competition. The team was down 2-1 in the second quarter, but David Jelinek '10 tied up the game. Daniel Stroyan '10 not only earned the first goal of the game but also made the game winning goal with 15 minutes left to play. Helping the cause with an assist was Theodore Kruse '11.

"Our team was great and we worked well together," said JV athlete Brandon Huntoon '12.

The team played an away game against Northern in another matchup at the Division I Districts, suffering a loss with a final score of 3-0.

1 Speeding towards the ball, Adam Lee '10 hustles away from his opponent to get possession of the ball.

2 Getting the ball away from his PHN opponent, Nathaniel Searle '12 awaits his adversary's next move.

3 Varsity goal keeper Miles Keller '10, kicks the ball out onto the field after blocking a shot at an away game.

4 As his opponent watches him, Joshua Jones '11 dribbles down the field before passing it to a teammate.

5 Going for the goal, Caleb Christie '11 keeps his eye on the ball before he sends it toward its destination.

6 Anticipating teammates wait for Zachary Dunham '11 to throw in the ball to resume the game.

7 Making contact with another player, Adam Runnals '11 strives to keep the soccer ball in his possession.

8 Competing against Northern, JV player Matthew Ford '13, tries to regain control of the soccer ball.

Into The Ground

Pain? It's got nothing on these Cross Country boys. Each ran miles and miles at meets and left other teams in their dust.

The Big Reds started early in August. Coach Mike Pionk led the team to good placements at the St. Clair, Romeo and Anchor Bay meets. Freshman Justin Bonney said, "[The meets] were fun and serious at the same time. Before the race it was serious, but after it was fun." Justin Bonney also played soccer, which contributed to his tip-top shape.

Before the meets would start, the athletes would stretch to get prepared for the race, and others would run to get rid of the nervousness. Although, when it came to heading to the starting line, the team all seemed to share the same enthusiasm for the 3.1 mile run.

Practices were tough for most, especially for starting freshmen. Austin Fetterly '13 said, "Conditioning was the hardest part at the beginning because I hadn't ran in a while." The boys paced themselves for six miles at every after school drill session, but sometimes pushed for even more. Exceptionally dedicated runners met at the school and practiced on Saturdays. They paced the track working on both speed and endurance. The guys not only trained on the track but ran throughout the surrounding area.

Some Cross Country runners viewed the team as a family. Jacob Prout '10 looked very depressed when he said, "I'm sad. It's my senior year. I'm going to miss the team, and the memories will live on." The team ran tough together, practiced together, and pushed each other. Outside of the running, they joked at practice and had fun together.

1 Leading the Big Reds to success, Jeremy Fry '10 and Sean Boyd '12 run one after the other to the finish line.

2 Maintaining the pace before passing his opponents, Jacob Prout '10 runs at an away meet.

3 Charging up the hill, Justin Mitchell '12 and Brent Miron '13 try to gain more ground on their opponents.

4 Keeping his eyes straight ahead, first year CC athlete Justin Bonney '13 runs at an away meet in Marysville Park.

5 Ignoring the pain, Graham Prout '13 stays ahead of the opposing runners behind him at an away meet.

6 With long strides, Nicholas Collins '10 calmly keeps a faster pace than the runners behind him.

7 Pumping his arms, David Jelinek '10 runs with no close competition behind at an away Cross Country meet.

RUN!

Forest Run!

Story By: CHELSEA MIINNIE Photos By: TRAVIS & MICHAELA McBRIDE

Do you think sprinting a mile is tough? Well, the girls Cross Country athletes ran 3.1 miles at every meet and 2-6 miles at every practice... RESPECT THE RUNNERS!

Every day after school the girls trained unless they had a meet. Coach George Moger instructed them to always work as hard as they possibly could and keep going even when they felt tired or sore. "I liked the way Coach Moger ran practice and motivated us before meets. It was tough, but he always pushed us to do well and praised us for our hard work," said senior Jenna Page.

At each meet, typically the girls were nervous. Afterwards, when the worries were over, they would do things such as eat, socialize or better yet... swim! At the Algonac meet some of the girls on the team went swimming in the river that ran along the path of the meet. Many of the runners had earned their PB (personal best) in Algonac. The team also came in third place at this meet.

Captain Molly Rathje '10 and a few other girls easily stayed at the front of the pack in practices. Some of the new runners tried hard to keep up and follow their lead. As the season went on, the newer runners improved, and the team ran closer together without having large gaps between teammates.

What was the most common thing heard by the runners from people while they were running? "Run Forest, run!"

The athletes received awards at the end of the season. Recipient's included Molly Rathje '10 with Most Points, Most Improved was Haley Emery '13, and Big Red of the Year went to Madelyn Harris '10.

1 Pumping her arms and keeping focus, senior Madelyn Harris runs at a maintained pace during a meet.

2 Showing great speed and endurance, sophomore Stacie Hegler takes the lead from a Yale competitor.

3 With other girls trailing behind, Samantha Schwartz '10 strives to stay ahead of the other runners.

4 With great intensity, freshman Haley Emery out-paces a competitor from Anchor Bay High School.

5 As quickly as she can, Courtney Harris '12 pushes to maintain her advantage as she races to the finish line.

6 Exploding into a sprint, Torrey McRobie '12 keeps her eye on the finish line at a Cross Country meet.

7 Coming to the end of the race, Jessica Tippie '12 lengthens her stride to earn a good finish at a race.

8 Not allowing the runner behind her to catch up, Krystal Draveling '10 stays ahead and keeps a safe distance between them.

Passing

On A Dime...

Story By: TAYLOR BRUHNS & JUSTINE GOSTINGER Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE & KAYLA BROCKITT

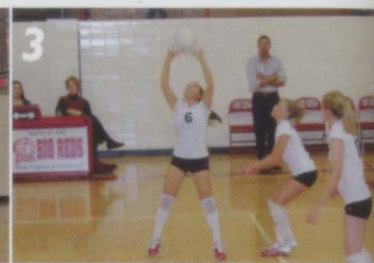

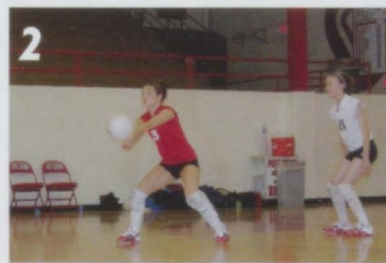

Or, in layman's terms, making that perfect pass across the net. For some, this season was their first time playing volleyball, but for others this sport was anything but new. Emily May '13 stated, "I went to PHHS and PHN camps every year since I was eight years old. I played on the seventh and eighth grade volleyball teams at Chippewa Middle School. I've also been doing the Rising Stars AAV Team for two years now; I've just loved it and the intensity of the game for a long time".

Of course, each player had a personal best game. JV player Jalissa Zuege's '13 best game was "the game against L'Anse Creuse North. Our first home game was my best game because we beat them by a lot. We played as a team; we all played very well, and we all had a lot of fun!"

Others on the Junior Varsity team agreed their best game was against L'Anse Creuse North, but most of the freshman team, like Taylor Marsh '13 said, "[My best game so far] was the one against Marysville at the PH Tournament because they are a strong team, and we went into overtime with them. Even though we lost, the team played the best together during that game; it kept you on your toes."

Why join? Hannah Sersha '13 said, "Being on the team and playing the sport that I love, and being around all these awesome girls who share the same love I do." Agreeing, Arica-Rae Apsey '13 said her favorite part was, "making new friends."

During their first hour of practice, the JV and Freshman teams conditioned with the Varsity team, doing relays, footwork, and jump training, sometimes even scrimmaging the Varsity team. They also practiced blocking, tapping and serves.

1 Vaulting off the gym floor, Courtney Corby '12 smacks the ball as opponents prepare to block the spike.

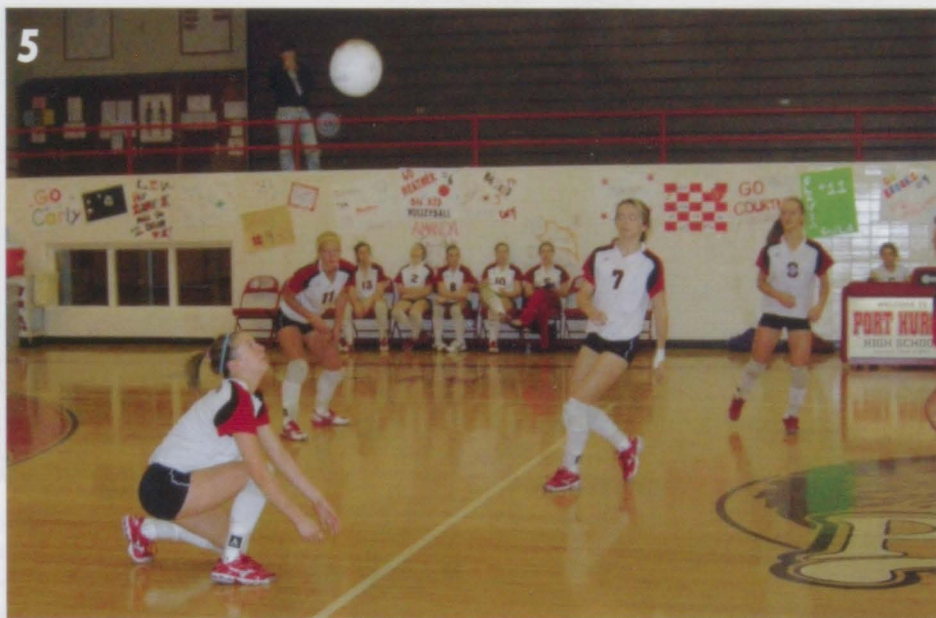

2 Bumping the ball, freshman Abby Torello aims to score a point for the Lady Big Reds vs. Port Huron Northern.

3 Setting up for the hit, Molly Aguinaga '13 makes the return. Lady Big Reds destroyed the L'Anse Creuse Lady Creusers, to win the match.

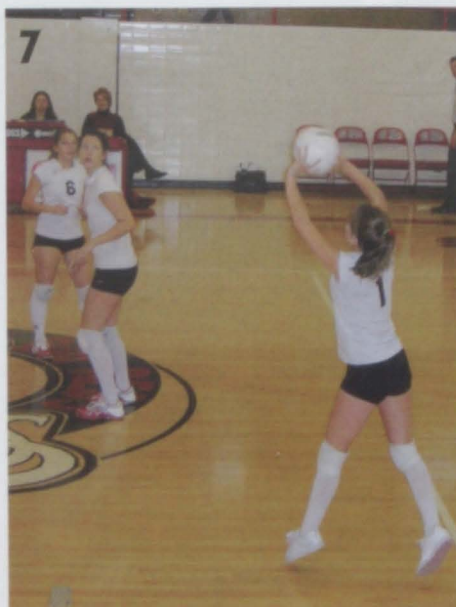

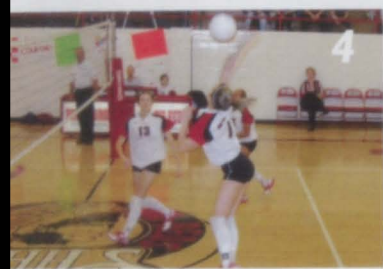

4 Blocking the attack, Courtney Corby '12 jump-sets the ball to earn the point, defeating the Marine City Mariners.

5 Ducking low, Taylor Cook '13 keeps an eye on the ball as she prepares to bump the volleyball.

6 To keep the ball alive, Jalissa Zuege '13 dives with Jennifer Reid '12 backing her up. PH defeated Marine City, to earn the honor of MAC Champs.

6

7 With a one-foot lead and a hop, Carrie Gamble '13 sets the ball for a teammate to spike.

8 To pass the volleyball back to the other side of the net, Allison Sanchez '12 takes a leap into the air.

Control the Court

League winners, the girls Varsity Volleyball Team ruled the competition with only one league loss.

Starting the season at the low end during early tournaments with only a single win over Walled Lake Central, the girls gained momentum before the mid-point and captured over 50 percent of the total victories. These athletes were still not satisfied with their performances or the win-loss ratio. As the team headed into the final third with league matches on the line, they flipped their plays around after their L'Anse Creuse North loss, and spiked up the total wins to over 75 percent, starting with success against Grosse Pointe North at home.

Dominating the court, the ladies worked to become even better. Coach Meghan Knoebel said, "Our team strategy is to control our side of the court, effort, and technique." The girls great season was attributed to all of the practice and drills they sweated through, like three-to-rotate conditioning. Coach Knoebel said, "I think we were successful, but at the same time, can see the next level to strive for."

Memorable games included a league win against Marine City, when Jade Rhone '12 "had a lot of kills." To the coach, the L'Anse Creuse North loss stood out because, "it was a terrible game, but the girls showed great character and pulled through; it was a turning point." The girls came together as a team.

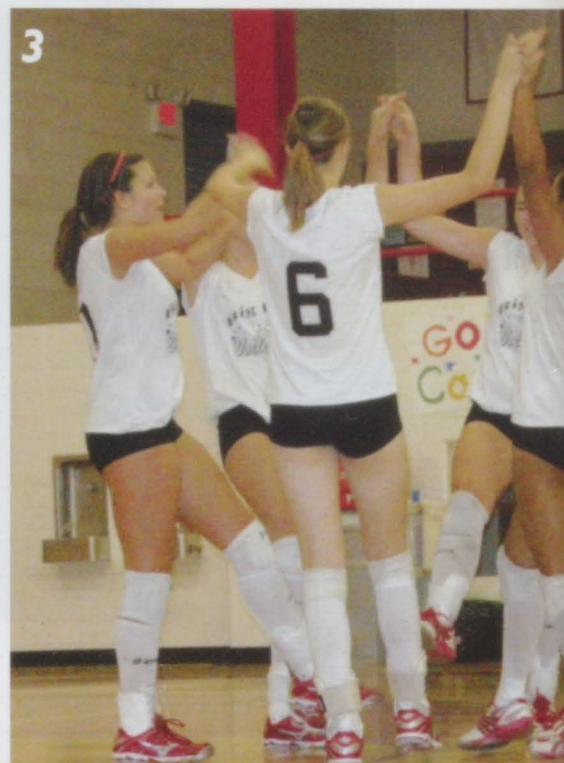

Awards went out to Amanda Goodwin '12 as the Most Improved athlete; Carly Sansone '10 earned the Most Valuable honor; Jade Rhone '12 was awarded Big Red of the Year, as the all around go-to player; and the Spark Plug award was captured by Heather Weiss '12.

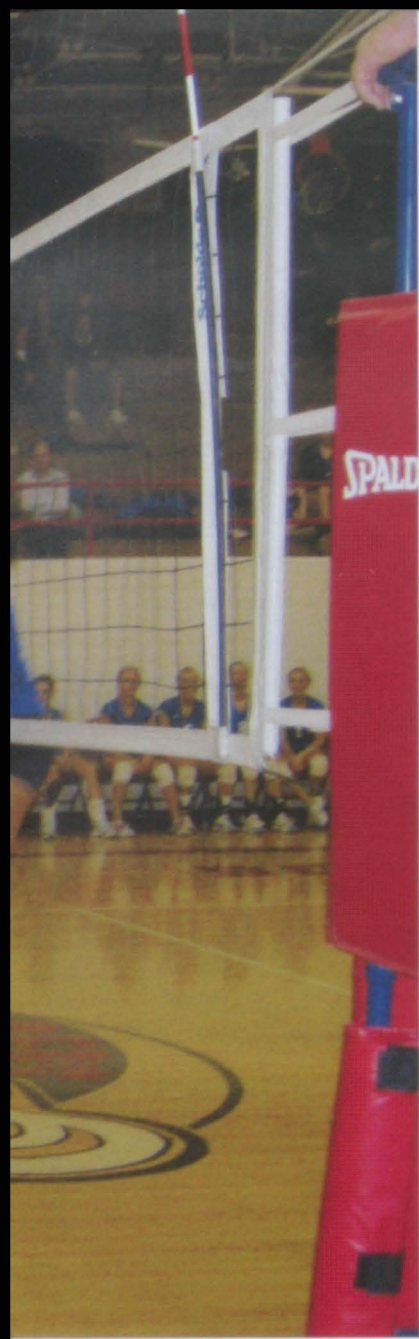

1 All the action is at the net as Heather Weiss '12 and Taylor Johnston '11 form a human wall to block the hurtling sphere.

2 In perfect form, Carmen Pionk '11 receives the ball and uses the well-practiced techniques to set it to her teammates.

3 With voices raised, the Lady Big Reds formed the pre-game huddle to pump up their energy through camaraderie.

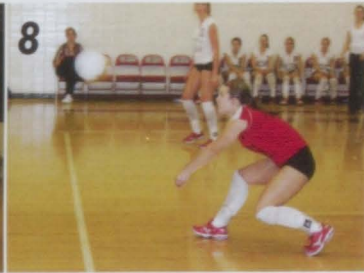

4 Ready at the net, Amanda Goodwin '12 leaps up for the spike that throttles her waiting opponents.

5 The descent is rapid, so Courtney Baker '12 digs for the ball while Brooke Haggerty '10 awaits the outcome.

6 Getting down and dirty, Olivia Burkhardt '11 digs in for the shot during a game against Marine City.

7 Stretching to full height and beyond, Maeghan Murphy '12 smashes the ball for the powerhouse spike.

8 Steady and ready, Carly Sansone '10 holds form as the speeding ball descends for her to receive.

Throwing for Victory

Story By: JANELLE MITCHELL & TAYLOR BRUHNS Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE & KAYLA BROCKITT

He drops back, pump fakes, looks for his receivers down field, launches it...TOUCHDOWN, BIG REDS!!! Freshman quarterback Marshaun Lothery's favorite thing about football was "throwing the ball, completing a pass, scoring, and my coaches, they are cool."

Football players got energized for a game in different ways. Austin Boughner '12 got pumped by "flirting with random girls." DeRon Forbes '13, on the other hand, prepared for a game "by getting into a big crowd and yelling and jumping around."

Players decided to participate in the sport for a variety of reasons. King Thomason '12 got involved because "it's fun being with my friends all the time. Plus, I get to let some anger out by hitting people while I'm at it." Dominique Cortez '13 played the game because of "the team work and the hitting, you will never ever win if there isn't team work, and the hitting is just fun."

The cross town rival game against Northern was Kyle Burnham's '13 favorite game because "we were down 0 to 21 at the half, but picked up our intensity and started coming back."

[Dakota was a good game because] "I scored my first touchdown and they only scored once, for the second half PH scored five touchdowns," said Khalondre Haskins '13.

At practice the Freshman and Junior Varsity football teams ran drills. Freshman Nicholas Atkinson remembered drills such as Oklahoma's, Green Bays, Team Gasers, and tackling drills.

While the freshman completed those drills, the Junior Varsity sweated to similar ones. Junior Varsity player Auston Riley '13 said, "I played offensive line, so we hit the seven-man, went over plays, and also went through shoots."

1 Freshman player Anthony Edwards speeds offensively for a touchdown with defenders far behind him.

2 Breaking away from Northern defenders, freshman Randy Trice makes his way down the field.

3 Trying to recover a fumbled ball, Alan Rapson '12 tries to outrun his opponent to earn possession.

Charge It

And Score

Loads of hard-earned confidence drove the Varsity Football Team out and rushing to start the season with a three game winning streak, grabbing victories over Port Huron Northern, Fraser, and East Detroit.

For three straight years the team annihilated Northern to claim sole possession of the Brick Fowler Trophy and the city's bragging rights. Simon Vargas '10 said his most memorable game was against Northern because, "we beat them three years in a row, and as a senior, defeating our cross-town rivals, and showing that there is only one Port Huron team, and that's us, the Big Reds."

Of course, every player had that special game for his own personal reasons. For Justin Black '12, his most memorable game was, "Fraser, because I threw for 318 yards, threw four touchdowns, and had one running, and to top it all off, we also got the exciting victory in overtime."

The team participated in 10-for-the-Title which was ten days of conditioning before practices officially started. "It was how you found out who really wanted to play and who the hard workers are," said Alexander Zmolik '12.

Football players trained with the purpose of winning the division title. "To get prepared for the season the team started practicing August 10, doing two-a-days that lasted for four hours ending around 5:30-6:00 pm, which sucked, but as you can see, it paid off, and practices went until the season was done," said Lorenzo Tanner '11.

Despite being eliminated by Grosse Pointe North in the playoffs, they celebrated a great season with a party.

1 Sprinting down the field after getting a reception, Mitchell Petoskey '10 dodges two tacklers to gain more yards.

2 While getting a block from Glen Hartman '11, Steven Sawher '10 concentrates on running in for a touchdown.

3 Cradling the ball, Marc Titus '10, runs toward the end zone away from the Northern defense-men.

4 While powering for extra yardage, senior David Foster gets brought down by the Anchor Bay defense.

5 With a last effort, Jarret Chapman '11, throws the ball before getting blocked by the blitz.

6 At the line of scrimmage, Justin Black '12 calls the play before the ball is hiked and a touchdown is scored.

7 Steaming past the 40 yard line toward a first down, the Big Reds are blocked by the Rambler defenders.

8 Quarterback Justin Black '12 scans the field for an open player to complete the pass. The Big Reds dominated Fraser, 34 to 27 in overtime.

Cheering for Victory

Story By: MICAELA McBRIDE Photos By: TRAVIS & MICAELA McBRIDE

The Cheerleaders returned this season motivating the crowd to stand up and cheer their team to victory.

The Varsity, Junior Varsity, and Freshman teams went through Cheer Camp to learn new stunts, harder tumbling techniques, and details in order to make the team better; most of all they made new friends.

"My favorite part of cheer is stunting. I love to create new stunts and show everyone all the cool things cheerleading has to offer. It also builds my strength, and I also love making new friends," said Ciara Francisco '11.

The Cheerleaders took weekends out of their summer vacation to get together to learn new rounds and stunts, such as reverse liberties and one-man-stunts in preparation of competitive season. More back handsprings and back walkovers were perfected. "I got my back walkover last year, and I was so excited. I almost have my back handspring, it's just the fear of flipping backwards that's stopping me," said Micaela McBride '12. For the PH-Northern pep assembly, the Varsity Cheerleaders trained to display a new stunt called the belly flop, which is when three stunt groups connect together to launch flyers.

On July 14, the Varsity Cheerleaders had a car wash at McDonald's as a fundraiser to buy new uniforms for competitive season. "The car wash was fun! We called it McCheer. I washed like five cars because they were really dirty and after that I didn't want to wash them anymore. So I went and stood by the road with my awesome sign and I told old people to come and get their cars washed sparkly clean. It was amazingly fun," said Emily Ledbetter '11.

1. What is your favorite part of cheerleading? Why?
2. Which season do you like better, football or competitive? Why?

Amber Dunlop '10

1. "I love being around the team, they make it fun and our coach is awesome."
2. "I definitely would have to say I like football season more. I just love getting the crowd pumped up and see all the school spirit everyone has at Port Huron High School."

Chloe Schmitt '13

1. "Flying. I love it when we stunt because I feel like I'm getting better and better every day."
2. "Well, I really haven't done competitive season yet, but I'm looking forward to it!"

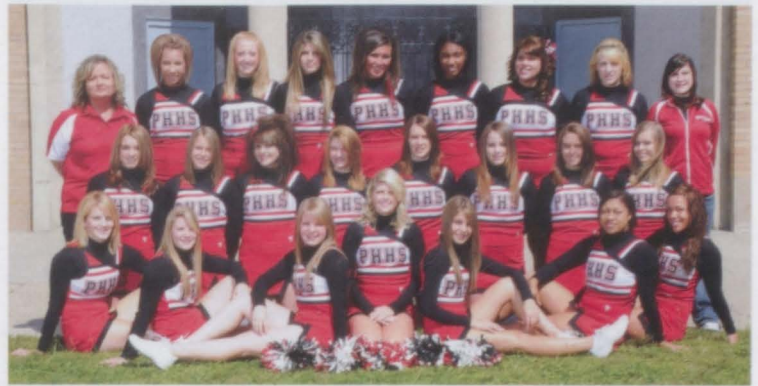

Kathryn Kotecki '10

1. "My favorite was going out there and cheering. It made me feel like all my problems went away as soon as I take the field! Being loud is what I like to do, so it was great that I made the team. The girls were amazing."

Jennifer Hubble '11

1. "Definitely the sleepovers because it's fun to get to know the girls outside of cheer and it's a fun way to goof off."
2. "I love both seasons, but competitive season is personally my favorite. It's great to see what the other schools have to offer; we get to do more stuff than we do at the football games."

Working As One...

What gets the fans pumped up at the boys basketball games? How about the girls cheerleading squads? They got the crowd excited and energized to inspire the Big Reds teams to one goal-victory.

Starting out the competition season this year, the Varsity and JV cheer teams practiced hard to learn three rounds. Their first trial was home, and all the cheerleaders were excited to host their very first home competition in years. It took them hours to put down mats and place tables in the gym for the judges. They also had to vacuum and clean the mats the morning before all the other teams arrived for the competition. JV cheerleader Courtney Warner '11 commented, "I love competition! This is my favorite season, and my favorite part is Round Three because I love stunting. I love the end of the competition when all of the teams come together and play games as one whole team."

At the beginning of the cheer season the Varsity team started out with 28 girls and then ended the season with 22 girls. Losing team members on a competitive cheerleading team is like losing a piece of a very complicated puzzle. "When we lost a girl it made it tough, only because we had to teach a new spot. Usually when someone quit there was less drama, and we had more fun. Our competitions were actually better. Scores went up, for some reason every time," stated sophomore Michele Niehaus.

At the end of the season the Varsity cheerleading squad went to Districts at Herbert Henry Dow High School with thirteen other squads. They went up against very tough teams.

4 "If you want to win, you got to yell with all your might," cheered the JV cheer team to pump up the crowd and get them excited for the game.

1. Do you like going to competitions? What part of them is your favorite?

2. Explain the type of team work you have on your team?

Brooke Haggerty '10

1. "My favorite part of competition is representing our school in front of everyone."

2. "Without teamwork there is no cheerleading. It is about 26 girls coming together as one team to cheer for our school."

Christiana Elling '13

1. "I love going to our competitions. My favorite part is just going and seeing all the different cheerleaders, and how their squads compete and have team work."

2. "We all get along and help each other when we're stuck or when we get frustrated. Everything we do has teamwork."

Aubrey Biga '12

1. "YES! I love them. I make friends with all the other teams and my favorite part is the games before awards."

2. "We all depend on each other. They aren't lying when they say, "You're as good as your worst player. Everyone contributes."

One Goal...

A Perfect Season

Winning a game takes a combination of skills. Winning all 20 took synergy. The perfect dribble, the short, hard pass, the timing of the lay-up, and the sinking of the ball into the hoop; this is what it took to be a JV Lady Big Red.

Leading to their flawless JV season, the girls worked for years. Krysten Kean '12 said, "I started playing basketball because just from watching, it looked like fun. I tried it out and it was great. I just kept playing after that."

JV player Jade Rhone '12 commented, "My best game so far was against Marine City; I scored 32 points."

The freshman players also caught the basketball bug. Caitlin Ellis '13 proclaimed, "I've been playing since second grade; I played for a recreation team."

Some athletes have what could be considered a ritual they do before each game. Listening to music seemed to be the most common means of getting pumped up before a game. Freshman Kayla Kelly stated, "I listen to a song, and it's always the same song."

For the freshman girls it was common to hear that one of their best games was against Mallow early in the season. "I think my best game was when we played against Mallow; we played really hard defense and were very confident," exclaimed Sha'ron Becks '13.

To prepare for games, the teams trained warm-ups and basketball techniques like running, shooting, defense drills, and scrimmages. Both teams practiced for an hour and a half on non-game days. "We practiced long and hard to have a good team. I love my team," said JV player Marissa Williams '12.

1 With ease, Rachel Ochoa '12 shoots the ball toward the basket with her team members prepared for the rebound.

2 With the ball in their possession, the girls race down the court in an attempt to sink the ball into the net.

3 After a foul against the resisting team, Jade Rhone '12 carefully takes her spot at the free-throw line for a chance to earn her team yet another point.

4 Taking off down the court, Bridgette Johnson '12 manages to keep the ball close to prevent a steal from Northern's defense.

5 Leaping up, freshman Taylor Marsh shoots the ball as Northern players surround her. The Lady Big Reds won 58 to 28.

6 Doing her best to prevent the other team scoring a point, Valarie Fournier '13 successfully blocks her opponent from passing the ball.

7 After being fouled, Courtney Baker '12 stands at the free-throw line, preparing to add to her team's lead.
8 Dribbling the ball, Brandy Rosales '11 works to keep the ball away from her Northern opponent.

What was the highlight of the season?

Winning our final game and becoming 20-0. In that game everyone got a fair amount of playing time and we all contributed to our win. And also getting pulled up to Varsity.

What game showed your strengths the most?

The Christmas tournament and we were in the championship game. It was a close game and I stepped up and got some steals and helped bring up the team's intensity so we could win the game.

Who inspired you?

My family inspired me to play, because we all spent a lot of time together playing sports.

Four-tenths of a second left on the clock: the atmosphere was intense. SWOOSH!!! The crowd went crazy as number 11, Adriana Jordan '12, sank the winning shot in at the PH vs PHN home game. The team trailed during the first three quarters but pulled it together in the end.

It all started when girls of all levels started conditioning and eleven girls met the requirements to be on the varsity team. The girls varsity coach, Mr. Jeremy Rosenau stated, "The girls have to have the necessary skills to be able to play varsity basketball. We also look closely at grades and attitudes as well."

Almost immediately after tryouts, the girls started their season, meeting new friends and new teammates. Number 14, Chandra Trice '10 shared, "Being on the basketball team is really great. It's like having a second family. It's a great feeling knowing your coaches and teammates care so much!"

Molly Rathje '10 said, "My favorite part of practice is when we scrimmage; it's fun playing with the other girls and learning everyone's styles and coming together. Basketball can be challenging at some points, but brings you closer to quite a few girls making your high school career more enjoyable."

The ladies earned a home victory against St. Clair Shores. The team led the whole game and held the opposing team to six points the first half. Forward Heather Weiss '12 led in scoring with ten points. Adriana Jordan '12 chipped in eight points.

During a MAC Gold game against Marysville, the Lady Big Reds put up a good fight but lost 49-44. Leading scorers were Megan Stone '10 with sixteen points and Maeghan Murphy '12 with eight points.

1 After taking the ball down court, Maeghan Murphy '12 punk-fakes her adversary as she searches for an open teammate.

2 After being fouled, Heather Weiss '12 squares up with the free throw line as she prepares to take her first shot.

Drive to the Basket

Story by: TAYLOR BRUHNS Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE

There were ten seconds left; all was silent on the court. Freshman Evan Wagner stood on the free-throw line, ready to sink those two shots that would determine the outcome of the game. Fingers were crossed, and with the swish in the basket, the gymnasium erupted into ear-deafening applause, while Fraser sank their heads in defeat.

The Junior Varsity and Freshman teams were made of both new and experienced athletes. "My brother and I are very competitive. When we were younger, we used to play each other every night. I used to get so upset when my brother Jarret would beat me, so I've been working ever since then to get better. I like the feeling of being a winner, and I like dominating my opponents," said JV player Mark Chapman '13.

To make sure they were ready to face their opponents, the two teams worked on the timing of their plays to improve real game situations.

Players listened to music and watched videos of their favorite athletes to get pumped and ready to go. For Montez Jackson '12, that meant Kobe Bryant. For King Thomason '12, the sound of Lil' Wayne got the adrenaline going.

"[My favorite part of coaching] is overcoming adversities, and enjoying success," commented Freshman Coach Carl Mueller, who has been coaching teams for 27 years. "I make sure they are first mentally prepared, then we get loud. This is a tremendously talented group," he said.

For two consecutive years, Kevin Landschoot has been coaching the Junior Varsity boys. He has earned All-Macomb Area Conference Red Division and All-Area honors in basketball.

1 To score two points, freshman Evan Wagner jumps to the basket, leading to a win against the Huskies.

2 With deep concentration, freshman Jamie Main gets ready for his two free-throw shots after getting fouled.

3 Trying to get around the Huskies, Charles Foster '12 heads into the key, making his way to the basket.

4 Feet off the floor, Charles Foster '12 makes a jump shot to score against cross-town rival Port Huron Northern.

5 Despite the attempt to block his shot, Jalen Esters '13 comes through, scoring a two-pointer for the team.

6 In-bounding the ball, sophomore Charles Foster looks for an open teammate that can get the ball down the court.

7 To start the game, Eric Hale '11 shoots up for the jump-ball, trying to get the advantage against his Northern opponent.

8 Going for the fake-out, King Thomason '12 looks for an open path to the net, with Tyler Rowbotham '12 ready for a pass.

He dribbles down the court, fakes left, fakes right. He shoots... HE SCORES!!! Three points on the board for the Big Reds.

"Our game against South Lake [was my best game] because I had eleven points that included three consecutive three-pointers," said junior Zachary Hawkins '11.

During the biggest and most intense game of the season, the rival game at Nothern, everyone in the bleachers was anticipating who was going to come out on top. The first three quarters the Big Reds crowd was calm. By the fourth quarter the crowd began to get hyped and started creating their own chants to cheer the team to victory. Port Huron strived to hold on to their narrow lead of four points. In the end the Big Reds came out on top with a score of 49-43. The leading scorers for the Big Reds were David Foster '10 and Marc Titus '10 with 13 points apiece.

Coach Mr. George Moger, who has been coaching the sport since 1995, led the boys to good games against Port Huron Nothern, St. Clair, and East Detroit.

Varsity boys practiced every day when they did not have games, working on shooting, layups, line drills, dribbling and passing. They also conditioned working on agility.

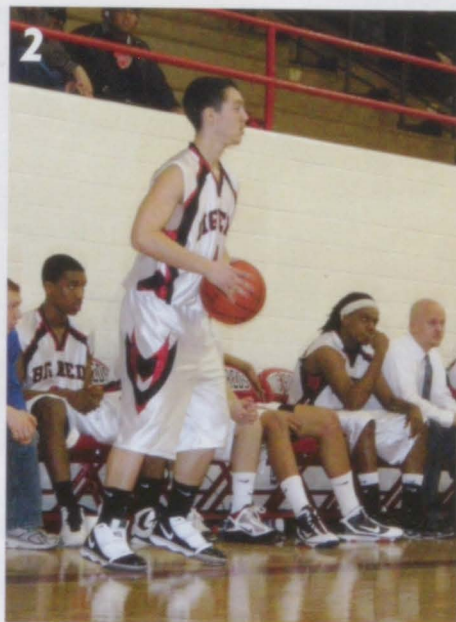

Many sports players had someone who influenced them to play. It could have been their father, mother, brother, or a professional athlete. "My dad [influenced me] because he played basketball in high school. He encouraged me to be a good athlete. He pushed me to be good at sports," said senior Steven Sawher.

One... Two... Three... PIN! With the mats rolled out and the team conditioned, wrestling season was underway.

This season was not like any past seasons. The Wrestling Team only had three matches which made them work extra hard.

Some players have been wrestling since middle school, for some this was just their first year. "We run, stretch and a fun circle which consists of down-ups, lunges and push-ups. Also we drill takedowns and coaches go over moves and correct forms. Free wrestle and some running after practice," said David Thieke '11. Practices contributed to how well the players wrestled at meets. Moves such as the half nelson, the power half, and the cross face were all worked on at team practices.

Even though there was only three matches, there were three tournaments. "My favorite match of the season was when I went against a guy from Lakeview for first place at the Sandusky Tournament, it was fun even though I lost," said freshmen Adrien Lee. Senior Joseph Bielecki thought their best tournament "was at Birmingham Grove because we came in fourth place."

Athletes joined the wrestling team not only to get in shape, but also because of family influence. Freshman Dillon Taylor joined the team because "my uncle was really good at wrestling and I was encouraged to try it out myself."

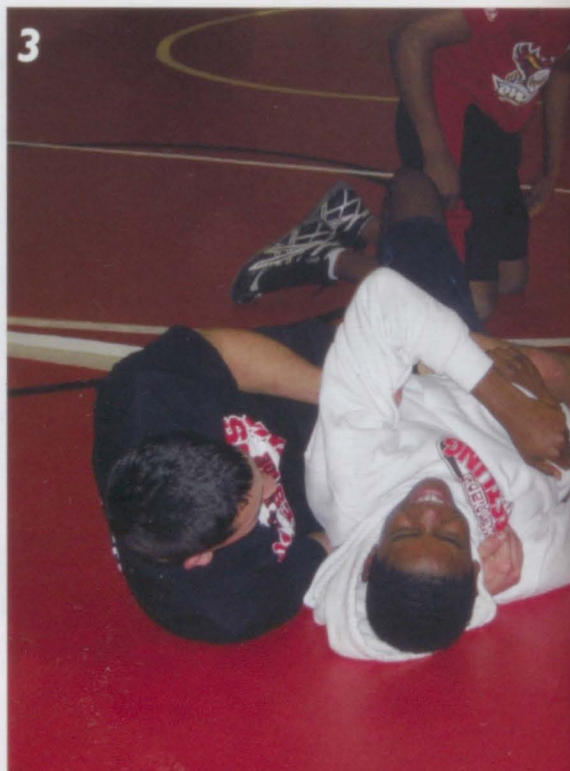

Coach Mr. Dave Reno has been coaching the wrestling team for eleven years. "I wrestled in high school and have always enjoyed the sport. I love how the sport wrestling builds character and being part of that as a coach is very rewarding."

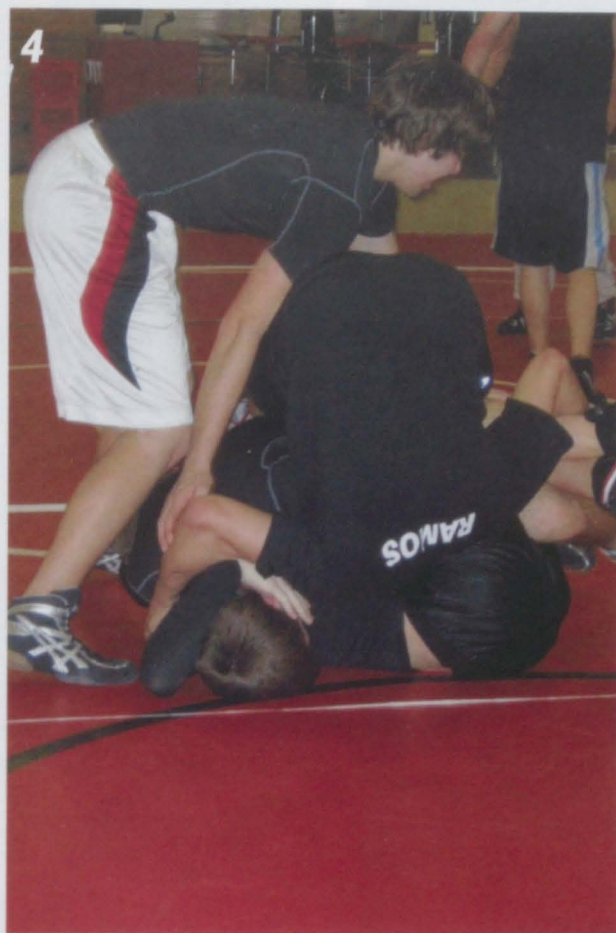

1 Practicing on the mat, senior William Hilliker coaches his younger brother Michael Hilliker '13 to earn a pin against Austin Boughner '12.

2 Working out, Coach Keith Vasser trains the wrestlers to get bigger, faster and stronger on the mat.

3 Free wrestling on the mats, teammates practice there moves to get ready for an upcoming meet.

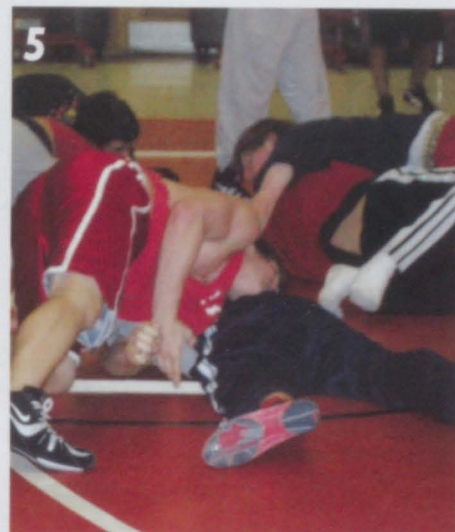

4 Junior Connor Palmateer helps out his teammates at practice as they learn new submission moves.

5 Piled high, a group of wrestlers master their way to try and get on top of their opponent.

6 Junior Michael LaForge helps out a fellow teammate stretch to reduce the risk of injuries in practice.

7 Senior Zachary Harrison helps sort out the uniforms at the end of the season to make sure they were all returned.

8 Coach Mr. Dave Reno discusses with some wrestlers the best location to get pizza from for the wrestling party.

With sticks in hand, The Big Reds got ready to kick off another exhilarating season full of checks, goals and saves. And save it they did— all the way to play-offs! The team also drastically improved their record from last year's 7 and 17, to 21 and 3.

Marysville really brought the competition, but the guys were able to split the difference. "The team that we consider the most important to beat in the MAC Blue would have to be the Marysville Vikings," stated junior Eric Payne. Agreeing with him, junior Jonathon Kemp's "favorite game was beating Marysville the second time of the season, we were down one goal in the first and I had to sub in, and we came back and won. It was one of the toughest games because of the situation we were in and how well they were playing, but we pulled it together and won a great fought game."

Typically, the Big Reds felt the challenge when they faced the Huskies. For the first time in over a decade the Big Reds defeated the Huskies to break the long, unfortunate streak! The Northern game was junior Thomas Jones's favorite because "it was the first time we beat them in like 18 years and everyone played hard so we could win."

With this year's great scores the Big Reds made it to the play-offs and defeated Romeo, but were eliminated by Rochester Hills-Stony Creek with a score of two to seven.

Some athletes joined the team because of inspiration from a friend or family member. "My brother Jason inspired me to play hockey because he used to play and he was good at it, so it made me want to continue getting better," said junior Kevin Glombowski.

1 Driving toward the opposing goalie, Captain Tyler Jackson '10 works hard to set up a play and get the puck in the net.

2 Gathering up after a goal, the Big Reds celebrate and congratulate each other on their hard work.

3 Skating clear of the defender, Richard Mierendorff '10 keeps the puck in the opponent's attacking zone to stop them from getting a scoring chance.

4 Trying to get past his opponent, Francis Harrison '10 does some smooth skating to get around and keep the puck.

5 Powering up the right-wing side, Richard Mierendorff '10 skates the puck into the opponent's attacking zone.

6 The entire team huddles up to discuss the game and congratulate each other on doing a good job.

7 Captains, Conner Smith '10, Tyler Jackson '10, Ryan Rotondi '10, and Mr. Ken Semelsberger gather together after winning a game.

Pins, Spares and Strikes

Story By: KAYLA BROCKITT Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE & KAYLA BROCKITT

Two teams, one alley, and we have a match! Both the Girls and Boys Bowling Teams rolled on to victory.

With three boys Varsity players returning and eleven other bowlers, Coaches Matt Langolf and Chuck Oulette made the decision to continue with a Boys Junior Varsity Team, making this the second year in a row that the team consisted of two different levels.

The Girls Varsity Bowling Team added another player this year, bringing their team count to seven.

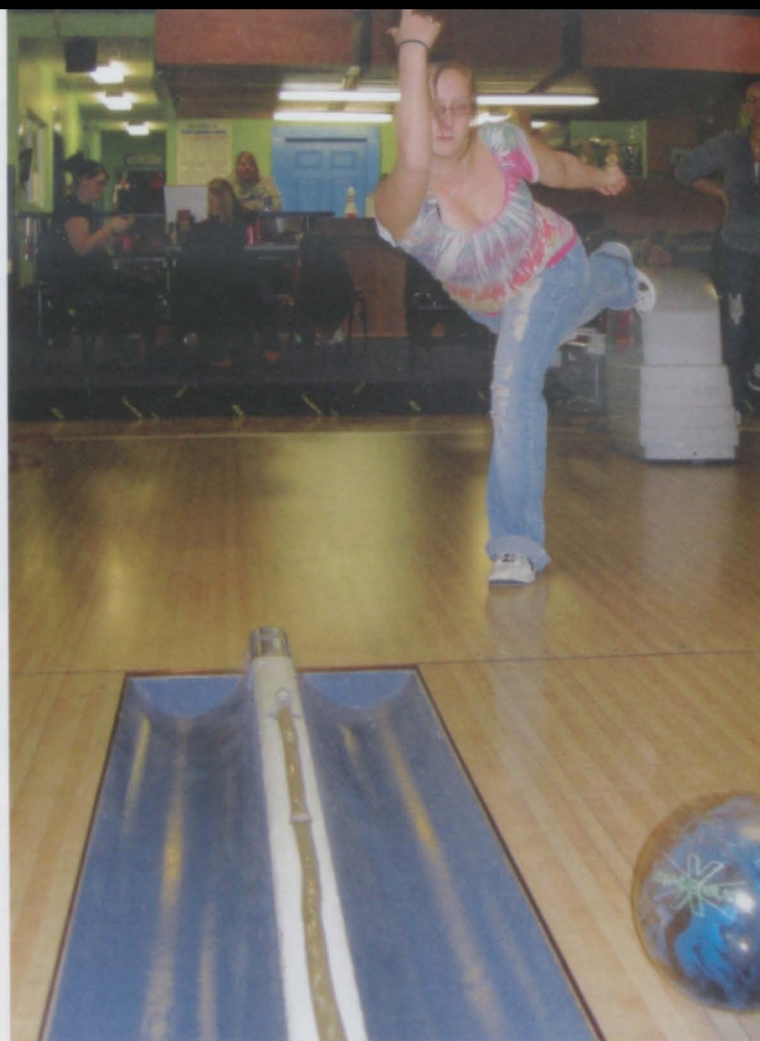

Most athletes practiced three or four times a week. The group held their home matches and practices at the Port Huron Lanes.

When it came to playing competitively or just for fun, freshman Jonysha Pozdrowski said, "I prefer both because I love supporting my school and showing school spirit, but when you're playing with your friends, you can do crazy things that you can't do at a match."

After taking second place at the MAC Championships, the Varsity Boys and Girls Bowling Teams went on to Regionals.

"When I'm bowling, I try to stay calm when I miss a spare and try to keep my head in the game. I really love the competitive part of the bowling matches," said Collin Smith '13. Collin was the only freshman player who was on the boys Varsity team this year.

Junior Varsity bowler Douglas Young '13 made improvements this season and said, "I went from throwing a straight ball to a hook ball. Next year I really want to work on my spare."

1 "I've improved a lot since last year but, I hope to control my ball better," said Jacquelyn Brettin '12 as she takes her shot.

2 Using the arrows on the lane as a guide line, senior Ashlyne Ball works on improving her strike at a practice.

3 At the last practice before the team went to Regionals, Bradley Stone '12 works on keeping his hook ball in the strike zone.

4 Trying to keep concentration while her team cheers her on, junior Maggie Harrison scores a "turkey" at practice.

5 While at practice senior, Michael Bouldrey works on getting a strike in the ninth frame also known as "foundation".

Alexander Gordon '13

"I tend to practice my bowling at least three days a week. I really would like to improve on my spares for the next season and hope to make varsity. I try my hardest to stay calm before a match so that I can do my best. My highest score so far has been 235. I like to bowl by myself because I can focus better but I like to bowl with a team because I like beating other good teams. It feels good to win."

Jacquelyn Brettin '12

"I bowl three times a week twice with the bowling team and on Saturday with the league at Port Huron Lanes. Before a match, I think about the fact that we could have a chance at winning and I get really excited. My high score this season was 213 and I was so happy because that is a good game for me. My favorite part about bowling would be getting strikes and all of the fun that you have."

Bradley Stone '12

"I usually listen to music before the match or on the bus going to the match to get myself pumped. As a team, we do our huddle chant and always stay loud to cheer our team on. I've improved my bowling a lot since last year, but I still want to improve my consistency with shots for next year's season. My best score this season was around 230 which is pretty good, but it's not my best."

Fiesta! During sixth hour, Taylor Garza '11 and Shelby Gonzales '11 from Spanish Club, pack up food from the flavored Fiesta Day for students to pick up after school.

Allured by the knowledge of ready friendships, Big Reds discovered the fun in Clubs and Organizations neighbored with people who shared the same interests.

Paired with the idea of new friends, Clubs offered a healthy outlet for the few spare moments of free time. Similar interests anchored teens to group members for achievement of a common goal.

There were organization sponsors who concurred with members to continue their yearly efforts which empowered the student body. Student Council, Red Dawgs Swim Team, Drama Club, Thunderbirds, Yearbook, Big Red Marching Machine, Prayer Group, Mock Trial, PH United Lacrosse, Page Turners, Help Our World, National Honor Society, and Quiz Bowl were on that list.

Advisors redesigned the list of clubs that were reoffered annually and sugared the list with new selections. Some of the new clubs featured included: Political Parties first semester, Pokemon and Key Clubs second semester, and Pen and Ink Writing Club chartered last year in second semester. There were organizations rediscovered like Students Against Destructive Decisions which formerly was known as Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD), and Spanish Club which hadn't been meeting since the 2004-2005 school year.

With groups centered around fun and friendships students were assured multiple opportunities to find their niche. Teens explored activities to help the community or develop their knowledge and skills with kindred spirits.

Bring Ch-Ch-Changes!

Think it through! Student Council provided the brain power to keep things running smoothly. Thanks to their work and fresh ideas, Big Reds enjoyed the experiences.

School work got frustrating and tedious, so the council sponsored events that were a breath of fresh air for scholars. Spirit Week, competitive fundraisers, games, float building and dances were a given!

Homecoming has always been an important part of Big Red spirit. According to Desiree Carroll '12, "It's our school's greatest fundraiser." Student Council was the foundation behind the big Homecoming Dance. They voted on the theme, "Once Upon a Time," last April. The class competitiveness over who could build the best float was not only beneficial to the seniors who won the cash prize, but it also helped those in need. The floats were made entirely out of canned goods, which were later donated to Salvation Army.

This year they added a new event to the mix; Snowcoming, a casual dress dance held on the last day of first semester after exams. Students could hang out with their friends, dance, and relax away some of the week's previous stress. Snowcoming wasn't the only change of pace members experienced this year, Mrs. Trish Ford became the new advisor and brought innovative ideas to the table.

Student Council was about more than just dances and spirit. In September, nearly 121 students registered to donate blood. Kristen Langolf '10 said, "I joined Student Council so I could become involved with an organization that helps not only its school, but also its community. They participate in charity events such as, can food drives, Jail-and-Bail, and the fight against Muscular Dystrophy. I wanted to be in a group that allowed me to become more involved." The group also collected goods to be sent to soldiers serving overseas.

During parent-teacher conferences, Lina Lu '11 serves Julia Werner '10 a steaming cup of coffee. Cookies were also available.

Stringing lights for Snowcoming, Courtney Harris '12, Ann Yoder '11, and Zachary Crumb '10 prepare the doorway arches.

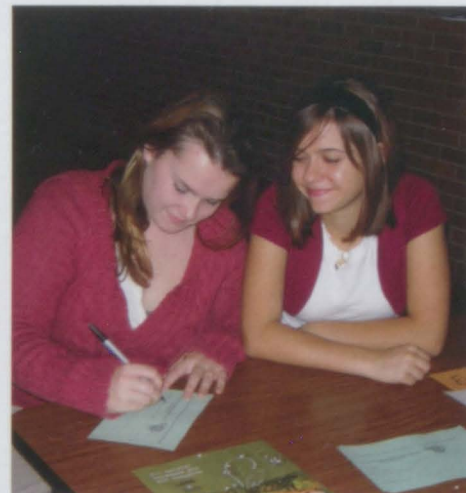

Preparing Blood Drive bags for the September effort, Jessica Barno '10 and Colby Alexis '10 are careful with their work.

Dialing friends, family, and businesses, junior Chelsea Bookrum collects pledges and donations for the March of Dimes annual Jail-and-Bail.

Working at November Parent-Teacher Conferences, freshmen Chelsea Alexis and Jessi Walters help a parent fill out a Parent Connect form.

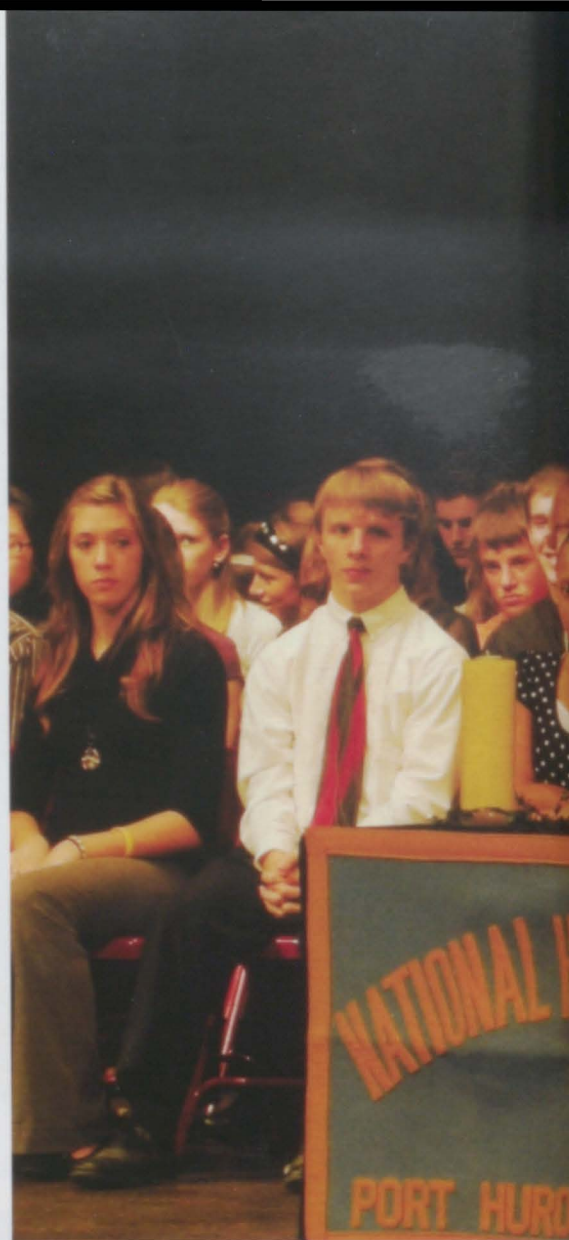

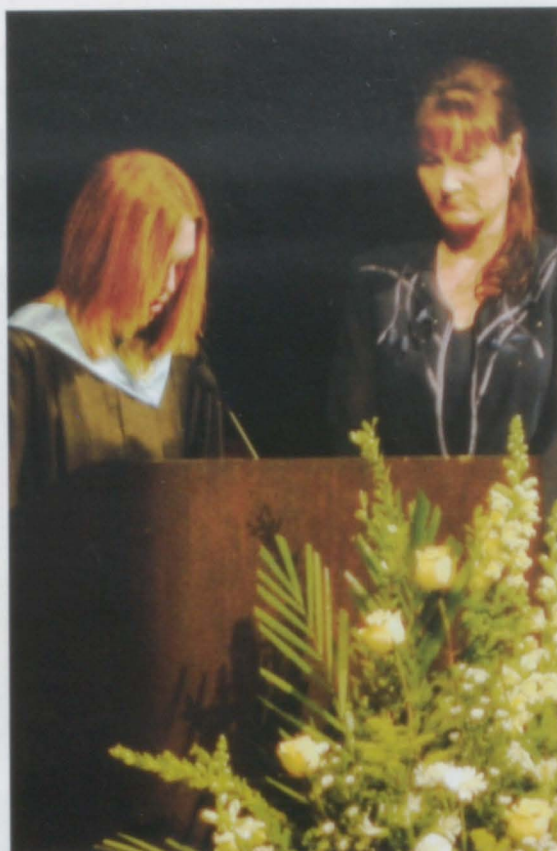

Filling in "I made A Difference" name tags for her fellow peers, Eileen Blauvelt '10 volunteers at the Blood Drive.

Student Council Officers: Brandan Arnold (Ombudsman), Emily Mainguy (Historian), Colby Alexis (Treasurer), Jazmyn Thomas (Parliamentarian), Shelby Chisholm (Secretary), Madelyn Harris (President), Chelsea Bookrum (Vice-President).

The theme of Leadership was explained by Treasurer Shelby Baker '10, at the National Honor Society Induction Ceremony.

On the first Thursday of the month, members meet to discuss the details of Rec Night, the major fundraiser for the year.

Students Inspired To Give Back To the Community

In general, people give back the most at Christmas time. Like their adult counterparts, the National Honor Society members helped out frequently during the holidays as a way to aid local charities. "I joined the National Honor Society because I like to give back to the community," explained Nicole Corbin '11. Members helped the Salvation Army by ringing bells, volunteering to help out at the Festival of Trees, and wrapping gifts at the Birchwood Mall. "It makes me feel good to help others, plus it's fun!" explained Jennifer Noble '11.

The organization sent out over one hundred invitations to join this year's chapter. Students had to take two steps to make it into the official chapter. They had to fill out an application explaining why they wanted to join. Then, a group of teachers looked over the applications and decided if students qualified.

After the holidays were over, National Honor Society members looked for other volunteer opportunities. Members worked to achieve ten points a semester, one point per hour of work. They helped the Quiz Bowl team with a competition at PH, hammered for Habitat for Humanity, and tutored students. "It's a really great feeling when you watch someone grow and become successful," said Amanda Parker '10 about tutoring.

The organization started putting on Rec Nights as a fundraiser to give students more opportunities to spend time with their school friends. At the Rec Nights, there were Halo Tournaments, Dodge Ball Tournaments, refreshments and dancing.

Talking to Mrs. Laura Mitchell, President Jenna Page '10 discusses what topics need to be covered at that morning's meeting.

Vice President Alisha Parlin '10 explains the importance of the Scholarship theme, one of the Pillars of National Honor Society.

Yearbook Always Stays Pages Ahead

Frantic deadlines, constant editing, and tons of fundraising all went into the creative and unpredictable Yearbook class. Many days the staff went without a break to achieve perfection in the book. This year's theme was "redefined" and highlighted the color red. "The way the color connects to the theme is unique," said the Adviser, Mrs. Zauner.

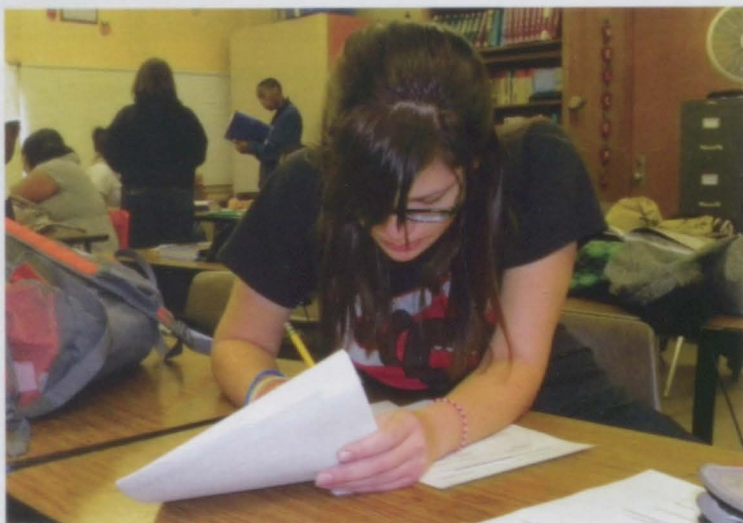

The theme is all about being redefined, meaning being different from the past and finding new meaning in who you are and what you do. This yearbook is all about being set apart from the crowd.

"This year's book is special because it has so many changes unlike other years. I can't wait until everyone can see it," said Editor-in-Chief Jazmyn Thomas '10.

In an effort to keep the book affordable for students, the staff earned money with a flower sale, bottle drives, bake sales, catalog sales, and a craft show booth. Money also came from the fundraising efforts during the school year selling baby picture ads, patrons, and business advertisements.

Yearbook photographers showed up at more than just sporting events; they made sure they captured more pictures of students, staff, and visitors at events that happened throughout the preceding summer and the school year. The goal was to get new faces in the yearbook and show all the fun that was had at Port Huron High. "Everyone deserves a chance to be in the yearbook," said Photo Editor Kayla Brockitt '11.

"We only got one year to create the book; so we made sure Volume 105 was special. I was so anxious to see the final, completed edition, so we could see how all the hard work and dedication turned out!" said Editor-in-Chief Travis McBride '10.

Hey Band?

OH YEAH!

Story By: TRAVIS McBRIDE Photos By: MARY MURPHY & TRAVIS McBRIDE

With chins up and ears listening, the 201 member Marching Machine took the practice field. This marked the 40th year of the Big Red Marching Machine name. "Band, attention!" shouted Senior Drum Major John Kriewall. "And One," said the band. With Band Camp during the first week of August, and evening practices, Machine members were well rehearsed for the first show of the season: pre-game at the PH-PHN Varsity Football showdown.

Marching to drill by Timothy Hurlbert, and blaring the music of "The Who", the Machine took the field with more than 6,000 fans sitting on the edge of their seats. "They [The Who] are a cool band," said Mr. Dan Griffith, "Pinball Wizard, how could you not love it?" Songs featured included Pinball Wizard, Baba O'Riley, Behind Blue Eyes, and Who Are You with a short drum beat where marchers danced moves included: "rope it," "jump on it," and the "stanky leg."

Just like trained soldiers, the BRMM drilled their movements for perfect synchronization. "My favorite thing about band camp was that I got to spend time with my friends. My least favorite thing about band camp was the hours and hours spent doing basics. But it made us better marchers," said Jeffrey Cates '10.

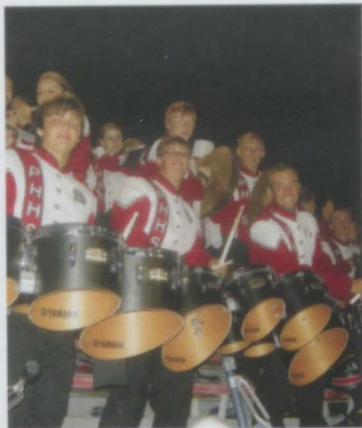

International Ambassadors, BRMM members traveled to three Canadian Christmas Parades: St. Thomas, Sarnia, and Chatham. The band also traveled to New York City in the spring.

It came to the moment of truth. Did all the hard work and late night practices pay off? The announcer at MSBOA came over the speaker, "In Class AA, Port Huron High School... Division I."

"I felt glorious. With all the work we put into the year, to hear that we got a [Division] One was just a huge relief and a pat on the back for a job well done," said senior Samantha Chandler.

As trombones blare, the BRMM performs the popular Pinball Wizard during the pre-game debut of the half-time show.

Quad percussionists Kyle Falk, Joshua Loshaw, and John Russ drum to Smashmouth's All Star, a crowd favorite.

Honoring veterans, trumpet players march to a medley of Armed Forces songs in Port Huron's annual Memorial Day Parade.

After school BRMM members help load a truck full of Little Caesar's Pizza Kits. Band students received 20 percent to off-set the cost of NYC trip.

Chicago here they come, ready and pumped to do what they do best and that's dance. The excitement of the Bulls game was more than enough to motivate the Thunderbirds to practice any and every way they could. Paying off in the end, the T-birds placed first in the Chicago Bulls Cheer and Dance Classic.

"My motivation is it's a great way to express how you feel because you get to show different emotions in every dance," said sophomore Sydni Sopha.

For the first time in their 40 year history, choosing not to participate in the band camp, the team instead focused on preparation for competition, attending a week long camp that allowed them to learn ten dances in five days. Also, the T-birds had three freshmen who created the Central Middle School dance team last year, so they were full of ideas. All agreed that next year they would return to perform in the Big Red Marching Machine line-up.

The T-birds also performed during half-time at a Detroit Lions game on Thanksgiving Day. With only one high school experienced girl on the team they did an exceptional job keeping that hidden. This was Coach LaNeisha Murphy's first year sponsoring the Thunderbirds. "My group of dedicated girls and their commitment is what gave them all the opportunities they needed to succeed!" said Coach Murphy.

The question is "What dances did the Thunderbirds do?" Answer! They did all types like Pom when pom-poms were used in their routines. Lyrical dancing contained songs whose lyrics required specific movements. Kick dancing required at least 50 kicks to be used in their two minutes dances. With all these styles, stepping into the new year was no problem for these girls. "We also add our own choreographic touches that make things fun," said Brittini Bartin '10.

A Group Full of "Drama Queens"

Story and Photos By: SHELBY GONZALES

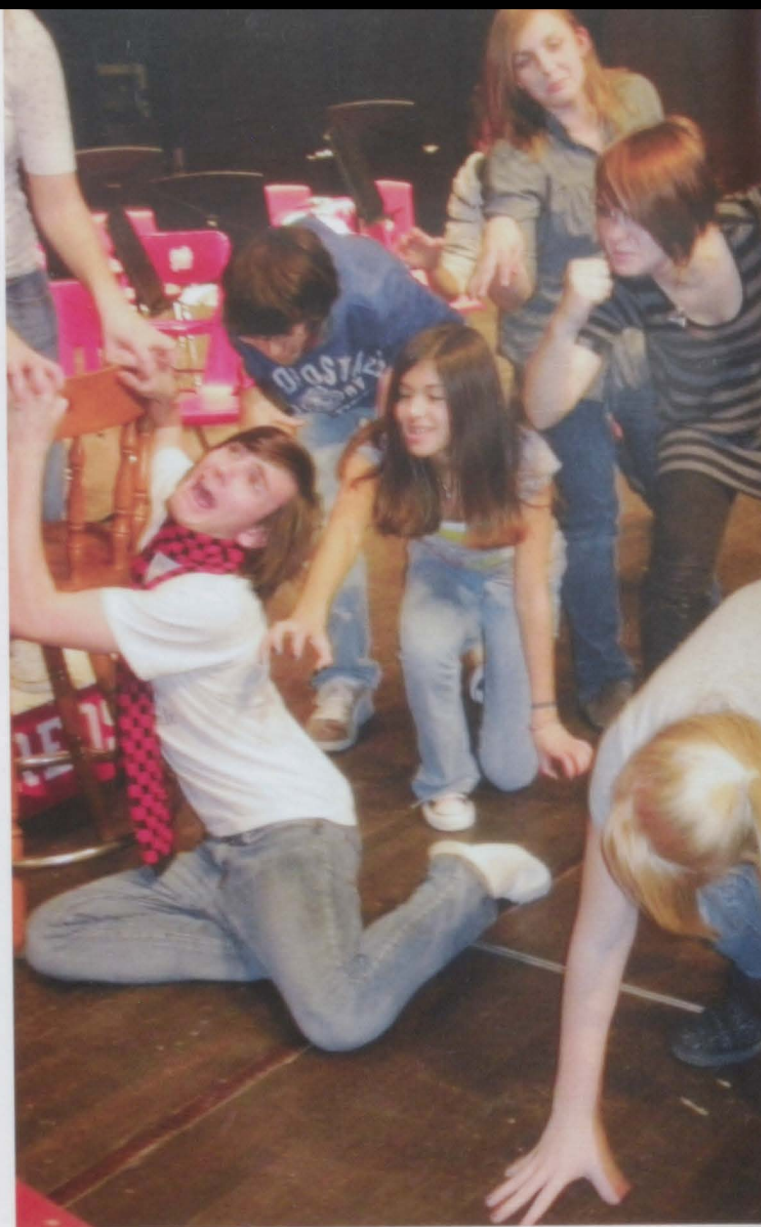

The opening of the red curtains signaled the beginning of the Port Huron High After-School Drama Club's busy year. Every Wednesday afternoon, student thespians gathered together in the Performing Arts Center to share their love of the stage.

The club's first production of the year was A Night of One Acts, where senior members of Drama Club were able to direct their own mini-plays. In addition to learning about working behind the scenes, the senior directors also learned about new acting techniques.

The actors and actresses in the club challenged themselves even more by performing two different plays. "I prefer straight shows. I enjoy the acting aspect of theatre more than singing," said senior Nathaniel Jackson, a four year member of the club. In January, members performed a children's play called The Spider and the Bee. The following month, they presented Romeo and Juliet, with the hopes of taking it to the National Thespian Festival.

At organization meetings, students participated in different activities; occasionally testing their acting skills by performing short skits; members also were able to listen to informative discussions on how to better themselves on the stage. Lots of students joined because they love acting, and others joined to meet new people. "I joined Drama Club to meet new people and be adventurous," said Jamie Koebke '11.

The biggest event during the year was the annual spring musical. The group brought the story of the Sharks and the Jets to Port Huron. After practicing for months, West Side Story was performed in April. "I like musicals because of the music," said freshman Kyle Stanko. To finish the year, a banquet was held that recognized the members who participated throughout the year.

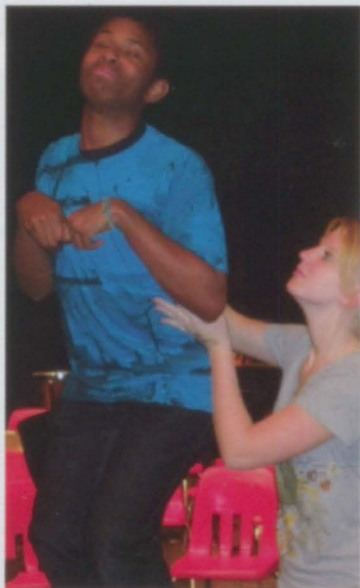

At practice, Mark Hubble '12, Jonathon Gaffney '12, Brittani Fitzmaurice-DePola '10, and John Kriewall '10 go over their lines with director Mrs. Micki LePla.

At after school meetings, Drama Club members played many improvisation games. Here, aspiring thespians are acting out scenes from The Lion King.

Members of the cast and crew from A Night of One Acts gather together to participate in the group circle, a tradition before each performance.

Performing in a skit, sophomores Ryon Burrell and Katherine Rydzinski pretend to be characters from The Lion King, displaying their acting skills.

Fact and Fiction, Students Discover Potential

Buzzers and gavels sounded when the two highly competitive and multifaceted Quiz Bowl and Mock Trial teams were in the room. Quiz Bowl members were grilled at each practice while Mock Trial members cross-examined every detail of their case.

The Quiz Bowl Team was a group of individuals who went beyond the classroom and stimulated their minds as well as reflexes for a lightning fast buzzer. Local teams battled each other to find the correct answer quickly, responding to questions about topics from science and math to art and literature. A highlight was beating Northern in the Tournament and taking third place.

Advisor Mr. Bill Doyle said, "Considering we lost our three top scorers from the 2009 season, the team was still very competitive this year. We finished in fourth place [in the league] with a 14-11 record." The team had to have a good knowledge base to solve the challenging and complex questions given to them. Besides that, Quiz Bowl was entertaining; "Quiz Bowl is fun!" said sophomore Yang Lu.

Members of the Mock Trial Team took advantage of working within the judicial system. Some decided that it would make a good future career. "Mock Trial has only reaffirmed my decision to pursue a career in law. I've really enjoyed learning about the law and working as an attorney, and I look forward to doing it in the future," senior Colby Alexis said. "I joined Mock Trial because I want to go to law school after I graduate," said sophomore Samantha Harris. The court case this year was about the murder of a Anne Marcus a female student who had witnessed a man cheating on an examination. The case was intriguing according to junior Lina Lu. "I like it because there is so much ambiguity in some facts that it's fun to argue your opinion on what happened," she said.

Getting familiar with the the current case and reviewing past ones, Hope Thompson '12 learns more information about courtroom details.

Forward thinking students and advisors joined forces monthly. The HOW group focused on environmental issues, while The Prayer Groups turned their eyes heavenward for spiritual growth and inspiration.

The Help Our World organization continued their Paper Recycling Program with the help of a new recycling company called: Green Earth Recycling of Michigan. Last year, the HOW Club collected a total of five tons of paper; this school year they hope to get more. "I think that Emily did an extremely wonderful job at running and creating this program. I'm glad that others have been more involved like the faculty, students, and companies," said Mia Rodriguez '11. They also continued the Adopt-a-stream program with the help of Mrs. Rebecca Gilbert's Biology classes. This year they had paper drives to increase their paper collection by creating a contest between grades to collect the most paper, and also started to recycle plastic water bottles.

The Prayer Groups had a good turn out this year, too. They had fifteen members join them in prayer, reading from the Bible, helping others grow spiritually, and planning service projects. Members of the organizations have joined for different reasons. "I like the fellowship between myself and the other members. It's encouraging to know that there are other people in the school who have similar spiritual beliefs that I do," stated Jessica Barno '10.

The Prayer Group took air time on local radio station WGRT to promote their cause. The National Prayer Group was rewarded for their efforts by a record turn out for See-You-at-the-Pole day.

Rivals United As One A Team Effort

Bringing the two rival schools together for common goals, Port Huron United Lacrosse Team and the Red Dawgs Swim Team combined Port Huron High School athletes with Port Huron Northern players to take on competitors.

With a core of returning players, the United Lacrosse team was ready to take the field and resume action. After starting the season with three losses, the team triumphed and evened up their record. The boys played a total of 17 games, winning 10 of them. "I think the best memory of the season would have to be at the beginning of the season, when we were 1-4, and we just started winning games and we evened it up, and then we gained a four game winning streak, and that got the team so pumped up, and everybody on the team started clicking with one another, and we just got better and better with each game that we played," said Elliot Kacir '09.

Many of the athletes were new to the sport. Playing for Port Huron United gave them their first real experience with Lacrosse. "The first game I played in I was so nervous my hands were shaking," said Cody Desero '12.

The Red Dawgs accumulated money for the team "with our annual Lap-a-Thon; swimmers swam for an hour without stopping. We also had car washes and pop bottle drives," said co-captain Kaitlin Smith '11. The girls best meet of the season was against South Lake with a score of 200-92. The ladies practiced at the YMCA four days a week working on sprinting, strokes, and shaving seconds off their time. They worked on endurance by swimming double of their event. The team also learned techniques for breathing. Eleven new players graced the pools for the 2009 season; the team was open for any female athlete to join.

Although they didn't make their appearance until second semester, it was well worth the wait. The clubs Page Turners, Pen and Ink, SADD, Key Club, and Pokémon hit the scene for more selections.

"We all need to recognize the value and pleasure of reading," said advisor Ms. Denise McCaffrey. The Page Turners gave students not only the opportunity to get together to read, but also to discuss books with other members who liked to read. "The best part of the club was being around other people that read casually," said Trevor Wild '10. The Page Turners had two Used Book Sales during the year to raise money for the club and to encourage people to read more.

The Pen and Ink Club got students together to discuss their writing selections. "The best part of the club is being able to become a better writer," said Chrissla Boyea '10. The group wrote short pieces on topics that were chosen earlier in the year. After reading their written work aloud, students would discuss the positives and negatives of the writing. The input from their peers gave them direction for correction!

Key Club kicked off with a pizza party for their first meeting. The program ran through Kwanis Club in cooperation with Port Huron Northern's chapter. Key Club was student led with the intent to impact the community through volunteering and service.

Whether it was cards or video games, Pokémon Club gave students the chance to dual with each other and share card collections. "We play our Game Boys and have Pokémon duals at club meetings. Our goal is to catch 'em all!" said Treasurer Shelby Gonzales '11.

With a slight change of name from Students Against Driving Drunk to Students Against Destructive Decisions, the organization expanded their position in hopes of influencing students to choose carefully.

Helping to sort and organize the different kinds of books, Trevor Wild '10 carries a box to its designated table.

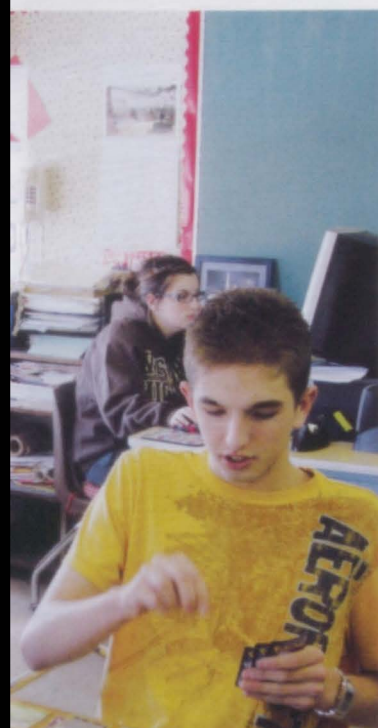

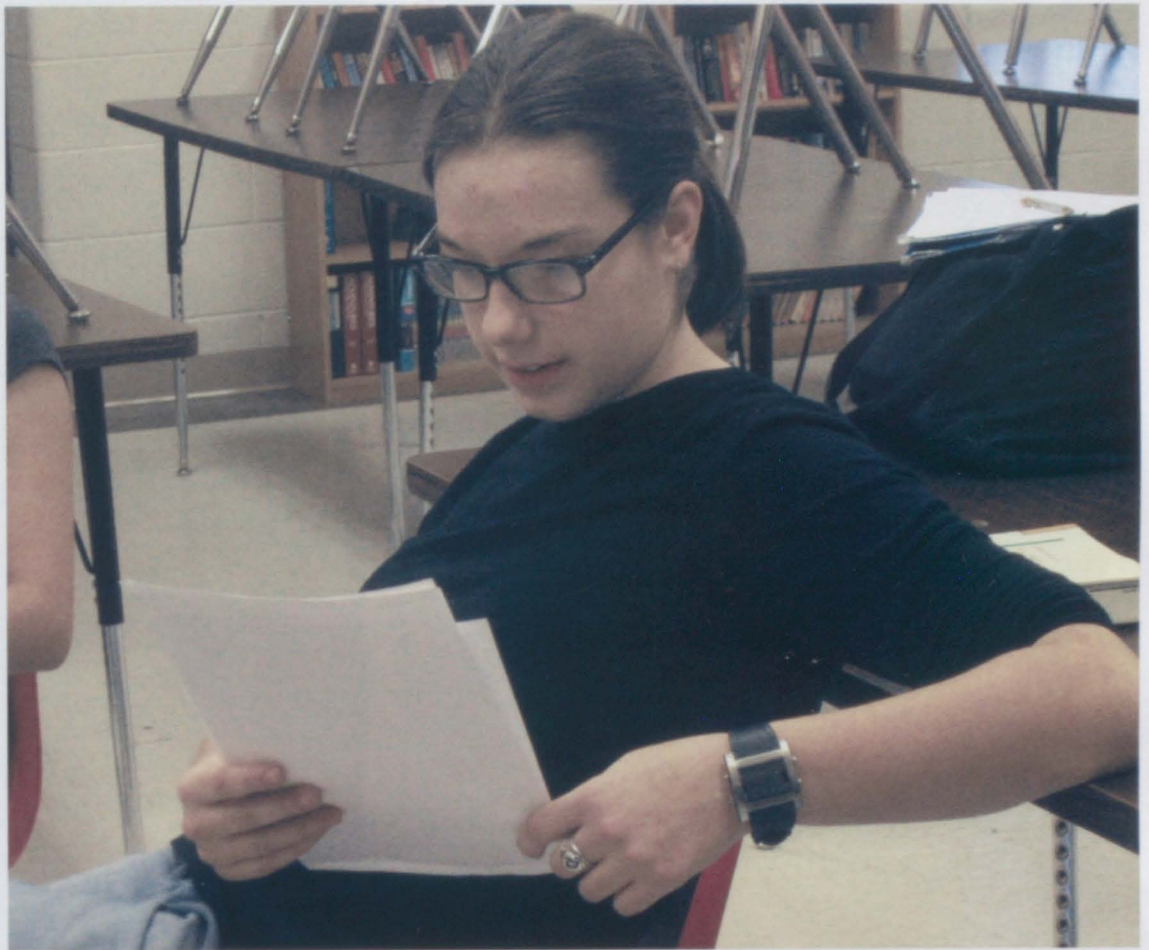

Putting the money into eager hands, junior Lina Lu supports the Page Turners by buying a mystery novel at their book sale.

Travis Hill '11 duals an opponent at Pokémon Club in Ms. Laura Foster's classroom as Andrew Shinavier '11 gives him helpful tips.

Preparing for the Used Book Sale, Chrissla Boyea '10 organizes the romance section. Each book was sold for a quarter.

Reading her short writing piece, sophomore Hayley Alderman-Wuchte shares it with other club members in Groom Room A.

New Clubs Capture Students Interests

Nothing stagnant here! Students led the way to form two new clubs for 2009-2010 school year: Political Partiers and Spanish Club.

President Hayley Wuchte-Alderman '12 started Political Partiers to get teens more involved with current events and political issues. "Democracy requires our participation and I thought that Big Reds needed an opportunity to participate. I knew Big Reds were smart enough to develop opinions, vocalize them, and participate." The club taught students to voice their views and understand other teen's perspectives. Members also sharpened and developed their debating skills. Every student was asked to speak their views at the meeting creating the most discussion possible. Current events included aid to Haiti, Obama's first year, school curriculum, health care reform, and political philosophy. Civics and Economics teacher Mrs. Shelly Davis was the club's advisor. All of the cabinet were elected after giving a qualifying speech in front of members at the first meeting.

Spanish Club was brought back after being absent from school activities for three years. President Emily Osburn '10 "started the Spanish Club so anyone could experience different cultures other than our own. We don't have many cultural clubs, so that's why I started this one." In order to restart the club students had to find an advisor, write a new constitution, earn administrative approval, and elect cabinet members. Then, cabinet was voted in by other students. Mr. Timothy Owens resumed his role as advisor. Members could be from any Spanish class and any level. In order to raise money for club activities members sold guesses for the amount of candy inside three piñatas at lunches. Also contributed to the clubs fund was the sale of Spanish t-shirts to the different classes.

Mia Rodriguez '11, President Hayley Alderman-Wuchte '12, Donyell McCoy '12, and Jayson Smith '11 discuss aid to Haiti.

Showing their support, senior Lindsey Moseley and freshman Kyle Stanko proudly display their sign made for senior Chandra Trice before heading out to perform with the pep band.

Port Huron High School rolled out the Big Red carpet for its 2009-2010 students. Centered on reinventing themselves, the teens at PHHS started the school year prepared for anything. Students explored new avenues throughout the year and gained a friend or two. With so many changes made to the school and curriculum, both the upperclassmen and the underclassmen had to redefine what it meant to be a Big Red.

The seniors began the year all glammed up and ready to take their rightful place as leaders of the school. After celebrating the first place tie for their Homecoming float, the Class of 2010 showed incredible dedication and focused on preparing for graduation. Since they were admired by the underclassmen, all of the seniors' hand prints were featured on the wall in the 100 hallway.

Due to the attention put on the ACT and MME tests, the Class of 2011 declared their status by studying hard. They gathered confidence after their Homecoming float tied for first place, following another first place win from freshman year. With the stress of AP classes, clubs, and sports, juniors acquired skill to balance their busy schedules.

Sophomores endured rigorous driver's training classes along with regular school classes. No longer the bottom of the totem pole, sophomore students relished the chance to be featured in different school activities. They also aspired to become better students, and focused on tests such as the Plan ACT.

The new kids in school, the Class of 2013, adventured into their high school lives. Adjusting to different classes and new people, the freshmen were sometimes flustered by their new surroundings. However, they became accustomed to the school and gathered together for class fundraisers and activities.

Whether students dared to try something new or went along with the crowd, they changed the environment around them. The Class of 2010 retired from high school life as the juniors, sophomores, and freshmen prepared themselves for another year at Port Huron High School.

Senior Milestones!

Story By: TAYLOR BRUHNS & JUSTINE GOSTINGER Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE & KAYLA BROCKITT

It all started with the passing of the gavel from Senior Class President of 2009 Anne Russ, to junior Natalie Sullivan, Class of 2010 President.

To get a jump-start on their futures, students had the option of dual enrollment, taking place at St. Clair County Community College, or Baker College. This allowed seniors to earn college credits along with high school credits.

The realization of how close they were to the "real world" set in as Balfour came to get cap and gown measurements. As tradition continued, ladies wore white and the gentleman wore red. In addition to caps and gowns, students could also purchase mementos from their senior year, including hoodies and 2010 keychains. Senior pictures were taken and handed out to friends, along with announcements signifying the accomplishment of graduating, and the celebrations to follow.

Selling Younker's Community Day booklets and "Drugs Are Trash" bags helped fund the All-Night Party following Commencement. Each number of items sold gave the graduates "chip money" to gamble with. There were big ticket items such as flat-screen TVs, iPods, and gas cards, along other gift cards and money. Activities included a mechanical bull, a hypnotist, video games, and endless snacks to keep everyone awake.

My Wish by Rascal Flatts was chosen as the class song, with the Red Rose for flower. Coming in second place was the Venus Fly Trap. Red and Black was voted number one as the class colors.

At the Senior Assembly of 2009, Anne Russ hands over the gavel to junior Natalie Sullivan. This marked the oncoming duties of the new president of 2010.

One of the things some look forward to is riding the senior-only trolley during the Homecoming Parade. The parade went downtown, ending at McMorran Pavillion.

At the last night of float-building, builders stayed until 10:30 PM putting the finishing touches on. The next day, they had to reattach the marshmallows and chip bags that fell.

With a bright hand, Zebulon Hughes leaves his mark on Port Huron High. This is the first year seniors, as leaders of the school, had the chance to put hand-prints on the wall.

With Eight... It's Great!

Eight Class Officers not only led the Class of 2010, but also kept The Tribe going and handled the details of float building. Five officers had posts for all four years, some changing positions. "Being a class officer for the last four years has been hard work, but at the same time I've made new friends and had a great experience," said Shelby Chisholm. The officers fostered school spirit and led fundraising for both class proms.

A Taste of Difference

Story By: CALVIN LOWE Photos By: CALVIN LOWE & KAYLA BROCKITT

Showing support for PH Idol contestant Julia Werner, sophomores Elizabeth Turpin and Desiree Carroll display signs they made after school.

Foreign Exchange Students— Sandra Veldre (Estonia), Mahasan Koethlai (Thailand), Johanna Wallstrom (Sweden), Wuttiapat Petsawang (Thailand), Julia Werner (Germany).

"People here have interesting eating habits," said Sandra Veldre from Estonia, "My favorite American food is Sour Patch Kids, they are the BEST candy EVER!" Foreign Exchange Students that visit Port Huron High come here for the experience, and the different foods are definitely a part of that experience.

Eating habits are different here according to all of our guests. Americans tend to eat more at meals and eat more often. The other most noticeable variation for the foreign exchange students was in bread choices. They prefer the dark multi-grain type found in their home countries. However, one bread selection proved to be popular. The peanut butter and jelly sandwich became German student Julia Werner's favorite food, "It was also my first American food," she said. Other savory delights included fast food from McDonald's, according to Wuttiapat Petsawang.

Foreign Exchange students Sandra Veldre and Johanna Wallstrom sit in the lunchroom as Sandra shows us a pleasant experience she found in American chocolate.

Questions Explored, Answers Delivered

If you were going to a deserted island and could only take three things with you, what would you take...

It's gotta be an ice island and I'd bring a stick, a puck, and a net.

-Chelsea Minnie

A boom box, a laptop, and AT&T's satellite Internet to get off.

-Joshua Cooke

An airplane, fuel, and my cell phone, so I could get off that deserted island.

-James Krause

Deodorant, toilet paper, and potatoes.

-Cynthia Goble

My iPod-I'm lost without it, My Wolfpack-that's all my friends (they count as one item), My cellular-gotta have it.

-Chandra Trice

If you were given the opportunity to be born again, how would you change how you've lived your life so far...

Do better in school, make better choices, I would also join activities.

-Jeffrey Cates

Try harder in school, make better choices.

-Taylor Hintz

I'd invest in Google.

-Joseph James

I wouldn't. It made me who I am and got me to where I am. I've done things I shouldn't of, but I don't regret those choices.

-Ashley Gracy

I wouldn't change anything, I like how my life is right now, I would like to change how my parents did things but not how I did anything.

-Brian Blake

If you had a time machine and you could transport to any time, what time would you choose...

50 years into the Future to see what life will be like.

-Marcel Mardini

70's, hippies and women rights in college.

-David Seppo

The 20's to wear the clothes.

-Hali Mullinax

I wouldn't transport. I live in the moment.

-Brianna Duren

1930, I love their cars!

-David Shagena

If your cell phone fell in the toilet, what would you do...

Flush the toilet.

-Blake Teeple

Depends if the toilet needs to be flushed or not.

-Amanda Parker

Yell profanities, then reach in the toilet, gagging.

-Kristen Morris

Scream "OMG" then knock on the stall next to me and ask them to get it out.

-Kerissa Donaldson

If you could create your own color, what would you call it...

Hot Hawaiian Sun.

-Madelyn Harris

Aquapearl

-Shelby Ceseyske

Mirage

-Amber LaVere

If you could be a super hero, which one would you be...

Gambit

-Michael Kelly

A Power Puff Girl.

-Krystal Draveling

Batman because my best friend Justine love's him.

-Taylor Bruhns

I would be called Circuitzii and I would have the power of lightning.

-Zachary Glenn

If you found a suitcase with $1,000,000 in it, what would you do...

I would invest it in something like stocks to make movies.

-Blake Seely

Wonder if I am on a hidden camera show.

-Caleb Dobbs

Turn it in if I get a bigger reward.

-Kennita Ross

Shopping Spree.

-Amanda Bloink

Ask the police if anyone reported it missing, if no one did I'd use it for college.

-Corene Howe

If you were given three wishes, what would you wish for...

Trillion dollars, my own island, and a long life.

-Kaitlyn Findley

Infinite money supply, world peace, and The Fountain of Youth.

-Zachary Crumb

A Hippo, the ability to never be able to crash your car, and to end world hunger by turning rain into food.

Calvin Lowe &
Chelsea Albrecht

Calvin,

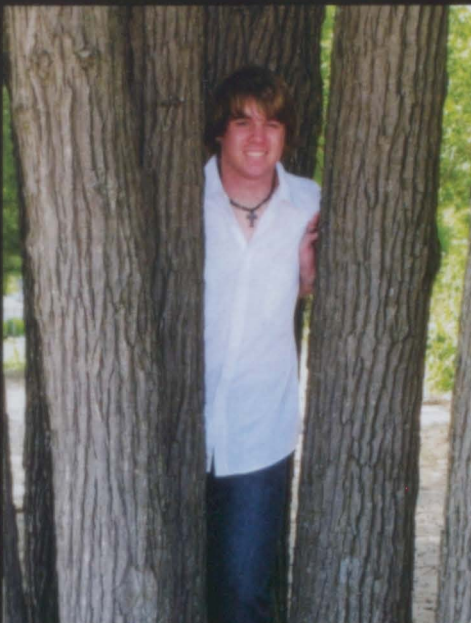

How the years have passed so fast, the "twain twack" days seem like yesterday. Your charm, sense of humor and cleverness have kept our home lively. We're very proud of you and all you've achieved. We believe in you son; if you believe in yourself there are no limits. Don't settle for less than your best. Wherever your dreams may take you, we'll always be there for you with love and support. You are a very special and unique person with so much to offer this world. Dream big and reach far, your journey has only just begun.

Congratulations!
"Cowman" "Ace"
We love you,
Dad and Mom

Chelsea,

Where have the years gone? It seems like yesterday that you were a baby. Now you're all grown up and ready to begin your life. You are a very special and wonderful daughter/sister. Know that you have brought many beautiful memories. We are very proud of your accomplishments and we will forever be there, should you need us. We wish for you that your dreams come true, your goals are all met and the stars you reach for are all touched. We hope you receive as much happiness in life as you have given us. The best is yet to come.

Congratulations!
"Sunshine" "Rain cloud"
We love you,
Mom and Dad

Myriah Fredendall

It seems like yesterday you were just a little girl, now a beautiful woman!

Good luck!

Love,

Mom, Dad, Suzanne, MaryKay,

David Shagena

David,

It's been a joy to watch you grow up. How precious you are to your family.

We love you,
Grandma and Grandpa

David,
Congratulations! What a wonderful young man of God you've become! We are so proud of you! God speed!

With love,
Dad, Mom and Nick

Travis-
Congratulations, you've made it! Don't stop here, keep striving to better yourself every day. You can achieve anything and everything, no matter how insignificant or mighty. I am so proud of all your accomplishments!
-your favorite cousin Renee

Travis Joseph McBride

Travis,

The age we're living in is the most extraordinary the world has ever seen. The human species is still reaching for the stars. Today we are the shapers of the world of tomorrow. Often we can't explain what we see. But the era we're living in today is a dream come true. So Travis, as you graduate, follow your dreams, reach for the stars, and always be true to yourself. We are so very proud of you!

All Our Love and Prayers,
Don & Mom

As we watched you grow through the years, you went from our little "chicky fur" to toddler T.J. and then into the wonderful young man you are today... Travis. We are so very proud of you and we love you so very much.

Grandma and Grandpa AKA Granny & Papa

Jazmyn Thomas

Jaz,

Wow, Jazmyn it's hard to believe you're graduating already. I'm so proud of you and proud to be the aunt of such a remarkable young lady. I want you to know you're not just my niece you're like a daughter to me. Have fun at college and make sure you call or text me every day.

Love you,
Aunt Angie

Jaz,

You are the best sister I could ask for and more. Even though you can be rude, you have always been loving, so thank you. I hope you have a good life after high school.

Love, your favorite brother.
Marcus Thomas

Jazmyn,

You are the most perfect granddaughter a grandparent could ask for. I am proud of you and your many accomplishments. I am proud that you think of the less fortunate and do charity work to help those in need. You are a great asset to our society, you will make the world a better place because you are a special type of person with great expectations.

Love ya,
Grandma

My dear sweet Princess,

45.5 hours of labor, weighing 7 lbs, 4 ounces, and 21.5 inches long. You were so precious and beautiful. I thank God every day for giving me such an angel. It "ball" at 4 months, it seems like yesterday we laid in bed reading Barney nursery rhymes, or the period of having band-aids stuck all over your body, your fear of grass and dirt, but most of all the fun times we had playing dress up, dolls, and tea parties. You were so excited when Marcus arrived into this world. You have always been a positive role model for him and the best big sister. You two have a special bond. You make me proud every day of all your accomplishments and determination. I'm so proud of the wonderful young lady you've become and the compassion you have. You have a special gift and it shows through your humanitarian work and your selfless acts of kindness. It's so hard to believe that soon you will be going off to college and starting a new chapter of your life, but no matter where you are or what you're doing, let God lead you. I love you so much Jazmyn Ranay!

Love,
Mom

Danielle Herr

Danielle,

You're a beautiful young lady, an amazing daughter and sister. We are all very proud of you, best wishes and lots of love.

Love you,
Mom, Dad, Ryan and Kaeleigh

Sarah Schottle

Look at you! My how you've grown!
We are so proud of our sweet girl!
We love you, Sadie Sue!
Phil 4:13

Matthew Cutler

You've had struggles and success. Now go out and get what you want from life—you know you can do it! Be good and have fun. I am very proud of you—don't forget who loves you most!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Christina, G (and GG)

Shelby Chisholm

As fast as you have changed and grown you are still our bright and beautiful daughter.

We love you,
Mom and Dad

Amanda Lash

Amanda Lynn (Mo-Mo),
Congrats! We are very proud of you!
Amanda, you can do anything you set out to do!

Love you,
Mom and Dad

Bradley Lynch

Congratulations Bradley! You will be faced with many obstacles in your life, and only you can make the best decision for you at that time. Your decision will be criticized by others, but is only yours to make. Let the attitudes and opinions of others always roll off your back, and know in your heart you have made the best choice, and will always have my support...

Love Always,
Mom and Nicky

CoCo,

We are so proud of you and everything you have accomplished. Keep working hard and follow your dreams. You will always be our little girl!!

We love you,

Mom, Dad, Mickey, Seth, Brandon, and Kyle

Nicole,

I am very proud of you. The world is yours, so go for anything you want out of life. You have come a long way and keep up the good work. I love you my darling god-daughter.

Ruthie

Nicole Genaw

Nicole,

You have always been our hard worker!

Love,

Grandma and Grandpa Rix

Nicole,

You are my princess and you have turned into a very beautiful queen. I am very proud of you and I know whatever you do with your life you will succeed in every way.

Love you very much,

With the reality of life after high school setting in, the Class of 2011, geared with #2 pencils and calculators to determine their scholastic achievement.

Before pupils could gain access to the test room, they were carded to prove their identity. The first day of testing was on March 9, 2010, where juniors were given the American College Test also known as the ACT.

Next was the Michigan Merit Examination (MME) which was a state mandated test to "measure what students know and can do, based on Michigan high school content standards." The MME was first administered in 2007 to replace the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP). In 2007 the test was optional, but was required for the Class of 2008 and beyond to measure Adequate Yearly Progress as mandated by the No Child Left Behind Act. If students were proficient or advanced in all sections of the test, they were excused from exams senior year at PHHS as long as they maintained a "C" in each class. Colin Koester said, "The MME was tougher than the ACT!"

Putting their cell phones in the box before entering the testing room is Theodore Kruse and Shauna Kovach. All electronic devices were prohibited during testing.

Being carded, JoAnna Ingles, Lauren Lamonica, Joshua Walerych and Taylor Garza prove their identities to Mr. Li Liu to enter the test room for the MME.

"We're the class to get it done; We're the class of Oh-Double One!"

The Class of 2011 officers had a lot to do in the past year. They helped their fellow classmates overcome the challenge of a new float building method for Homecoming. The class officers also had to deal with fundraising and organizing the Junior Prom. Class Secretary Lina Lu said, "We help to inspire our fellow classmates to participate in class activities." With a new class president, the junior class officers were set on redefining their goals for the Junior Class of 2011.

Answers Declared Credible!

Sneak on a plane and go to some cool place on vacation.

-Angel Doan

Steal everyone's food.

-Jordan Hunt

Rob a bank.

-Charles Weaver

I would slam doors and turn on and off lights at one of my friend's house after they watch Paranormal Activity.

-Shelby Conard

Spy on people.

-Megan Herr

Pull peoples pants down whose are sagging.

-Shelby VanderEsch

If you could have any car you wanted, which would you choose...

I would choose a 1966 SS Camaro with a 454, with metallic blue paint and jet black racing stripes.

-Kody Hoffman

The car from Knight Rider...Yeah, I'm a nerd; get over it!

-Brandon Harris

A Purple Dodge Charger.

-Katherynne Jaciuk

A horse drawn carriage, they are so cute!

-Shauna Kovach

Lamburgini

-Kristin Kinney

A sweet car that everyone wants...in pink or green...or a car that runs and won't break down.

-Samantha Inch

If you were the president of the USA for a day, what would be your first act...

To pull the troops out of Iraq.

-Jamie Koebke

Make lacrosse mandatory in High School and Middle School.

-Jared Crockett

To make it mandatory to own something Darth Vader related.

-Megan Hillman

If you had one 25 hour day (while everyone else was frozen in time with their 24 hour day), what would you do with the extra time...

I would go to the police station and drive a police car.

-Jessica Thorpe

I would draw mustaches on people in serious conversations.

-Emily Mainguy

If your doctor told you that you only had one month to live, what would you do with the rest of your time...

Party all day and night.

-Devin Walker

Spend all the time with my girlfriend and go on a hunting trip to South Dakota.

-Dakotah Miller

Go to England and stalk Rupert Grint

-Shelby Gonzales

I'd skydive, go to Ireland, take a safari trip in Africa, and visit everyone I knew.

-Jessica Swarts

For having AMAZING hair!

-Kayla Brockitt

For tennis, definately!

-Brittany Banks

Procrastinating!

-Jeffrey Macumber

Keeping in time to the beat, Jennifer Noble and Lina Lu jam out in the gymnasium at the Homecoming Dance.

At a football game, Varsity Cheerleaders Ashley Fox and Ciara Fransico finish a cheer by doing the splits.

Watch out for new drivers! Students signed up to be future motorists!

Before getting a license students had to go through Driver's Education where they learned to drive safely, maneuver a vehicle, read the signs, and stay alert. William Kester '12 said, "Don't speed in Marysville because the cops are strict."

Driver's Education could be considered expensive in today's recession, but ultimately worth it! Segment One cost $249; Segment Two cost an additional $35. "Parents get sick of driving around everywhere for their kids, and I just wanted my license to get out of the house," stated Leah Fryer '12.

When it came to the class, Mr. Ron Horne was a favorite instructor. Justin Hansen '12 said, "He is a good guy." In class he helped the group understand rules of the road. He also bravely sat next to the students as they practiced their driving skills.

Why not wait until your 18 to get a license? Channing Klein '12 said, "No, everyone needs to start early to get better at driving."

Ready to ride, Sophomore Alexandria Bramer waits her turn while Tyler Hewett learns all of the safety precautions from Mr. Ron Horne before leaving the parking lot.

Making It Fun

President- Kaleb Fulk
Vice Pres.- Courtney Weiss
Treasurer- Desiree Carroll and Donyell McCoy
Treasurer- Steven Johns
Historians- Ryon Burrell and Leah Fryer

Neither the cold nor sleet ever kept the sophomore class officers from completing their high school political duties for the Class of 2013. Their fundraiser, the popular iFlirtz quiz, had everyone talking. With the results released during Valentine's week, everyone found a perfect match.

Empowered & Inspired to Answer

If you could ask an All-Knowing being one question about life, what would it be...

How does ice cream stay cold?

-Jaron Anderson

Does it ever get easier?

-Jennifer Lowe

Where is Waldo?

-Samantha Harris

Why?

-Jonathon Gaffney

Why, do we have pinky fingers? Seriously, they're useless.

-Hayley Alderman-Wutchte

How'd you get so smart?

-Ryon Burrell

What is the secret recipe to KFC's fried chicken?

-Zachary Pashenee

What will my future be like?

-Aleena Davis

If you could choose your own nickname, what would it be...

Anayna.

-Kendall Bergman

Skit.

-Samantha Smith

Bubbles.

-Sara Wardwell

I would choose dayday.

-Devan Martin

Sadie!

-Mercedes Blackmon

Abby? Haha.

-Abigail Kostanecki

If you were walking through the forest and you suddenly saw a tiger, what would you do...

Harpoon it.

-Emily Bitzinger

Pee my pants.

-Andrew Hinojosa

Call it over and play catch.

-Ally Blauvelt

Duck and cover.

-Courtney Baker

Say we're wearing matching outfits.

-Imari Searles-Harper

Assume the fetal position.

-Torren Mitchell

Flip out!! and crawl away!

-Joyelen Seppo

If you had the opportunity to be different, what would you change...

The way I learn.

-Azaila Powell

My sensitivity.

-Terrill Jones

My feet.

-JaeAnna Dailey

I would change what people think of me.

-Jacquelyn Brettin

I'd give myself super powers.

-Lauren Huffsmith

Be an amazing girl Motorcross racer.

-Jessica Rucha

If you could have one food for the rest of your life (assuming that in this situation it wouldn't affect your health) which food would you choose...

Goulash.

-Kendra Saxarra

Nachos, nom nom nom!

-Kylie Dove

Nachos.

-Larry Maxfield

Fruit and hot sauce.

-Tyri' Hawkins

Chicken Alfredo.

-Micaela McBride

If you woke up and your house was on fire, which three things would you save as you ran out the door...

All the foods I like, Underwear, my family.

-Chelsea King

My dog, my phone, and my brother's Ipod.

-Christian Lester

My pug, my wallet, Justine.

-Cody Desero

Uhhmm...my cat I guess, my phone, and some popcorn so I could sit back and watch the house burn.

-Jennifer Moran-Melvin

My cats, my life-size Zac Efron cut-out, and my framed photograph of the Jonas Brothers.

New Big Reds Explore PH & Learn!

Story By: NATALIE MAINGUY Photos By: SHELBY GONZALES

When you entered a strange school and had no idea where you were going, everything was different because of new classes, new surroundings, and new people, weren't you nervous? Luckily for the Freshman Class of 2013, they had a chance to see the school during the summer at Big Red Wave, a day where freshmen came in and took a tour of Big Red Country, learned about the history of the school, and also got to know school rules. "It was fantastic, and no freshman should have to go without it," said Haley Werth '13.

Although many staff members got together to plan the event, Mrs. Jody Catalanotte and Mrs. Laurel Groner were the two teachers in charge of Big Red Wave. They started planning in the spring, and met with each other throughout the summer. They had to find businesses to donate money or food, read applications from students who would like to be mentors, come up with fun games and presentations, and then put everything together. "We're always trying to make things fun and exciting," said Mrs. Catalanotte. "My favorite part was seeing the turn out of the number of students that showed up. There was a line all the way out to the road," Mrs. Groner said, "I love seeing how the mentors dedicate their time and effort to the event"

Upperclassmen planned, and acted as mentors. "I wanted to help the freshmen have a smooth transition into high school," said Ryon Burrell '12. His favorite part was, "Having fun with all the freshmen during the game I hosted." The helpers in charge of the PHHS Jeopardy style game asked questions about the school's past, including past staff, sports teams, building dates and more. Another game that the new Big Reds played had to do with the dress code in high school. Students went on stage in the Performing Arts Center and dressed Big Red Wave helpers in clothes that were school appropriate. If they put on clothing that was against the dress code they had a whistle blown at them.

Even though there were lots of activities to participate in, the students had a chance to sit down, enjoy a free lunch and catch up with friends they did not see over the summer. Sarah Gordon '13 said "It seemed like no one was mean to each other... just happy to be back."

Midway through the process of signing in, Daniel Cook receives his free BRW t-shirt. Mentors also received a t-shirt, which featured the Big Red Code on the back.

In the gymnasium while the other groups had lunch, senior mentor Marcus Bankston talks about what life will be like as a student at PHHS.

Story By: TAYLOR GARZA & JANELLE MITCHELL

It may be hard to believe that the old guy at the front of the classroom once sat in the same seat as you, but it is true, and we have proof!

Ever wondered why teachers come back to the school they attended? Well we have the answers for you. Mr. Dave Koester came back because "I wanted to live close to my family. I also have a lot of school pride."

Port Huron High School has changed over the years, not just by looks but also by what classes were offered and dress code. Mrs. Deb Hesterberg said, "When I was here we had regular classes, college prep classes, and advanced. We did not have the option to attend SC4, though. We also did not have tech; we had shop classes here though—both wood and auto. Also, we had to wear a uniform in gym, and it had to be cleaned and pressed for each Monday. We also had to wear skirts and dresses until my senior year 1970-71! Boy were my knees frozen when I got to school in the winter! We had homeroom and study hall, also!"

Despite the time lapse between their graduation and earning their teaching certificates, we discovered a few teachers who were here teaching when this pictured group were students! Believe it or not, some of our teachers were actually taught by some of our other instructors. For example, Ms. Angela Parmann was taught U.S. History by Spanish teacher Mr. Timothy Owens and English by Mrs. Mary Jane Zauner. "[Mrs. Zauner] taught me that good writing is so much more than mechanics and grammar, it's about what you feel, how you love and live, and what's important and what's real."

Alumni staff members gather in the gym before school during Homecoming Spirit Week, showing that they had spirit then, and they have spirit now.

Showing patriotism, Memorial Day Parade participants wear stark white uniforms and carry the American flag with pride while marching toward Pine Grove Park.

Fundraising to help premature babies, Mr. Tim Schumaker and senior Madelyn Harris make and take calls during the March of Dimes Jail-and-Bail at the Port Huron Masonic Temple.

Dressed as colonial settlers, freshmen Abigail Elstermann and Paige Precour work a puppet stand with the Central Middle School Drama Club at the Feast of the Ste. Claire.

Blown along, hundreds of people gathered to drift down the St. Clair River for the 2009 Float Down. Due to strong currents and winds, many of the participants ended up on the Canadian side of the river.

Helping the unfortunate, seniors Kristen Langolf and Colby Alexis collect nonperishable goods for the Salvation Army Canned Food Drive, sponsored by the Student Council.

Numerous events checked Port Huron's calendar year. Whether it was chugging down a bottle of homemade root beer at the Feast of the Ste. Claire, or participating in Studio 1219's Fire and Ice Art Festival, members of the community endeavored to experience their town to the fullest.

At the beginning of Memorial Day weekend, the annual Feast of the Ste. Claire was again held at Pine Grove Park, and both area residents and visitors explored life in the 18th and 19th centuries. Brought back for another year, the 2009 Float Down caused hundreds of people to come out and glide along the St. Clair River.

Several parades entertained spectators in downtown Port Huron. Families gathered downtown during the International Day and St. Patrick's Day Parades. Veterans were featured at the Memorial Day Parade, while Santa Claus rode a sleigh down Main Street at the Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Many residents were featured by displaying their talents. The Port Huron Civic Theatre presented local thespians, who glittered on the stage. In addition, many creative high school students entered artwork into the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards. Hockey stars showed off their skills while playing for the Port Huron Icehawks or were daredevils at the Silver Sticks competition.

Community members were also centered on giving back. There were many fundraisers held throughout the city that bolstered different causes. The March of Dimes Foundation, catered to helping premature babies, held the annual Jail-and-Bail and Walk-a-thon to raise money. This year, the National Honor Society considered the affects of cancer, and participated in the Relay for Life.

No matter where, and no matter when, the residents of Port Huron were centered on the community. Whether it was enjoying the January Chilly Fest, or raising money for a good cause, citizens of the town were anchored into the Blue Water community.

Shinin' the Night Away

Junior and Senior Proms

Story By: JAZMYN THOMAS

The classes of '09 and '10 each put their own spin on proms, with junior prom in its second year after being revived as a PHHS tradition, and senior prom offered perks for purchasing tickets and was held at a new location.

Junior prom was deemed "A Night Under the Stars." It was held at the Elks Lodge on April 18, 2009 from 7 pm to 11 pm. The DJ duties were performed by Lee Hoffman, a former student, who kept the dance floor packed using students favorite tunes.

The students showed off their star power with unique fashion sense. Many of the girls wore short, bright-colored dresses, while the guys donned the traditional dress shirt and slacks.

Decorations covered the whole facility in the chosen colors of black, silver, and blue. Balloons cascaded from the ceiling and showered the floors. "The dance was different for me because I was behind the scenes," said Marissa Eagle '10, who helped decorate and sell tickets for the prom.

The class of '09 gathered at Four Lakes for their senior prom. The chosen class colors were pink, black, and silver. These colors filled the dance area and reception room. Shane Donaldson '09 and Anne Russ '09 were crowned king and queen. "Prom was my first taste of being a senior. It was a chance to send off old friends and share an unforgettable night," said Alexander Banker '10.

Before the dance started, Chad Wede '10, Brittini Bartin '10, Shelby Cesefski '10, and Jason Hoogerhyde '10 stop at Beach Road Park.

"Will the Class of 2009, please be seated," and with a loud thud, graduation had begun.

In groups of two, names were all called out into the filled McMorran Arena as recognition for their hard work. A commencement speech from Superintendent Mr. Thomas Shorkey left the senior class with an inspirational moment about their Alma Mater.

Once the seniors received their diplomas from their homeroom teachers in the Junior Area at McMorran, the graduates were invited to the Project Graduation Senior All-Night Party held at PHHS.

The cafe was the place for dancing hosted by a professional DJ, along with a full casino and enough food for an army. Students play in the "casino" with chips bought with "Big Red Money" earned throughout the year by selling various fundraisers. After playing the tables, they could turn in the chips for raffle tickets and a chance to win one of three HP mini laptops, a camping package, a 37" television with a built in DVD player, iPod Touch, iPod Shuffle, digital camera or a printer. The gym was transformed into a blow-up carnival, while the aux-gym was blackened and turned into a laser tag field. Dance Dance Revolution, and two sets of Rock Band lined the hall outside the gym and PAC. In the Choir room, "The mechanical bull was so much fun, but it was really hard to stay on and not get flung off! My best time was 63 seconds!" said Mary Augustson '09.

Promptly at 2:30 AM all the participating graduates and their guests filled the PAC for a demonstration of hypnosis at its best. Volunteers were placed into a trance, allowing the doctor to make them believe they were cheerleaders, country singers or rappers. He was even able to make Kyle Dyer believe that his last name was Marsha. Shy students acted like they were the only person there, while everyone in the room was laughing.

Ushers Christopher Tallmadge '10, Natalie Sullivan '10, Marcus Bankston '10, and Katie Walpole '10 lend their hands to the night's festivities.

Keeping their eyes on the screen, Shelby Chisholm '10 and Dwain Phillips '09 concentrate on nailing the correct moves.

Moving his feet like a pro, Mr. Jeffrey Dennis hits all the steps, competing against Mrs. Laura McFadden in Dance Dance Revolution.

SONS Outreach Ministries Inspires

Story By: JAZMYN THOMAS

Did you know SONS offered basketball teams, performing arts and other opportunities? The group offered programs for all ages and activities to fit many different interests.

SONS hosted the U R Loved Winter Blast on March 5-6, 2010. Workshops held at St. Clair County Community College included dancing, college and careers, relationships, and faith. The Blast also offered programs for each gender to teach them how to become better individuals. Sistahs Circle was a group of high school girls who met once a week and participated in crafts, cooking lessons, self-esteem builders, and they even traveled to Chicago. They also worked with role models. SONS also had a men's leadership development group called Manhood.

The Performing Arts showcased their abilities at a variety of local functions such as: the SONS Banquet, Martin Luther King Day, and even at area churches.

The annual SONS Banquet was a popular event that allowed SONS groups and clubs to exhibit skills and individuality. Last year's event was held here at PH in the cafeteria and Performing Arts Center.

Basketball teams for grades first through twelfth were available for anyone to join. The games were played at the James R. Leonard Center at Cleveland Elementary School.

SONS basis has always been the Lord. The goal of SONS is to reach out to the urban youth and make them better people socially, culturally, academically, and spiritually. "Basketball, performing arts, and other events give us the opportunity to bring out the best in individuals," said founder Tyrone Burrell.

For all their volunteering Sistah Circle earned a trip to Chicago. The program was aimed at high school girls to teach them life skills.

Giving back, SONS Sistah Circle delivers cookies for the Port Huron Central Station firefighters. They also visited the police station.

Contestants liven PAC for annual P.H. Idol

Story By: KAYLA BROCKITT Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE & KAYLA BROCKITT

"Somebody hit the lights, so we can rock it day and night", was what you could hear from the Performing Arts Center as PH Idol finished it's second annual year.

Forty-three contestant hopefuls awaited the first round of this year's competition. "When I first tried out, I thought I was insane for even trying this," said freshman Raelynn Green. Experience ranged from PH Idol being the first time that contestants had ever performed in front a live audience to it being a more common occurrence.

Song genres varied with every contestant, ranging from country to rock. "I sang Travelin' Soldier by Dixie Chicks because it reminded me of the soldiers in Iraq," said Ann Yoder '11.

With the addition of another round, the lucky five finalists, juniors Dustin Swinson, Jennifer Hubble, Betsy Vollmar, and Jacqueline Nieves, along with senior Julia Werner sang two songs instead of the usual one.

This year's winner, Jacqueline Nieves '11, drew her inspiration to sing from different celebrities, as well as from the support from her friends and family.

PH Idol was one of the fundraisers for the Choir and Guitar classes. "I was so happy with the turn out of this PH Idol, I'm excited for next year's," said Mr. Terry Beasley.

Junior Catherand Thornsberry and senior Cynthia Goble added excitement as the hostesses of the final round of the competition.

While contestants waited patiently backstage, spectators cast their important vote for their favorite PH Idol during the final round.

Dustin Swinson '11 hits the high notes during the final round of the PH Idol competition. Dustin was the only male finalist.

Party In The Streets

Annual Parades Liven Community

Story By: SUZIE Q. Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE, MARY MURPHY & SHARON DRAVELING

Everyone loves a parade! And everyone loved to hear the upbeat sound of the BRMM, an international performance band.

The first parade of the school year was popular with elementary and high school students at the south end of town. The annual Homecoming Parade combined the sound of the band with a competitive array of floats, built by each class. Court members waved to their fans. Cheerleaders chanted and Thunderbirds danced. The streets around the school were alive with the spectacle.

December brought a flurry of snowflakes and seasonal parades. Three were staged in Canada, and the BRMM entranced the international audiences with Christmas selections. At home for the holidays the musicians were ready with a mix of traditional tunes.

The school year closed shortly after the Memorial Day Parade, which honored the brave Veterans of foreign wars. The parade route started on the north side of the river and ended in Pine Grove Park.

Summer weather brought out the crowds for the International Day Parade in July. A wide array of floats and bands from both sides of Lake Huron entertained the spectators. Local safety units joined the display. Dancing groups from area academies be-bopped their way through the throngs of people. Really popular with fans, the Clydesdale horses high-stepped it with their distinctive clomp, clomp.

From the opening with the motorcyclists to the finale with the police sirens, the performers brought their talents and pizzazz on their serpentine march, luring wide-eyed youngsters and families to line the curbs with their blankets and chairs.

Following BRMM tradition, senior trumpeters Travis McBride and Krystal Draveling decorated their instruments with lights and garland.

Art Van Furniture's famous balloon, "Flicker" returned to Port Huron. He was also featured in Detroit's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Blasting the Red and White Fight Song, the Marching Machine starts off its season at PH's annual summer International Day Parade.

Snow & Music Get Jammin'

Dance Provides Fun Post-Exams

Story By: JAZMYN THOMAS Photos By: TRAVIS McBRIDE

Bringing students some fun after exams was the idea behind Snowcoming. The new tradition was held at the end of exam week.

In the cafeteria students checked in their coats and were offered punch, water, and cookies. Most took advantage of the food supply when they tired of dancing and needed to recharge. Those who were not dancing gathered at tables in the cafeteria or on the benches in the hallway to talk with friends.

The dress code was informal, so although many students wore their Sunday best, others took the casual approach, wearing every day clothing.

Students jammed to some of today's biggest songs such as In the Ayer, Lovegame, and Good Girls Go Bad. The DJ also played crowd pleasers like Jump On It, the Cha-Cha Slide, and Don't Stop Believin'.

Decorations were kept simple, with balloons, arches, and handmade paper snowflakes. Balloons in the chosen theme colors of silver, black, and blue covered the balcony of the gym. Blue and silver balloons were also placed on the railings. Lit arches covered the gym doorways. Uniquely different blue and white snowflakes graced the walls, adding to the wintery theme.

Adding light to the darkened dance floor, glow sticks lit up the gym. Assistant Principal Mr. Jeff Dennis purchased the glow sticks and gave them out free of charge. Students each got a necklace and a bracelet. "The glow sticks that were brought to the dance made Snowcoming more fun," said senior Alisha Parlin.

The new winter tradition kicked off on January 29, 2010 from 7 pm to 10 pm.

Taking his turn in the dance circle, freshman Jeremy Conway captures the attention of fellow students as he jerks.

Showing the students how it's done, Mrs. Trish Ford throws her arms in the air and be-bops with senior Marcus Bankston.

Swine Flu Outbreak Brings Healthy Habits

Story By: EMILY BITZINGER Photos By: KAYLA BROCKITT, TRAVIS and MICAELA McBRIDE

A cough here a sneeze there exposed classmates within a three foot radius to an entire legion of germs. The biggest concern for students and parents as the new school year began was the dreaded H1N1 virus.

The H1N1 flu strain, or as some refer to it, "Swine Flu," attacked many weak immune systems this past year. The symptoms of Swine Flu were swift and brutal. Those who experienced the body aches, fatigue, high fever, coughing, and occasional vomiting or diarrhea do not look back on their illness fondly. Leah Fryer '12 recalls her experience, "Usually I like being sick because I get to miss school, but this time it was different. I felt horrible and spent the entire week on my couch. I had no energy at all and I felt completely drained and weak."

Principal Ms. Barrett sent numerous emails updating the staff on H1N1 symptoms, and the precautions that could be taken to stop the pesky germs from spreading. Students were urged to wash their hands frequently, stay at home if sick, and get vaccinated. According to news on television, Michigan ran low on vaccine, and distributed it only to those at high risk. "I got the nasal spray vaccine because diabetics, asthmatics, and people with poor health needed the limited supply of shots more than I did," says Kourtney Letzgs '12.

After supplies of the vaccine were replenished, local pharmacies offered shots at their drug stores for 20-25 dollars. H1N1 wasn't the only virus students worried about. Strep throat and bronchitis were also rapidly spreading through the halls. Although less common, several cases of pneumonia, and even a case of scarlet fever were reported. Haley Werth '13 describes scarlet fever as, "horrible, painful, uncomfortable, and itchy."

The issue of makeup work was very prominent for those who missed class due to their sickness. Kylie Dove '12 comments, "It was a big hassle getting back into the swing of things and catching up on all of my missing work." Teachers noticed a rise in absences for about two weeks during late October and early November. After the "outbreak" of Swine Flu died down, the amount of absences per semester returned to regular.

Checking out at the fourth station in the Cafeteria, William Lumley '13 receives a free "Flu Fighter" sticker to promote the vaccine.

A nurse from the St. Clair County Health Department gives senior Savante Daily the H1N1 vaccine, while saying he was unphased by the needle.

To avoid unwanted germs, freshman Kelsey Kittridge '13 wears a protective mask over her nose and mouth. She wore the mask for a couple of weeks.

Listening to advice, Kevin Kujda '13 tries to avoid germs by using hand sanitizer provided in Mrs. Mary Jane Zauner's classroom.

Jazz Musicians Jive

Whether it was to bop to the current Jazz rhythm or learn new materials from great musicians, Jazz players knew how to move to their own beat. Waking up to play music at 6:30 in the morning isn't everyone's ideal way to start the day off. The Jazz Band thought differently about that. "I enjoy starting the day with music," said John Kriewall '10. Senior Nicholas Graham commented, "I love having something fun to get up to in the morning."

A Jazz Band performance was a highlight of any concert at Port Huron High for these musicians and their fans. The Jazz Band played at every other concert at Port Huron High School (spring-winter). They performed at events such as the Spaghetti Dinner, where they entertained for 800 people.

Regardless if Funk, Dixieland, Swing, or Rock Jazz, the Jazz Band played it all for the pure fun of it. The musicians received no credit or grade so you know they did it for the pure enjoyment of the music. "I just do this because I love this type of music," said Laura Fielitz '10.

Professional musicians influenced the group. "I love Gordon Goodwin's music because of the way he takes familiar rhythms and adds his first and making them truly unique," said Desiree Carroll '12.

A true Jazz musician, freshman Collin Smith trumpets a ditty at the Big Red Marching Machine's annual Spaghetti Dinner.

Performing, Colin Koester '11 in his band attire, does what he knows best, and plays his saxophone at a school concert.

Acting & Dancing For the Town

Student Actors Entertain Community

Story By: SHELBY GONZALES

Helping to spread the arts throughout the community, the Port Huron Civic Theatre started out their 2009-2010 season with the showing of High School Musical. People involved in Civic Theatre committed to hours of practice, but were still able to have fun, putting on four different musicals and a play this past year.

In August, a number of Port Huron High seniors and juniors performed in the showing of High School Musical. Personifying different high school stereotypes, a few had lead roles, such as Cheyenne Bolt '10 as Gabriella and Jordan Moncrief '10 as Chad.

Civic Theatre's next production was more adult oriented, but some students still participated either backstage as part of the crew, or onstage as part of the chorus. A rock and roll musical, the Rocky Horror Show, was presented to huge audiences. Being an audience participation musical, many of the spectators dressed up in costume and brought different props.

For Christmas time, the play Yes Virginia, There is a Santa Claus was staged to help inspire the holiday spirit.

In the spring, more children-themed musicals were performed at McMorran Auditorium. In March, Civic Theatre brought Aladdin, Jr. to the stage. Later in the year, Civic Theatre members put on the Disney classic Beauty and the Beast.

Being involved in Civic Theatre isn't just about the acting. Volunteers also helped out backstage and in the green rooms. It's not only the younger actors who took the stage, either. Many adults, some of these were PHHS parents showed their acting chops to the fans.

Overcoming stage fright or guarding the props come with being involved in Civic Theatre. No matter what job they were doing, members of Civic Theatre still managed to have fun.

Playing a Wildcat cheerleader, junior Carmen Pionk stretches her leg during the opening number at a performance of High School Musical.

Looking down at a fellow thespian, Jordan Moncrief '10 dribbles his way across the stage as Chad in High School Musical.

At a showing of Rocky Horror Show, freshman Paige Precour dances as a Phantom to the song The Time Warp along with other cast members.

Junior Ryan Urban acts on stage as Teddy Murray in the Port Huron Civic Theatre production of Yes Virginia, There is a Santa Claus.

Creative Minds Rewarded

2010 Scholastic Art and Writing Awards

Story By: SHELBY GONZALES Photos By: MRS. PAM BROWN

After judges went through over one thousand entries, a handful of Port Huron High students had the honor of having their art exhibited at the Lorenzo Cultural Center for the Macomb, St. Clair, and Lapeer Counties division of the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards. Submitting artwork in many categories such as Sculpting, Painting, and even Fashion, students were able to experience their first taste of an art competition.

The top PH winner of the night was senior David Jelinek, who, in addition to winning many certificates, also was named an American Vision Nominee (Best of Show), and won a Gold Key for his Art Portfolio and a Gold Key for his Photography Portfolio. Both David and senior Megan Reina had the opportunity to send their art to New York City to be judged and hopefully displayed in Carnegie Hall.

AWARD WINNERS:

Ryan Barno— Digital Art Certificate
 Laura Fielitz— Drawing Certificate
 Shelby Gonzales— Mixed Media Silver Key
 Taylor Hintz— Ceramics & Glass Silver Key
 David Jelinek— Photography Certificate, Digital Art Silver Key, Photography Gold Key, Photography Gold Key
 Megan Reina— Drawing Certificate, Drawing Certificate, Drawing Certificate, Mixed Media Certificate, Drawing Gold Key
 Christopher Tallmadge— Digital Art Certificate
 Sandra Veldre— Mixed Media Certificate

At the Lorenzo Cultural Center after the awards ceremony, senior David Jelinek stands with his Digital Art project, which won a Silver Key.

Standing below her award-winning animal drawing, Megan Reina '10 shows her Gold Key certificate. She was also March Artist of the Month at PH.

Icehawk Teams Hit the Ice

Girls and Guys Alike Show Talent on Ice

Story By: CHELSEA MINNIE & JESSICA KOEHN Candid Photo By: JESSICA KOEHN

The Lady Icehawks, a high school girls team, and the Icehawks, a professional mens hockey team—what do they have in common besides the sport itself? The girls amateur team was sponsored by the pros!

Under the direction of Mr. Ron Cook, the girls proved that hockey was not just for the guys. After a year's hiatus, the team was reformed. The former Rebels team became the Lady Icehawks.

This was the first year that the girls hockey team beat Ann Arbor even though Ann Arbor had the number one point leader on their team. The Lady Icehawks continued to beat teams left and right, taking their sticks all the way to Districts. Game one—Success! The ladies faced Plymouth-Canton for game two, losing 0-1 in overtime.

For the first time in team history, Port Huron fans witnessed the Port Huron Icehawks cruise to a four game winning streak to commence the season. Kicking off the streak was a sentimental win against the defending champions, the Fort Wayne Comets.

The Icehawks not only enjoyed success early on, but it continued throughout the majority of the season. Claiming a near perfect record on home ice for the first half of the season, they clung to first place during the time frame.

Also impressive was the spark from the team's youth. After losing several key guys to injuries, the younger players stepped up and paved the way for the success of the season. Derek Patrosso and Mikael Bedard lend the surge, and were some of the highest point-getters in the league.

Over the summer, Kinney Management Group, owners of the Port Huron Icehawks took over the management of McMorran Place, formerly managed by the City of Port Huron. As part of the transition, many renovations were made to improve the arena. Fans were invited to shop in the Pro Shop that was added to the South Concourse. The shop also housed the Icehawks office. Another addition was the Under the Ice Lounge which was accessed in the lower east end. Spectators could enjoy refreshments and a live DJ while watching the game on several flat screen televisions. Also new for the season was the chance for volunteers to work several stations at the arena and receive season tickets as payment.

Colophon 2010

The Credits

Redefined is the 105th volume of Port Huron High's yearbook, The Student. It was produced by the 30 students of the sixth hour class and a couple of after-school staffers of room 220.

Five hundred fifty books were sold, each containing 208 pages of full color. All photos with the exception of sport team photos, the senior class photo and student mugs were taken by PH students with digital and film cameras.

The cover is a three color silkscreen, with a silktouch black base, gloss black, red and white inks. It was designed by Travis McBride with the help of Herff Jones artist JB. Five staffers attended the Herff Jones Summer Workshop at Michigan State University over the summer, bringing home an Award of Excellence in Theme Development, and a Second Place Project Award.

The fonts used were AHJ Cursive Hand, and the AHJ Chantilly font family.

The book was printed by Herff Jones Yearbook Company in Edwardsville, Kansas using a Smyth Sewn binding. The trim size is 8 1/2 by 11, with 80 pound paper stock.

Herff Jones's eDesign program was used for the first time this year to make the book. It let the staff work on their pages anywhere in the world (even China!) via the Internet, freeing up more time on our five overloaded computers during deadline weeks.

The Student is a member of the National Scholastic, American Scholastic and Michigan Interscholastic Press Associations.

Last year's book, "A Matter of Perspective" was rated Gold by Michigan Interscholastic Press Association, and received a First Class Honor Rating from the National Scholastic Press Association.

Mrs. Mary Jane Zauner has been the adviser of The Student for 25 years, with a total of 30 years of yearbook advising.

Letter From The Editors

Whoa! From picking the book's theme to staff motivational cookies, random computer glitches, ice cream on the benches, spiders and ants, harvesting carrots, "Brazilian Beauty" and our "OH sNOW!" deadline, it has been a year of fun change.

Creating a yearbook is not as easy as it sounds. While most kids grabbed their books and booked it out of the school, we found ourselves staying after-school many hours, nearly a thousand to be exact (One day we even worked eleven hours straight!). You can't just put in a picture, and throw some words next to it. It takes dedication. We sincerely would like to thank Mrs. Zauner for her guidance to get us through this crazy year! (Also for the cookies!) We also appreciate our hard working staff for enduring our fury during deadlines.

We would like to give a special thanks to all the students, parents, staff, administrators, and all businesses and patrons that made this year's publication possible.

Congrats to the 2010 Student staff; PHHS: Thanks for the memories!

Travis McBride

Taking advantage of the half day during ACT/MME testing, Courtney Harris '12 donates her time to earn Student Council points during Snowcoming setup. She strings lights around the arches that will cover the entryways of the gymnasium. Snowcoming was a new creation this year.

An additional honor this year, Artist-of-the-Month, was given to the talented students in the art program. The February featured artist was senior Joseph Mundt, who filled the showcase with his work, a variety of pottery, painting and photography. His favorite subject was frogs, and one of his pieces was created with tissue paper.

Dressed fashionably festive, freshman Mark Chapman and sophomore Adriana Jordan show Irish appreciation on Saint Patrick's Day. Students were also seen in Christmas sweaters and Santa hats on the last day before winter break, and in Halloween costumes in the fall.

Charity-minded students like senior Krystal Swift joined forces with crosstown rivals at Port Huron Northern to raise money for cancer research. The event called Hoops for a Cure netted basketball fans by selling the symbolic pink basketball-themed t-shirts. Proceeds were donated to the cause.

Step back and review a year which redefined the school's vision and the staff and students' missions within PHHS. The Positive Behavior System brought a new focus and a positive atmosphere to the building.

The 2009-2010 year harbored memories that peaked with brand new activities like Snowcoming and organizations like Key Club; then plunged to fractured moments (or bones-ouch) with current events like the terror scare in Detroit's airport at Christmas and the trouble in Haiti, which blared out as such big news it caused a Penny War here (for relief aid).

On the sports front, while so many Big Red teams soared, the fans of the Pistons, Red Wings and Lions (despite breaking their losing streak) despaired. More positive were the results of the Winter Olympics. Winning gold for the US were Shani Davis, Shawn White, and Apolo Ohno, who became the most decorated athlete in the Winter Olympics.

Who could forget Homecoming? Don't we wish we could forget the fevered H1N1!

The District closed buildings and reassigned personnel. Superintendent Thomas Shorkey announced his retirement. His position will be filled by former Big Red, Mr. H. Ron Wollen.

In Washington the talks were about health care. The Recession foredoomed us to jobless weekends, less gas for roving, little money to spend and more time for boredom, until friends came to the rescue.

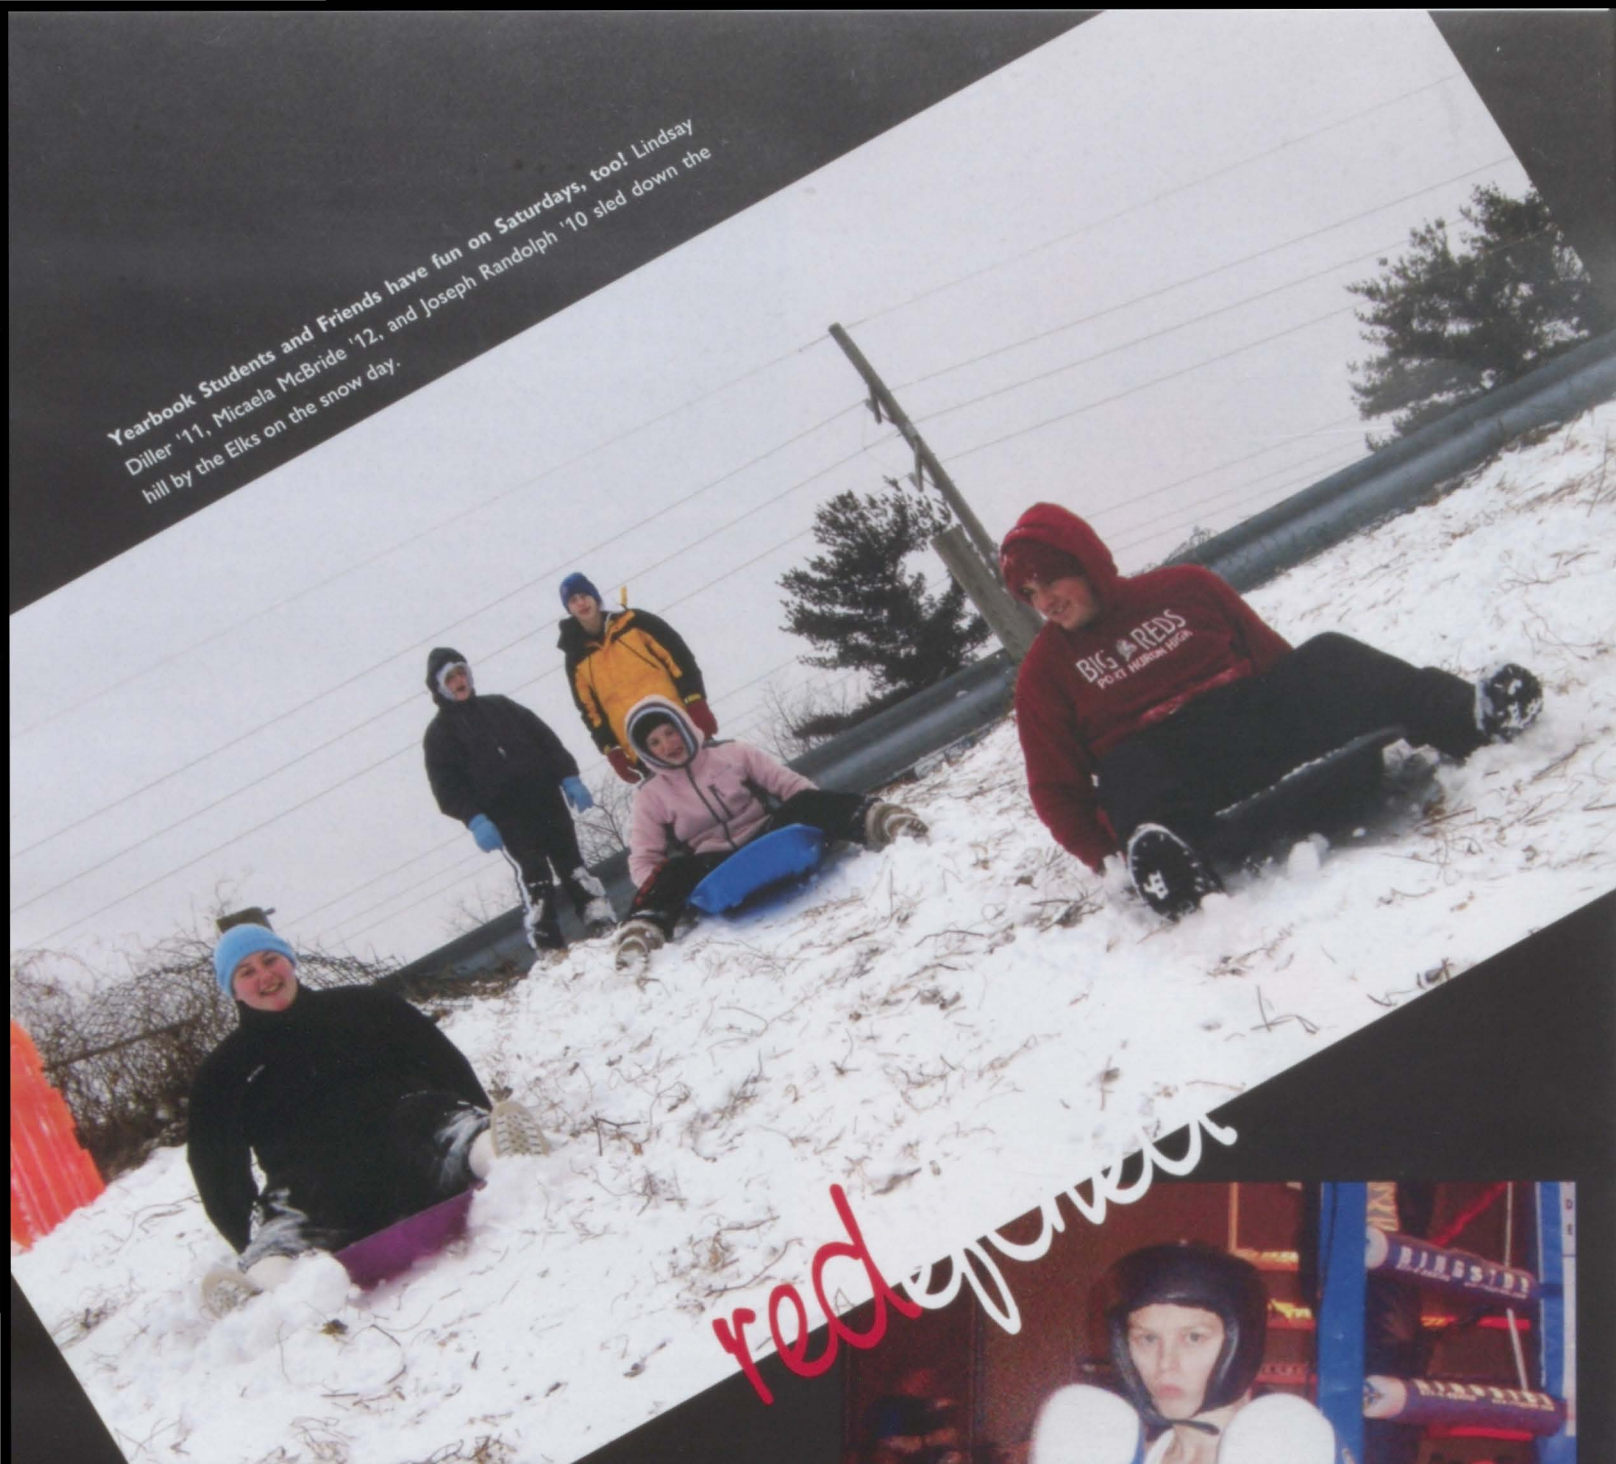

There was no lack of money in Hollywood as the red carpet rolled out for the top performers and entertainment. Avatar cleared the chart heights as number one at the box offices, overshadowing the also-popular Twilight and Harry Potter and the Half-blood Prince.

Yearbook Students and Friends have fun on Saturdays, too! Lindsay Diller '11, Micaela McBride '12, and Joseph Randolph '10 sled down the hill by the Elks on the snow day.

Testing for the ACT/MME took a favored red turn for seniors who got two and a half days of free time while the underclassmen labored over hours of bubble sheets.

Like the national watchword of "change" through the Obama administration, the local high school climate was empowered with variety. The Morning Announcements added "the thought for the day" which inspired Big Reds to think highly of themselves.

Winter was milder, so snow days were scarcer, a mere single after last year's five. The late start to the school year on September 7 meant a late exit date of June 17 after exams.

Keeping active outside of school, freshman Tyler Phillips was a member of the Big Dog Boxing Club and he worked out at home. His talent took him all the way to the State Championship level.
